No. 1.—EASTERN COUNTIES, MIDLAND, AND NORTH WALES DISTRICT.

ANNUAL REPORT of the Hon. C. G. Legge, INSPECTOR of CONSTABULARY for the EASTERN COUNTIES, MIDLAND, and NORTH WALES DISTRICT, for the Year ended 29th September 1893.

No. 1.

Longstone Lodge, Bakewell,
30 November 1893.

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to submit my Reports on the several Police Forces maintained in the Midland and Eastern Counties of England and in North Wales for the year ended 29th September 1893; all of which were efficient in regard to management, numbers, and discipline, with the exception of the Borough of Colchester, where there appeared to be failure under the first heading, particulars of which will be found in the Report on that Force.

There are 56 separate Forces in the District, 26 of which are maintained by County Authorities, and 30 in Boroughs. There are 14 Boroughs having population of over 10,000 persons which have not established forces of their own, and are watched by the police of the counties in which they are situated.

The population of the district is, in the county police areas, inclusive of the 14 boroughs shown above, 4,637,423, and in the boroughs having separate forces, 1,716,343; the total number of police maintained for county forces is 3,857, which is one constable to a little over 1,202 persons, and for borough forces it is 1,983, or one constable to nearly 866 inhabitants. The gross population is 6,353,766, with police forces numbering in the aggregate 5,840 persons, or one constable to every 1,088 of population. The populations shown in the headings of the reports of some of the county forces do not correspond with those given for the "Administrative County" in the Census Returns, as the areas for police purposes do not always correspond with the administrative area.

There were vacancies for seven constables in the county forces on 29th September, and for 10 in the borough forces. Of the former, however, four in Hertfordshire can only be appointed pending discharge of men under notice of leaving the force, so that the number short of the effective strength would be only three.

Augmentations to the number of 33 have been made in the county forces, and of 19 in the borough forces; but in Buckinghamshire a reduction of three was made during the year consequent on a new arrangement made with the authorities of Eton College, whereby three constables are appointed for duty there under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19, instead of ordinary members of the county police, so that the increase altogether amounts to 49 persons.

The variation in the several forces (Table IV.) show a decrease under each heading, amounting in the aggregate to 122 fewer officers and men leaving the service than in the previous year.

The number of public-houses (Table III.) has been reduced by 103, of beer and cider houses by 318, and of refreshment houses with wine licenses by 475. The number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness during the year is less by 244, and, of those convicted, by 286, than in 1891–92.

The certificates held by the police in the district from the St. John's Ambulance Association amount to 3,318, which is equivalent to 56·81 per cent, of the members of the forces who are able to render "first aid" to injured and other persons in need of it.

Below

No. 1. Eastern Counties, Midland, and North Wales District.

Below will be found returns showing the augmentations and reductions of the several forces and the number of vacancies on 29th September last. Attached also are tables showing (1) the strength of the forces; (2) scales of pay; (3) return of licensed houses; (4) variations in the forces; (5) prices of clothing; (6) A. and B., cost of police.

No. 1. Eastern Counties, Midland, and North Wales District.

There is a decrease of one each in the number of public and beerhouses, but an increase of 40 in the number of persons proceeded against for and convicted of drunkenness.

Special demand was made on this force in the month of September by the receipt of an urgent application for assistance from the Police Authority of Derbyshire on account of the strike among the coal miners in that county, which was responded to by the despatch of an inspector, two serjeants and 22 constables.

Seventeen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The Inspector visited all the stations, and found them clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

The Parish of Swineshead has been transferred from Huntingdonshire to this county for police purposes, and that of Tilbrook to Huntingdonshire, with populations in 1891 of 178 and 314 respectively.

Inspected on 14th April, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief officer, one inspector, five serjeants, and 25 constables, showing an augmentation of two constables, which was much needed.

The

The following scale of pay was adopted in March 1893.

The inspector is also appointed inspector of Common Lodging Houses, and under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, and the Explosives Act.

There has been no alteration in the number of licensed houses, but the returns of drunkenness for the year show a decrease of 15 persons proceeded against, and of nine convictions.

Twenty-five members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

No. 1. Eastern Counties, Midland, and North Wales District.

Inspected on the 18th April, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief officer, one inspector, six serjeants, and 22 constables.

The chief officer is inspector of common lodging-houses and of petroleum.

There is a decrease of one in the number of beerhouses, and of 18 in the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness, and of 19 in the convictions.

No members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association, but they are to be trained in rendering "first aid" in the future.

The police offices were clean and in good order, but appear to the inspector inadequate, while the Borough Authority possess no cells for prisoners, but are dependent on the County for accommodating prisoners.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected in June, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief constable, six superintendents, one of whom is deputy chief constable and another is chief clerk, six inspectors, 21 serjeants, and 109 constables. The force has been reduced by three constables, now appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19, and paid for wholly by the authorities of Eton College, who formerly formed part of

of the authorised establishment, and a serjeant has been substituted for a constable. There are now 10 constables appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

There is a decrease of four in the number of public-houses, but an increase of five in the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness, and 10 in the number of convictions.

Eight members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The Inspector visited eight stations, and found them clean and in good order. A new station at Buckingham has been occupied during the year, comprising charge room, three cells for male and one for female prisoners, with prisoners' yard; and a house, stables, &c., for a superintendent, with accommodation for a single constable.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

No. 1. Eastern Counties, Midland, and North Wales District.

Inspected on 24th June, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force was one chief officer, three serjeants and eight constables, but an augmentation of one constable was decided on during the year, to come into effect from 30th September.

The pay of the chief officer has been raised from 150*l.* to 170*l.* a year.

The chief officer is appointed inspector under the following Acts: Weights and Measures, Food and Drugs, Contagious Diseases (Animals), and Explosives; and also of Common Lodging Houses.

There is no alteration in the number of licensed houses in the borough, but proceedings against persons for drunkenness show an increase of 24, and of convictions 17.

Eight members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The municipal borough of Southend-on-Sea is watched by the county police.

There is a decrease of 23 beerhouses in the district, but an increase of 46 in the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness, and of 76 in the number convicted.

One hundred and fifty-six members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The inspector visited 12 stations, and found them clean and in good order. A new station has been built at Romford with four cells, offices, and accommodation for an inspector, a serjeant, and one married and two single constables; another at Clacton-on-Sea with three cells, &c., and accommodation for a married serjeant, two married constables and one single man; and a third at Braintree, with three cells, &c., a superintendent's house, and quarters for two single men.

On the night of 15th April, Acting-Serjeant A. J. Eves was murdered when on duty at Hazeleigh, near Maldon. Two men were convicted of this murder and sentenced to death, one of whom was executed, and the capital sentence commuted to penal servitude for life in the case of the other.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

* Exclusive of four constables appointed at private cost.

Inspected on 24th July, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief officer, two inspectors, six serjeants, and 31 constables. There are also four constables appointed at private cost.

The chief officer is appointed inspector under the following Acts: "Weights and Measures," "Adulteration," "Explosives," and "Petroleum." He is also inspector of hackney carriages; and, in conjunction with one of the inspectors, acts as assistant relieving officer. A serjeant acts as port sanitary inspector.

The number of licensed houses is unaltered, but there was a decrease of 10 in the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness during the year, and of six in the number convicted.

Fourteen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

No steps had been taken at the time of inspection to remedy the defects in the cell and police accommodation, to which reference was made last year; but certain building operations in the rear of the Town Hall seemed to the inspector calculated to impair what little light and ventilation reached the cells. The cells are faulty and defective in construction, ill-ventilated and badly lighted, quite unfit to detain prisoners in. The offices for the chief officer and his clerk, and the reserve room for the officer on night duty at the station, are inadequate and unhealthy.

The books and returns were well kept.

The numbers and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained; but in view of the above condition of the police station the inspector cannot report that the management of this force is satisfactory.

* Exclusive of one inspector and four constables appointed under 3 & 4 Vict., c. 88, s. 19.

Inspected in June, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief constable, seven superintendents, one of whom is deputy chief constable and another is chief clerk, seven inspectors, 20 serjeants, and 157 constables. The force has been augmented by one serjeant and 15 constables for permanent duty, and by four constables as a reserve, no one of whom, however, is to be actually enrolled until a constable of the force shall have given or received notice of retirement or discharge. There are also an inspector and four constables appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

The chief constable is chief inspector of weights and measures, food and drugs, and explosives and petroleum. Two superintendents act as inspectors of common lodging-houses, and four as assistant relieving officers; two inspectors and two serjeants also act in the latter capacity.

There is a decrease of one in the number of public-houses, and of eight beerhouses. The number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness increased by 55, and, of those convicted, by 36.

Ten members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The Inspector visited nine stations, and found them clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected on 26th June, when there was a vacancy for one constable.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief officer, three serjeants, and 10 constables.

On 21st March, Mr. A. F. Blatch, from the Borough of Northampton Police, was appointed chief officer, his predecessor having been called upon to resign.

There is an increase shown of one beerhouse, but the return made last year is said to have been incorrect. The number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness increased by 34, and of those convicted by 22.

Three members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order, but much needed new premises are being provided, and will shortly take the place of those now existing, which are wholly inadequate.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected on 11th April, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force, which can hardly be considered sufficient for the requirements of the town, is one chief officer, four superintendents, five inspectors, one of whom is chief clerk, 24 serjeants, seven of whom are detectives, and 124 constables.

The chief officer acts as billet master.

The number of beerhouses have decreased by six, but the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness shows an increase of 168, and convictions 165. The figures for last year, however, refer to the enlarged area of the borough for the whole twelve months ending 29th September 1893, but to the whole of the present area for only a portion of the previous year.

One hundred and thirty-three members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

Twenty-five officers and constables were sent on 1st September to assist the County of Derby Police in consequence of a strike among colliers in that district.

Inspected on 25th May, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief officer, two inspectors, eight serjeants, and 31 constables, being an increase of one constable.

The pay of the chief officer has been raised from 285 l. to 300 l. a year, and the maximum rate for inspectors to 107 l. 18 s.

The chief officer is inspector under the Sale of Food and Drugs, Weights and Measures, Explosives and Petroleum Acts; and also of common lodging houses, hackney-carriages, and canal boats. One of the inspectors is also an inspector of common lodging houses, and one of the serjeants is so appointed for food and drugs, and weights and measures.

There is a decrease of one each in public and beer houses; and a decrease of 35 in the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness, and of 20 in the convictions.

Thirty-five members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

New police premises have been provided, comprising a charge office and six cells, parade and day rooms for constables, offices for the chief and detective officers, store-room and parade ground. These were much required, and appear to be satisfactory in arrangement and construction.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected on 8th June, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment is one chief officer, one superintendent, two inspectors, one of whom is chief clerk, 16 serjeants and 94 constables. One of the officers shown last year as an inspector has been given the rank of superintendent with an increase of 30*l.* a year in his pay, and a serjeant has been substituted for a constable.

The chief officer acts as inspector of hackney carriages, street obstructions, petroleum and other explosives, and as billet master. He is also chief of the fire brigade, which is composed of six serjeants and 43 constables.

There is a decrease of 12 in the number of public-houses, of three in the number of beerhouses, while 19 fewer persons were proceeded against for drunkenness during the year, and 10 fewer convicted.

No members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

On 9th September application was made by the chief constable of Derbyshire for assistance in consequence of a strike among the colliers in that county, and the police authority despatched 20 men in response to it.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

* Exclusive of one constable appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

Inspected in June, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief constable, seven superintendents, one of whom is deputy chief constable, and another is chief clerk, nine inspectors, 17 serjeants, and 118 constables. There is also one constable appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

The whole force act as inspectors under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, and six superintendents, and two inspectors under the Explosives and Petroleum Acts.

There is a decrease of one in the numbers of public-houses, but an increase of two beerhouses; while the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness is fewer by 18, and the convictions are fewer by 22.

Thirteen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

On 7th September, at the request of the chief constable of Derbyshire, 30 officers and men were sent to that county to reinforce the police there during a strike among the colliers.

The Inspector visited seven stations and found them clean and in good order, but the cells at Thrapston are neither adequate to the requirements of the district nor suitable in arrangement, the ventilation, &c., being bad.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected on 22nd June, when there was a vacancy for one constable.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief officer, four inspectors, one of whom is the chief clerk, 12 serjeants, and 60 constables. The number of inspectors has been reduced from five to four, but that of the serjeants has been increased by three, and of the constables by four, showing an augmentation of six in the two latter ranks.

The chief officer and an inspector are inspectors of hackney carriages; an inspector is inspector of explosives and coroner's officer, and a serjeant is inspector of common lodging-houses.

There has been a reduction of one in the number of public-houses, and of 19 in the number of beerhouses; but an increase of 58 persons proceeded against for drunkenness, and of 55 in the number of convictions.

Sixty-two members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

On the application of the chief constable of Derbyshire 30 officers and constables were sent to reinforce the police of that district during the strike of colliers.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

* Exclusive of two constables appointed at private cost.

Inspected on 1st July, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force, which has been augmented by one constable, is one chief officer, two inspectors, six serjeants, and 47 constables. The pay of the chief officer has been raised from 275*l.* to 315*l.* a year.

The chief officer acts as inspector of weights and measures.

There is no alteration in the number of licensed houses. but 27 more persons were proceeded against for drunkenness, and 26 more convicted than during the previous year.

No members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order; they are inadequate for the requirements of the city, but new premises are in course of erection.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, number, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

* Exclusive of one constable appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88. s. 19.

Inspected in July, when there were vacancies for two constables.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief constable, eight superintendents, one of whom is deputy chief constable and another is chief clerk, one inspector, 23 serjeants, and 129 constables. There is also one constable appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

The number of beerhouses has decreased by one, but the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness increased by 17, and of those convicted by 18 during the year.

No. 1 Eastern Counties, Midland, and North Wales District.

One hundred and twenty-eight members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The municipal borough of Much Wenlock is watched by the county police.

The Inspector visited 17 stations, and found them clean and in good order. New stations have been built at Pontesbury and at Dawley. The former comprises charge office and three cells, with house, office, stables, &c., for a superintendent, and a court-room, with magistrates' and other necessary rooms; the latter has a charge-office and two cells, with a house for a married serjeant and one for a married constable. The station at Wellington is, in the Inspector's opinion, quite unfit for its purpose, and its use should not be continued much longer. The cells are ill-arranged and badly constructed, opening directly on to the living room of the serjeant's house. Every sound made by prisoners is audible all over the house, and offensive smells from the cells pervade it. There is nothing to prevent communication with prisoners from outside, and there are no means of preventing it, as the yard is overlooked by neighbouring lights. There is no lavatory for the use of prisoners, and they have to be taken into the back kitchen of the house to wash themselves. There is no office for the superintendent, nor waiting-room for persons having business at the police office, and the accommodation is altogether inadequate. The station at Bishop's Castle is unfit for detaining prisoners on remand in.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Special call for assistance was made on this force by the police authorities of Montgomeryshire during the trial of an election petition, and 35 men were sent in response to it.

* Exclusive of 13 constables appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

No. 1. Eastern Counties, Midland, and North Wales District.

Inspected in March, when there was a vacancy for one inspector.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief constable, 17 superintendents, one of whom is deputy chief constable, one is chief clerk, and two others are chief superintendents, 17 inspectors, 80 serjeants, and 515 constables; but on 29th September there was a vacancy for one superintendent, and there was one serjeant temporarily in excess of the fixed number. The force has been increased by one serjeant and eight constables during the year. There are also 13 constables appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

The number of public-houses has been reduced by 12 and of beerhouses by seven. The number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness decreased by 466, and of those convicted by 445 during the year.

Four hundred and seventeen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The municipal boroughs of Burslem, Burton-upon-Trent, Longton, Stafford, Stoke-upon-Trent, Wednesbury, and West Bromwich, are watched by the county police.

The Inspector visited 43 stations, and found them clean; but the cell accommodation at many of them is inadequate, and the nature of the accommodation for constables at some of them is indifferent. At Lichfield a proper station with cells is urgently required.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

The difficulty between employers and employed in the coal trade caused some amount of extra strain on the police during the year in the protection of property where outbreaks of violence occurred or were apprehended, but no extraneous assistance was required in aid of the constabulary of the county. Two outbreaks of violence occurred, but were not of a very serious nature, and they were suppressed without difficulty.

The Parish of Upper Arley, with a population of 647, has been transferred to Worcestershire for police purposes.

Inspected on 13th May, when the force was complete.

The authorised establishment of the force is one chief officer, four inspectors, five serjeants, and 45 constables.

The pay of the chief officer has been raised from 250*l.* to 300*l.* a year.

The chief officer is inspector of explosives and of hackney carriages, and is assistant relieving officer. One of the inspectors acts as coroner's officer.

The number of public-houses has been reduced by one; but 24 more persons were proceeded against for drunkenness during the year, and 15 more were convicted.

Twenty-five members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but the ventilation of the cells is very unsatisfactory, and the want of proper accommodation for the office work of the force, and for parading and relieving the men, must materially impair the efficiency and working of the force unless speedily remedied. The Inspector has been assured that steps are being taken to improve these defects.

The authorised establishment of the force, which was complete on 29th September, is one chief officer, one inspector, four serjeants, and 19 constables.

The extra duties performed by the police are as follows: The chief officer is chief inspector of weights and measure, asssistant relieving officer for vagrants, billet master, and inspector of lodging-houses, hackney carriages, and under Explosives

Explosives and Petroleum Acts. The inspector and two serjeants are appointed inspectors of common lodging-houses, and a constable is assistant-inspector of weights and measures.

There is an increase of three in the number of "off" licences, and a decrease of one in the refreshment-houses with wine licences; while 31 fewer persons were proceeded against for drunkenness and 22 fewer were convicted than in the previous year.

Seventeen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

No. 2.
Northern District.

ANNUAL REPORT of Sir Herbert Croft, Bart., INSPECTOR OF CONSTABULARY and POLICE FORCES in the NORTHERN DISTRICT, for the Year ended 29th September 1893.

To the Right Honourable H. H. Asquith, Q.C., M.P., Her Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department.

Lugwardine Court, Hereford,

Sir,

I HAVE the honour to submit my Reports for the year ended Michaelmas, 29th September 1893, on the several Police Forces maintained in the Northern District, which comprises Cheshire, Cumberland, Derbyshire, Durham, Lancashire, Northumberland, Nottinghamshire, Yorkshire, and Westmorland.

There are 67 forces in all, 11 for Counties and Ridings, 30 for County Boroughs, and 26 for Boroughs other than County Boroughs; the forces for the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland are, however, under one chief constable, and, for executive purposes, still form one force.

The authorised strength of all the forces amounts, in the aggregate, to 11,943 persons, being an increase on the number in the previous year of 206.

The population of the Police County Districts, according to the new edition (1893) of the Census of 1891, is 5,449,515, and of the Borough Police Districts, is 5,236,818; total, 10,686,333.

In the Counties there are 4,746 constables, and the proportion of the population to each constable is 1148·23.

In the Boroughs there are 7,197 constables, and the proportion to each constable is 727·63.

There are also 733 constables appointed at private cost, an increase of 17, bringing the total up to 12,676 men.

Omitting such private constables, the proportion of the population to each constable in Counties and Boroughs combined amounts to 894·77.

The vacancies existing in the several forces at the end of the year (Michaelmas, 1893) amounted to 95 of all ranks, on the authorised strength of 11,943 men; and, omitting the not yet embodied men (33) of a reserve of 40 constables, who may be appointed in times of emergency in the West Riding of Yorkshire, the real effective strength amounted to 11,910, and the number of vacancies to 65, of which number 28 were wanting at Liverpool, and six at Manchester.

There are 27 municipal boroughs, with populations varying from 13,917 to 57,206, watched by the police of their respective counties, viz., two in Cheshire, one in Cumberland, one in Derbyshire, four in Durham, eleven in Lancashire, one in Notts, six in the West Riding, and one in the North Riding of Yorkshire.

The following changes have taken place among the chief officers during the year. At Rochdale Mr. J. Wilkinson retired from ill-health, after 11 years' excellent service as chief constable there, and was awarded a pension. Mr. Charles Buck, chief constable of Margate, has been appointed chief constable of Rochdale.

No. 2. Northern District.

At Dewsbury, Captain Despard, from the Salford force, has been appointed head constable, as successor to Mr. Weatherald, who has retired.

At Clitheroe, Serjeant Walter Clayton, of that force, has been appointed chief constable.

St. John's Ambulance Society.—Including private constables, no less than 5,953 members of the forces of the Northern District hold certificates of this excellent and humane society, or their equivalents. In 17 forces there has been an increase of altogether 1,017 certificates; and in 14 forces a slight decrease of altogether 127, giving a net increase of 990. Glossop, for the first time, has certificated ambulance men to report, and at last a class has been started in Beverley Borough, so that in every force in this district men have received, or are receiving, this valuable instruction; but in one or two counties there seems to be a difficulty about lectures, and no doubt the distances to go are sometimes great. And in three or four of the largest towns this good movement should certainly receive much more encouragement than it does at present from the local authorities.

At the Stockton Inspection a grateful letter to a constable for giving valuable first aid to the victim of an accident at some works was read on parade, and the writer, who is connected with the management of the works, stated that it was by no means the first case in which the same constable, who is there as watchman, had given useful help under similar circumstances.

Weights and Measures.—In many places the inspectors of weights, &c., and their assistants now are not police constables; and gradually the offices of such inspectors are being located in houses quite apart from the police stations, but in some places the inspection still takes place at the police station; and I have again heard serious complaints about the interference with the police in the discharge of their duties on this ground, and also complaints because of the employment of constables at the aforesaid separate offices as assistants to such inspectors of weights, &c.; and it does seem to be undesirable and an interference with police duty to so employ constables in the manual labour of marking and testing weights, &c., when the inspector is not a police officer.

The Police Act continues to work, on the whole, satisfactorily. In one or two places the age limit has been recently abolished, or modified, and there are again very few cases of unlooked-for and premature retirement for the sake of a pension.

The Clothing, &c.—On the whole I consider the officers to be fully supplied with generally good, serviceable, and well-fitted equipments and clothing, but in some places they might be served out to the men earlier in the year.

Licensing, &c.—There has been a net decrease in the number of public-houses by 69; and a similar decrease in the number of all beerhouses by 120.

For Drunkenness, &c., there has been a net decrease in prosecutions of 1,852, and a similar decrease in convictions of 2,335. It is remarkable that in Newcastle-on-Tyne there has been an increase in prosecutions of 1,399, and in convictions of 1,315.

Tables and Reports.—Seven tables are appended, and a report from each separate force.

The station-houses, offices and cells generally were in good order, and well maintained. Some requiring improvement (Kendal, to wit) are in course of alteration. Others are likely to be replaced by new buildings at no very distant date.

The officers of the Constabulary in the Northern District generally are healthy and efficient, and they appear to be contented; while, on the whole, there has been no scarcity of suitable recruits.

Altogether 110 men have been dismissed during the year, and 153 were called upon to resign.

There

There has been occasion, owing to times of emergency at Hull and elsewhere, to borrow men for special service from other forces during the year. In each case of course there is an agreement for payment of such services; but these agreements vary so much in details that I have reason to think that a general form of agreement would give satisfaction all round, and would certainly save a great deal of time, which is now occupied in negotiation, and that, too, at a crisis.

I have, &c.
(signed) Herbert Croft,
H.M.'s Inspector of Constabulary.

Inspected between Monday, 15th, and Saturday, 20th May, both inclusive, when there were vacancies for two constables.

Establishment 412. This force has been increased by two inspectors, 10 serjeants, and seven constables, to 412, and there are also two constables who are employed at New Brighton in summer.

Variations. Sixteen constables resigned voluntarily, 14 were called upon to do so, four were dismissed, and one constable died.

Three serjeants and four constables were pensioned.

N.B.—Extra pay for all so marked †, but only serjeants get extra pay for inspecting common lodging-houses.

Licensing Acts.—There has been a reduction of 10 in the number of public-houses, and a decrease of 14 of beerhouses with on licenses, and of two of beerhouses with off licenses. Total decrease, 26.

Seven fewer people were prosecuted for drunkenness, and 280 fewer convicted.

Ambulance.—Three hundred and thirteen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association. A slight increase of thirteen.

Special Duty.—At the request of the Chief Constable of the West Riding, 30 men went there in September 1893, and remained, for the most part, during the month; and 20 went to Flintshire on 10th September for one day.

All the divisions (11) were inspected, and 15 lock-ups and police stations; total, 26. All were clean and in good order.

The excellent new station at Northwich has been recently occupied.

In the Eddisbury Division the lock-up at Tarvin is bad, and a proper station should be there provided.

The Boroughs of Crewe and Hyde are policed by the county force.

The cells and offices at Runcorn are ill adapted for so important a place, and a new station is certainly necessary.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been well maintained.

* Exclusive of three inspectors and 32 constables appointed at private cost. The average population and inhabited houses (Table B.) are taken from the 1893 Edition of the 1891 Census.

No. 2. Northern District.

Inspected on Thursday, 23rd of March, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Authorised, 112.

Variations.—Two constables resigned voluntarily, and one was called upon to do so.

One inspector and one constable were pensioned, and one constable died.

There are no serjeants in this force.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is billet master and chief of the fire brigade, to which 18 constables are attached; and an inspector is appointed inspector under the Petroleum Acts, and of marine stores. All of these men, with the exception of the chief constable, have extra pay.

Licensing.—There has been a decrease by one of public-houses; also a decrease by 268 of prosecutions, and by 193 of convictions for drunkenness.

One hundred and thirty-seven members of the force hold the St. John's Ambulance Association certificates. This is an increase of eight, but the additional constables are included.

The cells and police offices (three) were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

One serjeant has a shilling a week extra pay, and badge, in "Merit class," which is open to serjeants and constables.

Inspected Friday, 16th June, when the force was complete.

Authorised Establishment.—Forty-five.

Variations.—Three constables resigned voluntarily, and three were pensioned.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is inspector of explosives, and, assisted by an inspector and serjeant, of common lodging-houses.

In public-houses there was a decrease by one in prosecutions, and also in convictions, but 62 more drunkards were prosecuted, and 44 more were convicted.

Twenty-five men recently obtained St. John's Ambulance certificates. This is satisfactory progress.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order. Iron gates will be shortly erected, in order to shut off the male from the female prisoners.

The books and returns were well kept.

Inspected on Wednesday, 12th April, when the force was complete.

Authorised Establishment, 11. There was again no change in this force during the year.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is inspector of common lodging-houses and of hackney carriages; also under the "Weights and Measures" and "Explosives" Acts; and is assistant relieving officer for vagrants, for which last he receives extra pay. There is a separate office for weights and measures.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses there was one more prosecution, but only one conviction altogether. There was one fewer prosecution for drunkenness, &c., and also one conviction less.

Every member of the force again holds a certificate from the St. John's Ambulance Association.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept, but some additional clerical assistance should be given.

Inspected on Thursday, 4th May, when the force was complete.

Establishment authorised 26.—During the year one inspector died, a serjeant was promoted, and a constable was made serjeant, two constables resigned voluntarily, and one was discharged with a gratuity. One serjeant is clerk.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is inspector of weights and measures, assisted by a constable, also inspector of hackney carriages, and superintendent of the fire-brigade, to which the inspector, two serjeants, and six constables also belong, and to all of them for these duties extra pay is given.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses, two were successfully prosecuted. Beerhouses licensed to sell for consumption on premises, proceedings were taken against one of these, but there was no conviction.

For drunkenness there were 36 fewer prosecutions, and 35 convictions.

At the end of the year 15 members of the force were reported to hold certificates of St. John's Ambulance Association: a decrease of one.

The cells and police offices visited (2) were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but the force is certainly rather small for the population, and an increase may be found economical in the end.

Inspected on Wednesday, 5th April, when the force was complete.

Establishment 74.—Variations, one serjeant was discharged with a gratuity, one constable was pensioned, and two constables resigned voluntarily.

Extra Duties.—One inspector collects the payments of parents of children in reformatory and industrial schools, and receives a percentage; and the chief officer, an inspector, a serjeant, and nine constables belong to the fire brigade, and, excepting the chief, receive extra pay. The chief officer, with the aid of three inspectors, acts as inspector of Hackney Carriages, and under the Explosives and Petroleum Acts.

Licensing, &c.—There were seven more prosecutions and also convictions of public-houses. Of beerhouses with on licenses there were eight fewer prosecutions, and a decrease of convictions by seven. For drunkenness 69 more people were prosecuted, and 67 more convicted.

Twenty-three members of the force again hold the St. John's Ambulance Association's certificates. This is a small proportion of the force.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order, but are dark, and there is not room enough. In fact a new police station is required here.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but it is certainly small for the population, and should be increased.

Inspected on Tuesday, 20th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Authorised 41. Variations, one constable resigned voluntarily, and one retired with a pension.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable, two inspectors, two serjeants, and one constable act as serjeants-at-mace; the inspector of nuisances, not a constable, inspects common lodging-houses, and the chief constable hackney coaches; and, assisted by a constable, also inspects under the Explosives and Petroleum, and the Cattle

Cattle Diseases and Weights and Measures Acts; for which the constable, in each case, receives extra pay.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses have decreased by two, with four fewer prosecutions and convictions, and two fewer endorsements of licenses. The only prosecution of a beerhouse, with an on license, failed. For drunkenness there were 55 more prosecutions, and 59 more convictions.

Thirty-nine members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association; an increase of 11.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

* Exclusive of 13 constables appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 89.

Inspected on Monday, 8th May; and between Monday, 17th July, and Friday, 21st July, both inclusive, when the force was complete, but an additional constable has since been appointed.

Establishment.—Authorised, 292. There has been a reduction of four in inspectors, and an increase of four in serjeants, and an addition of five constables.

Variations.—One inspector and 13 constables resigned voluntarily; one constable was called upon to do so, and two constables were dismissed. Two superintendents, two inspectors, and three constables were pensioned, and one constable died.

No. 2. Northern District.

Extra Duties.—The whole force, with the exception of the chief clerk and three constables, are appointed inspectors under the Cattle Diseases Act, for which extra pay is given to all so engaged, excepting the chief constable. The chief constable and 11 superintendents are inspectors of explosives; the superintendents are also inspectors under the Chimney Sweepers and Pedlars Act, and an inspector is street inspector.

Licensing, &c.—A decrease of public-houses by 12; six more prosecutions, and seven more convictions; a decrease by 29 of beerhouses with on licenses, with six fewer prosecutions, and two fewer convictions. Of beerhouses with off licenses, a decrease of 21; of these, one prosecution less, and two fewer c tions. For drunkenness, 274 fewer prosecutions, and a decrease by 390 of convictions.

One hundred and fifty-eight members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association, which shows a large and satisfactory increase of 66.

All the divisional stations (11) were visited, and also 11 lock-ups; total, 22. All were clean and in good order. In the Belper Division the population is over 32,000, and there are only 21 men, that is 1,560 to each, so that there more police are required; and also a new station. The only office is an upper cell, except the dining-room of the superintendent. The cells are very old-fashioned, and some of them are under the sleeping-rooms of the superintendent. And there is no room for the men from a distance. At Castleton a police station is required, as the old station is not healthy, and the constable is now in lodgings at Castleton. A new station is being erected at Matlock Bridge, but as a lock-up is also necessary at Matlock Bath, more cell accommodation is required there without delay, as at present there is only one cell, which is entered through a dwelling-house, and there are a good many prisoners there.

The borough of Ilkeston is policed by the county force.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected on Friday, 21st July, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Authorised, 30. Since last year the borough has been enlarged, and the force increased by two serjeants and 11 constables.

Variations.—One constable resigned voluntarily, and one was called upon to do so. A serjeant was pensioned off.

Extra

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is billet master, inspector of hackney carriages, common lodging-houses, and under the Explosives, Petroleum, and (assisted by a constable) Weights and Measures Acts. Four serjeants and two constables compose the fire brigade; and all receive extra pay for so acting.

Licensing, &c.—An increase in public-houses by 12, and four fewer prosecutions; an increase in beerhouses also by 18, with on licenses. Sixty-eight more people were prosecuted for drunkenness, and 65 more convicted.

Twenty-two members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates; a very satisfactory increase of nine.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

Variations.—Five constables resigned voluntarily, one was called upon to do so, and one was dismissed. An inspector, a serjeant, and two constables were pensioned.

Extra Duties.—The superintendent and a serjeant are inspectors of hackney carriages; and the chief officer is head of the fire brigade in name, but in fact there is a separate fire brigade of seven auxiliaries, who are not police.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, an increase in prosecutions by two, and of convictions by three, and two more licenses were endorsed; of beerhouses with on licenses, five fewer prosecutions and convictions. Beerhouses with off licenses, increased by one, and no convictions. For drunkenness, &c., 68 fewer prosecutions, and 38 fewer convictions.

Fifty members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates; a slight decrease of three.

Inspected on Saturday, 8th April, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Authorised, 22.

Variations.—During the year two constables were dismissed, and an inspector was pensioned, and a serjeant was promoted to succeed him.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is superintendent of the fire brigade, for which he receives a small fee; also billet master, inspector of common lodging-houses, and inspector under the Weights and Measures, Cattle Diseases, Food and Drugs, Petroleum, and Explosives Acts.

Licensing, &c.—There were only two prosecutions altogether of public houses and beerhouses, and both failed. For drunkenness, there were 34 fewer prosecutions, and 35 fewer convictions.

Five men now hold certificates of St. John Ambulance Society. A class was first held here in 1892; another class is now formed.

The cells and police office were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but it is a small force for the population.

* Exclusive of three serjeants and 49 constables, appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.

† Fifty-eight serjeants and 41 constables are in receipt of the "Merit" or "Service" pay at 1*s.* 2*d.*, or 7*d.* a week, or both, in addition to the rates shown above.

Inspected from Monday, 12th June, to Thursday, 15th June, both inclusive, and again on Thursday, 13th, and Friday, 14th July.

Establishment.—Authorised, 530. The force has been increased by 31 (one inspector, five serjeants, and 21 constables). At the time of the inspection the augmentation had not been completed, and there were still wanting an inspector, five serjeants, and 13 constables, all of whom have been since appointed, but the force is still small for the population.

Variations.—Eighteen constables resigned voluntarily, eight were called upon to do so, and one was dismissed. One superintendent, one inspector, and one constable died; and two superintendents, one inspector, six serjeants, and eight constables were pensioned.

In this county the duties of inspectors of weights and measures, and und the Sale of Food and Drugs Act, are performed by officers appointed by the County Council, who have separate offices, and are not connected with the police.

Licensing, &c.—A decrease of four public-houses, with 17 more prosecutions, and 14 more convictions, but only one endorsement. An increase by four of beerhouses with on licenses, with three more prosecutions, and one more conviction. Of beerhouses with off licenses, an increase of six, with one prosecution and two convictions less. For drunkenness, &c., 419 more people were prosecuted, and 409 more convicted.

During the last three weeks of September 1893, 50 men of this force were lent to Derbyshire, 29 to Notts, and 50 to the West Riding. The cells and police offices visited at the 12 divisional stations and lock-ups (total 22) were clean, and in good order, except the drainage at Felling, which has been since set right. The accommodation at Jarrow has been recently much improved by the erection of an additional storey, with good bedrooms for 10 men, and by the rebuilding of two cells. The county station at Gateshead is not large enough, and there is no proper room for constables, and no drill ground. At Stockton the bedrooms want more windows, and there is no bath; and the messroom might be on the ground floor.

The boroughs of Darlington, West Hartlepool, Jarrow-on-Tyne, and Stockton-on-Tees, are policed by the county force.

Three hundred and sixty-one members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates; a slight decrease by five.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been well maintained.

* The acreage is taken from the 1893 edition of the 1891 Census, but the Return furnished to the Inspector gives the acreage, as of yore, at 1,260 acres. This would give 78 acres to each constable.

Inspected on Wednesday, 14th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Authorised, 16. There was no change in this force during the year.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is appointed assistant relieving officer for vagrants, billet master, and inspector under the Weights and Measures Act in the police yard, for which he has extra pay; also inspector under Explosives and Cattle Diseases Acts, three serjeants being appointed as assistants under the two latter Acts.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, one more prosecution and conviction. For drunkenness, 48 more prosecutions, and 40 more convictions.

Fifteen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association; an increase of one.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

Inspected on Monday, 12th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Authorised, 87. Since last year two serjeants have been added, and there has been a reduction by two in constables.

Variations.—Three constables resigned voluntarily, and three constables were dismissed.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is superintendent of the Fire Brigade (with an inspector in command), also inspector of explosives, and assistant relieving officer, for which he receives extra pay. One inspector and 18 constables act as firemen but all do police duty, and are paid extra for the time at fires. A constable is now inspector of hackney carriages.

Licensing, &c.—Only two prosecutions against public-houses and all beer-houses, with one conviction of the latter for drunkenness; 59 fewer prosecutions and 74 fewer convictions.

Twenty-nine members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association's certificates, a slight increase by four.

The cells and police offices (two) visited were clean and in good order.

Inspected on Saturday, 10th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 79.—The force has been increased by one inspector, and reduced by a constable. The chief clerk now ranks as serjeant. Variations, eight constables resigned voluntarily, three constables were called upon to do so, five constables were dismissed, and one constable was discharged with a gratuity.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is high constable, and inspector of explosives, and as such receives a small fee; he is also assistant inspector of common lodging-houses and nuisances, and superintendent of the fire brigade; a constable is collector of market tolls, and has extra pay. An inspector is fire brigade inspector, but receives no extra pay, and does police duty.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses have decreased by one, with three fewer prosecutions, but the same number of convictions, five. Beerhouses with off licenses again show an increase by one. For drunkenness 539 fewer people were prosecuted, and there were 627 fewer convictions.

Sixty-four members of the force hold certificates of St. John's Ambulance Association, and of that number 32 have medallions for extra efficiency. Twelve men are now undergoing instruction. The increase since last year is large and satisfactory, viz., 16.

All the buildings are new, and were opened on 6th June 1893. They are excellent, and contain residences for married men, as well as courts, cells and offices.

The cells and police offices (3) were clean and in good order.

Inspected on Monday, 12th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment 137.

Variations.—One constable resigned voluntarily, two were called upon to do so, and seven were dismissed. Reduced by one serjeant, and increased by one constable.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is superintendent of the River Wear Police, assistant relieving officer, and high constable; for all of which duties he receives additional salary.

He is also chief of the fire brigade, and 30 of the police form the brigade, and receive so much an hour for attending fires.

Licensing, &c.—A decrease of four in public-houses, with one fewer prosecution and conviction. In beerhouses, with on licences, a decrease of one. For drunkenness 47 fewer prosecutions, and 40 fewer convictions.

Thirty-four members of the force hold the St. John's Ambulance Association certificate. A decrease of seven, and it is to be hoped that more members will obtain certificates in future.

No. 2. Northern District.

The cells and police offices (2) were clean, and in good order. The B division's station in Hylton-road has been altered and improved. There are now good bedrooms for six men and a bathroom.

Care is required in making out the pay sheets, but otherwise the books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

† From the population of Lancashire 1,158, and from the acreage 597 acres, have been deducted and added to St. Helens, which Borough has been enlarged during the year by so much.
N.B.—Ninety-four serjeants, and 104 constables in "Merit Classes," receive 1 s. 2 d. a week extra pay.

Inspected between Wednesday 1st March and Tuesday 11th April, inclusive, when there were vacancies for seven constables.

Establishment authorised, 1,495. During the year the force has been increased by the addition of 13 inspectors, 1 serjeant, and 34 constables. These 13 inspectors and 13 of the constables are extra men for weights and measures. At Michaelmas, 1893, there were still three constables required to complete this addition.

Licensing, &c.—Five fewer public-houses; a diminution of prosecutions by 13, and of convictions by 11. Eleven fewer beerhouses with on licenses, and eleven more with off licenses; six more prosecutions of the former, and 10 more of the latter were prosecuted, with the result of eight and five more convictions respectively. Altogether seven licenses were endorsed. For drunkenness, 410 more prosecutions, but 36 fewer convictions.

One thousand and thirty-five members of the force hold certificates of St. John's Ambulance Association; a very satisfactory increase of 66.

All the divisions. 21, were inspected. The cells and police stations there and at the stations visited, 77, total 98, were clean and in good order. New stations have been completed during the year at Wheelton, for a married constable and a married serjeant; here there is a scarcity of water. Also a new station at Astley Bridge, in Bolton division, for a married serjeant, with two cells. Also at Rishton, in the Church division, for one married serjeant, with three cells. Also at Gorton, for a married serjeant and three single constables, with three cells; and at Failsworth, in the Manchester division, for one married serjeant, and three single constables, with three cells, where the ventilators in the cells are rather large. Also at Levenshulme, in the Manchester division, for a married serjeant and three single constables, with three cells. Also at Patricroft, in the Manchester division, for a married inspector, three single constables, with three cells. Also at West Derby, an excellent station, for a married serjeant, four single constables, and three cells. There is a want of water at Greenodd new station. At Golborne and Lower Ince there are new cubicles, but the stairs at the latter are dark. At Prestwich more accommodation is required for weights and measures. An adjoining shop was empty, and might be hired for the purpose. At Carnforth the office accommodation is insufficient, and the weights and measures should not be inspected at this small station, and it would be better to have the inspection at the market, where a room might be obtained for a small payment. At Chadderton, Milnrow, and Royton, lavatories are required, and at the latter it might be erected in the yard. Ere long a new station should be erected at Rochdale, and meanwhile another office for weights and measures should be at once hired, so as to give the constables an extra room. At Ormskirk the bedroom for single men is small, small and might be enlarged by the addition of the adjoining boxroom. At Darwen the windows of two cells look on to the street; this could be easily remedied by using these cells as a lavatory, and turning the store-room into cells. Police were lent from this force during the year to Cheshire (two days), Southport (two days), Stockport (two days), Salford (four days), Blackpool (21 days), and to Hull (45 days) on special duty. At first 35 men went there from 14th April and a further contingent of 37 on 6th May. All of them had left Hull on 27th May 1893.

No. 2. Northern District.

The boroughs of Bury, Chorley, Darwen, Eccles, Haslingden, Heywood, Middleton, Mossley, Nelson, Rawtenstall, and Widnes, are policed by the county force.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected on Friday the 3rd of March, when the force was complete, except one constable, and a probationer has been engaged.

Establishment.—Thirty-seven. The force is still rather small for the population.

Variations.—One constable resigned voluntarily, and another was called upon to do so.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer has recently ceased to be inspector of weights and measures, but is inspector under the Food and Drugs and Explosive Acts, and, with an inspector, acts under the Hackney Carriages Act.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, two fewer prosecutions, and also convictions; of beerhouses with on-licenses, two more prosecutions and four more convictions, with one endorsement.

For

For drunkenness, 22 fewer prosecutions, and 21 fewer convictions

Twenty members of the force again hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates.

* The acreage is taken from the 1893 edition of the 1891 Census, but the local returns give 1,391 acres. This would make nearly 35 acres to each constable.

Inspected on Friday, 10th March, when there was one vacancy, and one sick.

Establishment, 40.—The force has been recently increased by a constable.

Variations.—During the year one constable resigned voluntarily, and one was dismissed.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable (assisted by a constable) is inspector of Weights and Measures, and under the Cattle Diseases Act; also of hackney carriages and common lodging houses (assisted by two inspectors), and superintendent of the fire brigade, to which one inspector, one serjeant and nine constables also belong, for which they get extra pay.

Licensing.—Of beerhouses, with on licences there was one more prosecution and conviction.

For drunkenness 35 fewer prosecutions, and 42 fewer convictions.

Twenty-five members of the force hold certificates of St. John's Ambulance Association. A decrease by one.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

Inspected on 9th March, when there were vacancies for two constables, which it is not intended to fill up at present.

Authorised Establishment, 26. A constable acts as clerk.

Variations.—One constable resigned voluntarily, and one was dismissed.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is appointed inspector of common lodging-houses and hackney carriages, also under Dairies and Cowsheds Order, and under the Explosives, Weights and Measures, Food and Drugs, Cattle Diseases, and Petroleum Acts. An inspector acts as assistant inspector of Weights and Measures.

Licensing, &c.—Beerhouses with off licences have decreased by one. Altogether only two prosecutions and two convictions. For drunkenness, &c., 63 fewer people were prosecuted, and 60 fewer were convicted.

Twenty members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association. A decrease of one.

Inspected on Wednesday 29th March, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 57.

Variations.—One constable resigned voluntarily, and two constables were dismissed.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is inspector under the Shop Hours Act, for which he has extra pay; also inspector under the Explosives Act, and, assisted by a constable, under the Cattle Diseases Act. The superintendent, assisted by two constables, is inspector of weights and measures, and they all receive extra pay. An inspector is inspector of marine stores, common lodging-houses, and meat, and for the latter is remunerated.

Licensing, &c.—Altogether only two prosecutions and one conviction. For drunkenness 67 fewer prosecutions and 64 fewer convictions.

Twenty-one members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association; a slight increase of five.

The cells and police offices visited (4) were clean and in good order, but the windows of the cells at head-quarters should be enlarged.

The books and returns were well kept.

Establishment authorised, 126.—At Michaelmas 1893 there were again two vacancies for two constables.

Variations.—Four constables retired voluntarily, and two were dismissed. One inspector and two serjeants were pensioned, and one constable died during year.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is superintendent of the fire brigade, and 24 constables are firemen, but all do police duty. A constable is inspector of hackney carriages.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses one more prosecution and conviction, with two licenses endorsed. Of beerhouses with on licenses there were six more prosecutions and convictions with four licenses endorsed, of beerhouses with off licences ; an increase of eight houses. For drunkenness 67 more prosecutions and 62 more convictions.

Eighty-five members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates ; a decrease by eight, where an increase is desirable.

* The acreage is taken from the 1892 Edition of the 1891 Census; but the local return gives 4,243 acres, inclusive of foreshore; and 3,496 acres, exclusive of foreshore. The latter would give 116 acres to each constable.

Inspected Saturday, 18th March, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Increased to 36. Since the inspection six constables have been added to the force.

Variations.—Two constables resigned voluntarily, and two were called upon to do so.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is inspector, with the assistance of a constable, of weights and measures; also inspector of hackney carriages, boats, &c., bathing machines, and, assisted by a constable, of explosives, and also under the Petroleum Act. An inspector is superintendent of the fire-brigade, to which three constables are attached.

Licensing, &c.—Beerhouses with on-licenses have decreased by one; with off-licenses, a decrease by four; and three convictions altogether. For drunkenness, &c., 78 more prosecutions, and 62 more convictions.

Twenty seven members of the force hold certificates of the St. John's Ambulance Association; a decrease of two.

The cells and police offices visited (two) were clean and in good order; but the bedroom at the South Store station is hardly large enough for three men.

The police entered into occupation of the new police-station on 29th May 1893. The accommodation provided is very satisfactory, and there is a new house for the chief constable; and also separate offices for the chief constable, and for the inspectors, serjeants, detectives, and clerks, and a large room for constables, with quarters for a married inspector and constable, and also for 16 single constables. There is also a large room for sick men, a large recreation room, and a bathroom. There are 16 cells—13 in one corridor for males, and three in another corridor for females. The ventilation has yet to be tested, and a large parade yard has yet to be completed. A new and central station has at length been obtained, which was much wanted.

All these premises are new, and appear to be well planned and built.

The books and returns were well kept.

The numbers, management, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, and the increase of six constables may be, for a time, sufficient.

Inspected on Wednesday, 22nd March, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 64.—One inspector and a constable are employed as clerks at head-quarters.

Variations.—During the year two constables resigned voluntarily, and three were called upon to do so.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses three fewer prosecutions, and two fewer convictions. For drunkenness, &c., a decrease by 203 in prosecutions, and by 222 in convictions.

All the members of the force (64) hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association. This shows a very satisfactory increase of 15.

The books and returns were well kept.

The cells and police stations visited (3) were clean and in good order.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

* The population and the acreage taken from the 1893 Edition of the Census of 1891, but the old Return was 4,015 acres, which would give 50 acres to each constable. The old Return had population 87,058, which would give 1,088 to each constable.

Inspected Thursday, 2nd March, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 80.—There has been a decrease of an inspector and an increase of a serjeant since last year.

Variations.—A constable resigned voluntarily, and two were called upon to do so. An inspector and also a constable died.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is inspector of hackney carriages, common lodging-houses, and also of food and drugs, assisted by an inspector: also of weights and measures, assisted by a serjeant; and under the Explosives Act; and three serjeants and 16 constables (seven being a reserve) form the fire brigade, for which they receive extra pay. Of it the chief constable is superintendent.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses two fewer prosecutions and convictions. For drunkenness there were 38 fewer people prosecuted, and 42 fewer convicted.

Fifty-one members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates; a decrease by 13, which is to be regretted.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but one or two constables in addition in future may be required to attend in court, and also at the three outlying stations which it is intended to build to meet the large increase of population; and the population is said to be now 93,000.

Inspected on Friday, 3rd March, when the force was complete.

Variations.—On the resignation of the chief officer, Serjeant Walter Clayton was appointed chief constable. Serjeant Clayton has been 5½ years in this force, and eight years previously in the Lancashire County force. One constable was dismissed.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is inspector under the Weights and Measures, Food and Drugs, Explosives, and Cattle Diseases Acts; of common lodging-houses, markets and fairs, and he is assistant relieving officer. The serjeants are also inspectors of common lodging-houses, markets and fairs, and a constable is assistant inspector of weights and measures.

Licensing, &c.—The only prosecution, against a public-house, failed. Of drunkenness, &c., 15 fewer prosecutions and 17 fewer convictions.

Seven members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance certificates; an increase of two.

The police office was clean and in good order, and the cells are also used by county prisoners, which arrangement seems to answer.

The books and returns were not satisfactory, but are likely to be better kept in future.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been on the whole efficiently maintained.

° The acreage and population are taken from the 1893 edition of the 1891 Census. The local return gives 1,680 acres, which would be 62 acres to each constable.

Inspected on Monday, 27th March, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 27.

Variations.—One inspector and three constables resigned voluntarily, and two constables were called upon to do so; and a serjeant was pensioned.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable has been recently appointed inspector under the Food and Drugs, Hackney Carriages, and Contagious Diseases of Animals Acts, and, assisted by four serjeants and a constable, of common lodging-houses. The chief constable is now in command of the fire brigade; the inspector acts as assistant superintendent of the fire brigade, which consists of 16 artizans, none of whom are policemen. The chief constable is also now inspector of weights and measures, the office of which is in the fire brigade yard, with a separate entrance. In the office of weights, &c., there is an artisan for manual labour, but he is not in the force.

At the time of the inspection the market was attended to by a constable, who did not do police duty, though sworn in as one of the force. This has been recently altered, and the man has been withdrawn from the market, and does regular police duty.

Licensing, &c.—No increase of licensed houses, or decrease, and no prosecutions.

For Drunkenness, &c.—Twenty-five fewer prosecutions, and 20 fewer convictions.

Twenty members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association, a decrease of five.

The cells and police offices visited (two) were clean and in good order, but better accommodation at head-quarters is necessary.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but the force is a small one for the population, and should be increased by an inspector and one or two constables.

* Exclusive of 399 of all ranks additionally appointed, viz., 373 for the docks, and 26 private duty, including fire brigade.
† The population and acreage are taken from the 1893 edition of the census of 1891.

Inspected Thursday, 13th, and Friday, 14th April, when there were vacancies for three serjeants and nine constables.

Establishment authorised, 1,294.—There is one superintendent less, one chief inspector more, three serjeants less, and two constables more, a total of one less than last year. There are, however, 13 additional constables more, viz., two more serjeants, but one constable less in the fire brigade, and there are 12 more dock police constables, who are paid by the dock company, but get pensions out of the police fund, and are interchangeable for police duty.

Variations.—One constable died in the execution of his duty, being struck by a stone while quelling a street disturbance; two constables were killed, by the falling of a wall, while engaged in extinguishing a fire; 34 constables resigned voluntarily, and 10 were called upon to do so; 17 constables were dismissed; two of the inspectors, seven serjeants, and 28 constables were pensioned, and eight constables were discharged with a gratuity; two serjeants and 11 constables died, and a constable absconded; total, 120.

Extra Duties.—An inspector and a constable are employed to collect fees from parents of children in reformatory and industrial schools; and an inspector, a serjeant, and a constable are inspectors under the Explosives Act, but none of them receive extra pay for so acting.

No. 2. Northern District.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses have decreased by 21, with eight fewer prosecutions, but three more convictions, and two endorsements of licenses. Beer-houses with on licenses have decreased by 14, with two fewer prosecutions, but four more convictions.

For Drunkenness, &c.—A slight increase by 24 of prosecutions, which again number just over 9,000, but in 1891 there were over 11,000. This year there are 174 more convictions, and 638 cases were dismissed.

Six hundred and forty-two members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association, an increase of 72; a very satisfactory increase, and here ambulance aid is often required.

Ten stations were visited, including the main bridewell, and the cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept, but the accommodation is quite insufficient. In fact the time has come, with so large a force and so important a city, for new offices and a main bridewell. A site might be found by pulling down the existing offices and bridewell, which are close together, and in a very central situation.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected

Inspected on Friday, 7th, and Saturday, 8th April, when there were 22 vacancies.

Establishment, 1,031.—Two additional inspectors have been appointed, and the force has at the end of the year vacancies still for six constables, which should be at once filled up.

Variations.—Fifteen constables resigned voluntarily, 10 were called upon to do so, and two constables were dismissed. Four inspectors, two serjeants, and eight constables were pensioned, and one constable was discharged with a gratuity. One inspector, a serjeant, and five constables died.

Licensing, &c., of Public-houses.—Ten more prosecutions, and four more convictions, and four of the whole number were on one license. Beerhouses with on licenses have decreased in number by 45 ; with 15 fewer prosecutions and 29 fewer convictions, and one endorsement. Of beerhouses with off licenses there are four more, and one more prosecution and conviction.

For Drunkenness, &c.—Two more prosecutions and 64 more convictions.

Six hundred and nine members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association. This is a very large and satisfactory increase of nearly 300 (286) in a city where ambulance aid is often required.

The cells and police offices at the stations (11) visited were clean and in good order.

Inspected on Wednesday, 10th April, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 142.—The force has been recently increased by the addition of an inspector, two serjeants, and six constables; total, nine. A new scale of pay has been adopted, and is appended.

Variations.—Two constables were called upon to resign; an inspector and also a constable were pensioned.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is inspector of weights and measures, superintendent of lamplighters, and chief of the fire brigade, to which four inspectors, four serjeants, and 27 constables belong, and they all receive extra pay, and all do police duty. Two inspectors and a constable are also inspectors of weights and measures, common lodging-houses, and hackney carriages. With the approval of the Board of Trade, the office of weights and measures is above the fire brigade station.

Licensing, &c.—Beerhouses with on licenses have decreased by one; with four fewer prosecutions, and three fewer convictions; of beerhouses with off licenses, there has been an increase by two.

For Drunkenness, &c.—There were 21 more prosecutions, and 37 more convictions.

Sixty-one members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association's certificates, a decrease by two.

No. 2. Northern District.

Inspected on Thursday, 16th March, when the force was complete, but two men were suspended.

Establishment, 110.—The force has been increased during the year by a serjeant, and reduced by a constable.

At Michaelmas 1893 there was a vacancy for a constable.

Variations.—One constable resigned, and three were dismissed. An inspector and four constables were pensioned. A serjeant died.

Extra Duties.—The superintendent and four inspectors are inspectors of hackney carriages and of explosives; two inspectors supervise common lodging-houses, and receive extra pay for so doing, and one is inspector under the Cattle Diseases Act.

Licensing, &c.—A decrease by one in public-houses, with one fewer prosecution, and two more convictions. Of beerhouses, with on licenses, five fewer prosecutions, and a conviction in each case, with two licenses endorsed.

For Drunkenness, &c.—Eighty more prosecutions, and 53 more convictions.

The accommodation for the police is bad, and there is no drill shed, but there is a prospect of new municipal buildings before long.

Thirty-nine members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association's certificates. A serious decrease of no less than 15.

The cells and police offices (two) were clean, and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, number, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but more police are required here for the new docks.

* The Acreage and Population are taken from the 1893 edition of the 1891 Census.

Inspected on Saturday, 6th May, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 73.—Since the inspection the force has been increased by three inspectors and decreased by three constable s.

Variations.—The chief constable, Mr. Wilkinson, has had to retire owing to ill-health after 11 years' service here, and has a pension. Mr. Charles Buck, late chief constable of Margate, was in June 1893 appointed chief constable here. A constable also retired on a pension. One constable retired voluntarily, and one was called upon to do so.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is inspector of weights and measures, and, with the assistance of an inspector, of hackney carriages, of common lodging-houses, also under the Cattle Diseases and Explosives Acts, and is billet master. An inspector is superintendent of the fire brigade, to which 19 constables also belong, and they all receive extra pay.

Licensing, &c.—Of beerhouse with on licences a decrease of two, with four more prosecutions and convictions.

For drunkenness an increase by eight in prosecutions, and by four in convictions. No less than 75 were discharged out of 335 prosecutions, because a defendant is allowed to go free on his first appearance.

Sixty-six members of the force hold certificates from St. John's Ambulance Association, an increase by 19, which is very satisfactory.

No. 2. Northern District

The cells and police offices visited (three) were clean and in good order, but the two outlying stations require iron doors, as they open into the street.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but an increase of the number of constables may be advisable.

* There are also four constables appointed at private cost.

† By a recent Act of Parliament the borough was extended on September 18, 1893, by 597 acres, with an estimated population of 1,158, and that acreage and population is here added, and has been deducted from Lancashire.

‡ The chief constable is allowed a residence and also coal and gas.

Inspected on Friday, 17th of March, when the force was complete, and then numbered 71 men.

Establishment, at the end of year, 75.—Since the inspection the force has been increased by two constables, and again in September it was decided to add two constables more to meet the extended area, and of these one has already been appointed, so that on September 30th there was still a vacancy, which it was intended to at once fill up. Time will shew whether the increase is sufficient, but it is probable that one or two more detectives and constables will be required.

Variati o

Variations.—One serjeant resigned voluntarily, one constable was called upon to do so, and one constable was dismissed.

Extra duties.—The chief constable is inspector of hackney carriages and common lodging-houses; also assisted by two constables, under the Weights and Measures, Food and Drugs, Explosives, and Cattle Diseases Acts, with the assistance of two inspectors as to the last Act. A constable is inspector of meat. The chief officer and three inspectors are inspectors under the Shop Hours Act.

The fire brigade includes auxiliaries, and to it eight constables are attached, who do police duty and receive extra pay for each fire and each fortnightly practice. Two constables in first class B. receive extra pay for acting as assistant inspectors of Weights and Measures.

Licensing, &c.—Two more public-houses, with seven fewer prosecutions, and four fewer convictions. Beerhouses with on licences an increase by two, with three fewer prosecutions, and one fewer in convictions.

For drunkenness, &c.—276 fewer prosecutions, and 271 fewer convictions, but only 29 were discharged.

Seventy-two members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance certificates: an increase by one, although in 1892 all the members of the force held certificates.

The cells and police offices visited (2) were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

No. 2. Northern District.

Inspected on Thursday, April 6th, when there were vacancies for two constables, and one man was suspended.

Establishment, 330.—The chief clerk is now returned as a superintendent. There is an additional constable, making altogether 283 constables. At Michaelmas there was a vacancy for an inspector.

Variations.—A constable resigned voluntarily, and three were called upon to do so and five were dismissed; an inspector, two serjeants, and four constables were pensioned. And an inspector, a serjeant and three constables died.

Extra duties.—Eight inspectors are inspectors under the Explosives Act; one is a coroner's officer, and one inspector of hackney carriages.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, two fewer prosecutions. Of beerhouses with on licences again a decrease, and by five; with one more conviction, and one licence endorsed. Beerhouses with off licences have increased by two; with two fewer prosecutions and one conviction less, with one licence endorsed. For drunkenness, &c., 82 fewer prosecutions, and 59 fewer convictions.

One hundred and thirty-nine members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates. A satisfactory increase by 33.

The cells and police offices visited (10) were clean and in good order.

* The acreage and population are taken from the 1893 Edition of the 1891 Census. The Local Return gives the acreage at 7,526, but this probably includes the foreshore, which is not inhabitable. This acreage would give 147 acres to each constable.

Inspected

Inspected on Tuesday, 21st March, when the force was complete.

Establishment now 51. There has been an increase by two inspectors, and three constables, but there is a serjeant less. Total increase 4. Variations, two constables resigned voluntarily, and two were called upon to do so.

Extra duties.—The chief constable is inspector under the Explosives and Cattle Diseases Acts, and of hackney carriages, assisted in the two latter duties by an inspector; and the latter, with another inspector, a serjeant, and three constables, form the fire brigade, for which extra pay is given to the five last named, but they do daily police duty.

Licensing, &c.—Of beerhouses with on and off licenses altogether but three prosecutions, and two convictions.

For drunkenness, &c., 14 more prosecutions, and two more convictions.

Forty-two members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association: an increase by one.

The cells and police offices visited (2) were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, and it is to be hoped that the recent augmentation by four men will be sufficient.

No. 9. Northern District.

Inspected on Wednesday, 8th March, when the force was complete.

Establishment 54. To meet the extended area of the borough, two additional constables have been appointed, but probably one or two more will be found necessary. Variations: one constable resigned voluntarily, and one was dismissed.

Extra duties.—The chief constable acts as inspector under the Explosive Act, and as billet master. An inspector, who receives extra pay, inspects hackney carriages.

Licensing, &c.—A decrease of one in public-house, with one prosecution less, and two more convictions. Of beerhouses, with on licences, a decrease by three, and one unsuccessful prosecution. Of beerhouses with off licences, also a decrease by three, with one prosecution and conviction.

For drunkenness, &c., 45 fewer prosecutions, and 13 fewer convictions.

Forty-one members of the force again hold the St. John's Ambulance Association's certificates.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order, but it is time to provide new quarters for the force, and the matter has been brought to the notice of the local authorities.

Inspected on Monday, 6th of March, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 62.—Variations: a constable resigned voluntarily, and one was called upon to do so. And a constable was discharged with a gratuity.

Extra duties.—The chief constable, an inspector, and 10 constables form the fire brigade, and have extra pay; the superintendent is inspector of hackney carriages. A serjeant is inspector of Explosives, with extra pay.

Licensing, &c., of public-houses.—There were two more prosecutions, but three failed; of beerhouses, with on licences, there is one less, with two prosecutions, one conviction, and one licence was endorsed. Of beerhouses, with off licenses, one prosecution, which failed.

For drunkenness, &c., 18 fewer prosecutions, and 87 fewer convictions.

Authorised Establishment, 192.—Variations: One constable died during the year; three were pensioned; three resigned voluntarily, and one was called upon to do so.

Licensing, &c.—An increase of one public-house, with three more prosecutions, and six more convictions. A decrease of three beerhouses with on licenses, and 10 fewer beerhouses with off licenses. There were 463 fewer prosecutions, and 498 fewer convictions for drunkenness.

One hundred and seventy-three members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance certificates; five hold Durham University, and one St. Andrew's. Total, one hundred and seventy-nine. This is very satisfactory, and shows an increase of 46, and proves that ambulance work can be taught even where the stations are a long way apart.

Visited headquarters, the six divisional stations, and five outlying stations—total, 12—where the cells and offices were clean and in good order. The police-station at Walker is not a good station, and is on the river's edge. It is leased from the city of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and it would be an improvement to build a new police-station near the railway station.

The books and returns were on the whole well kept. During the financial year 94 members of the force were on special duty in county Durham for about five weeks.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained; but the force is decidedly a small one for the work required.

* The acreage and Population are taken from the 1893 Edition of the 1891 Census.

Inspected on Saturday, 29th July, when the force was complete.

Establishment 13.—There has been again no change in the force this year.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is high constable and billet master; he also acts as inspector under the Food and Drugs, Petroleum, and Explosives Acts, and also as assistant relieving officer, and for so acting receives extra pay.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses a decrease, of prosecutions by two, and of convictions by one. One licence was endorsed, but this was quashed on appeal. There is an increase of one in beerhouses with on licenses; and there are only two of these, and no beerhouses with off licenses.

For Drunkenness, &c.—Twenty-five fewer prosecutions, and 15 fewer convictions.

All the members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association, which is very satisfactory, and shows an increase of two.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order; but are certainly now among the worst in the northern district. The cells are bad, and situated at the top of the Town Hall, but there should be cells below for drunkards. The office accommodation is insufficient; in fact new cells and proper police offices are urgently required, and the matter is being brought to the notice of the Local Authorities.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained, but the force is a small one for the population, and should be increased.

* Exclusive of one superintendent and 20 constables appointed at private cost.

Inspected on Friday, 9th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment 278.—Since last year the superintendents have been reduced in number by one, and the constables by one; while the inspectors have been increased from three to five.

Variations.—During the year four constables resigned voluntarily; four were called upon to do so, and two were dismissed; one superintendent and a serjeant were pensioned; and a constable absconded.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is director of the fire brigade, and 26 constables are auxiliary firemen, for which they receive extra pay, and do police duty.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses have decreased by four; with nine fewer prosecutions, and eight fewer convictions, and one more endorsement of a licence. Beerhouses, with on licenses, have decreased by two; with one more prosecution, five more convictions, and three endorsements.

For Drunkenness, &c.—An increase in prosecutions of no less than 1,399, and of convictions an increase of 1,315. In 1891, there were 4,141 convictions; in 1892, there were 3,455, and in 1893, 4,770.

Twenty

Twenty members only of this force hold certificates of St. John's Ambulance Association. In so important a city there ought to be no difficulty about getting proper instruction for the constables, but only seven constables hold certificates, and for first aid.

The cells and police offices visited (6) were clean and in good order.

* The acreage and population are taken from the 1893 Edition of the 1891 Census; but the Local Return gives acres, 4,303, and population, 46,267; this would make out 81 acres, and 872 population to each constable.

Inspected on Saturday, 10th July, when the force was complete.

Establishment 53.—Two constables have been added to the force since the inspection, but the force in such a rising place, which includes for police purposes North Shields, is none too large now.

Variations.—Three constables resigned voluntarily, one was dismissed, and two were pensioned, one of whom was mysteriously shot in the head while on duty in the night-time, but is recovering, and is pensioned under Scale A., Subsection A, Part 2, of Schedule 1, of the Police Act of 1890.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is assistant relieving officer, for which he receives extra pay; billet master, and inspector of common lodging-houses, and head of fire-brigade, to which the whole force belongs, but all do police duty, and receive extra pay for services rendered. The chief constable recently met with a severe accident from a fall off a fire escape, but is recovering.

No. 2. Northern District.

Licensing, &c.—Public-house one more prosecution, and one fewer conviction. Beerhouses, with off licences, have increased by one.

Only 36 out of 1,276 summoned for drunkenness, &c., escaped conviction.

Thirty members of the force hold certificates from the University of Durham Faculty of Medicine Ambulance Association; a decrease by five. An improvement in this respect is desirable, and here not difficult of accomplishment.

The cells and police offices visited (3) were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been well maintained.

* Exclusive of three constables appointed under 3 & 4 Vict. c. 88, s. 19.
† The population and acreage are taken from the 1893 Edition of the 1891 Census.

Inspected from Tuesday, 9th May, to Thursday, 11th May, both inclusive, also on Thursday, 20th July, when the force was complete.

Establishment authorised 190.—This force has been recently increased by the addition of 10 constables, and is still rather small for the population.

Variations.—Three constables resigned voluntarily, two were called upon to do so, and five were dismissed. The late chief constable (Captain Holden) retired upon a pension, as did also an inspector, five serjeants, and six constables. Captain W. H. Tomasson (deputy chief constable) was appointed at the beginning of the year to be chief constable. One constable was discharged with with a gratuity: and one constable died. The weights and measures inspector was transferred to the county council, and no longer belongs to the force.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable, seven superintendents, six inspectors, and 25 serjeants, are inspectors under the Cattle Diseases Act.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-house a decrease of one. Of beerhouses with on licences an increase of one, but of beerhouses with off licences, an increase of no less than eight. Two more public-houses were convicted than in 1892 of all beerhouses there were four fewer convictions altogether. One refreshment house was convicted.

For drunkenness a falling off of no less than 190 prosecutions, and 178 convictions.

The pension scale adopted has an age limit of 52, and for superintendents of 56 year of age.

One hundred and one members of the force hold the St. John's Ambulance Society's certificates. A slight increase by four.

Head-quarters and all divisional stations (6) were visited and nine lock-ups total 15.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order, with the exception of Radcliffe-on-Trent lockup where the drainage is very bad, and the station requires overhauling.

At Trentbridge, outside Nottingham, more men are required, as the new villas are numerous.

The borough of Mansfield is policed by the county force.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

* The acreage is taken from the 1893 Edition of the Census of 1891; but the Local Return is 2,080 acres, which would give 142 acres to each constable.

Inspected on Friday, 12th May, when the force was complete.

Establishment 14.—During the year an inspector has been appointed for the first time, and he acts as clerk, and resides at the police office. And the number of constables have been reduced by one.

Variations.—One constable was called upon to resign.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable acts as relieving officer for vagrants, and is inspector of common lodging-houses, and under the Petroleum and Explosives Acts, for all of which he receives extra pay.

Licensing, &c.—A refreshment-house was prosecuted and convicted.

For Drunkenness, &c.—There were 31 fewer prosecutions, and 36 fewer convictions.

Every member of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association. This shows an increase of eight, and is very satisfactory.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been well maintained, but one or two more constables should be appointed.

† The population and acreage are taken from the 1893 Edition of the 1891 Census.

Inspected on Tuesday, 9th May, when the force was complete.

Establishment 224.—Since the inspection there has been an increase of four serjeants, and a reduction of an inspector and three constables. Variations.—The chief constable (Mr. Stevens) retired on a pension, after many years' service, and Mr. Philip Clay, from Southampton, has been appointed chief constable. One constable was also pensioned and also a serjeant. One constable resigned voluntarily, two were called upon to do to so, and a constable died.

Extra Duties.—An inspector is inspector of hackney carriages; seven constables are wholly engaged at the Castle Museum and Arboretum, and 20 constables act as firemen, but do police duty.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, four fewer prosecutions and one conviction less. Beerhouses with on licences one more prosecution, and one more conviction. Of beerhouses with off licences one prosecution less, which failed.

For drunkenness, 99 fewer prosecutions, and 97 fewer convictions.

One hundred and twenty-six members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates; a decrease of one. It is to be hoped that a larger proportion of the men will in future hold these certificates.

The cells and police offices visited (two) were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

Twenty-five men of this force went on special duty to Hull on 7th of April, and 16 on 11th of April. All left Hull on 4th of May.

† The Population and Acreage are taken from the 1893 edition of the 1891 Census.

Inspected from Monday, 19th June to Wednesday 21st June, when the force was complete.

Establishment authorised 34, but the chief constable is also chief constable of Cumberland. There was not a single change in this force during the year. Three of the additional constables were dismissed on the completion of Manchester Waterworks.

Establishment authorised, 14.

Variations.—An increase of one serjeant by the promotion of a constable to that rank, reducing the number of constables to 10. No other change.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is superintendent of the fire brigade, billet master, inspector of weights and measures, lighting and market inspector, assistant relieving officer; also inspector of explosives, and under the Cattle Disease Act. The whole force form the fire brigade.

Thirteen members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association, and two members have medallions of the same society.

Licensing, &c.—For drunkenness, one fewer prosecution, and the same number of convictions, and no acquittals.

The cells were clean. It is satisfactory to at last have to report the commencement of the rebuilding of the police offices and cells. Towards the cost the mayor has made a very liberal contribution.

Inspected on Monday, 5th June, and between Wednesday, 28th June, and Tuesday, 4th July, both inclusive, when there was a vacancy for a constable.

Establishment.—One hundred and fourteen.

Variations.—Three constables resigned voluntarily, a constable was called upon to do so, and a constable died. A superintendent and an inspector were pensioned.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, a reduction of three; and three more convictions. Of beerhouses with on licenses, an increase of one; with off licenses, a decrease of nine beerhouses. For drunkenness, four more prosecutions, and one conviction less.

Seventeen members of the force hold St. John Ambulance Association certificates. Something is at last being done to stimulate this movement here. A decrease of one, however, since last year.

All the nine head stations and six outlying stations were visited (total 15), and were found clean and in good order.

A new station has been recently built and occupied at Filey, with good quarters for a serjeant and a constable.

The superintendent of the Holderness Division is rather isolated at Sproathley, where there is neither a telegraph office nor a Sunday post, but if the local authorities decide to station the superintendent in the town of Hedon, it will probably be necessary to build there (Hedon) new cells, offices, and a residence for the superintendent.

At Market Weighton the house parlour and outside room were rather damp.

Twenty-five men of this force were on special duty at Hull Docks between 10th April and 10th May 1893; and 15 stayed until 24th May. In September 22 men were lent to the West Riding.

Inspected on Tuesday, 4th July, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Thirteen.

Variation.—No variation occurred in this force during the past year.

Extra Duties.—The head constable is inspector of common lodging-houses, and under the Weights and Measures, Food and Drugs, and Explosives Acts; and he is assistant relieving officer, with extra pay for so acting. The serjeant is the mace-bearer, and the whole force form a fire brigade, but they all do police duty, and have extra pay only for services rendered.

Licensing, &c.—No change in the number of public-houses or beerhouses, and no prosecutions. For drunkenness, &c., 13 more prosecutions, and eight more convictions.

At present no member of this force holds an ambulance certificate, but a class is at last in course of formation.

Inspected on Thursday, 29th June, when there was a vacancy for a constable.

Establishment.—Two hundred and seventy-seven; a decrease of an inspector, and a corresponding increase of a serjeant.

Variations.—One serjeant and six constables resigned voluntarily, six constables were called upon to do so, and one constable was dismissed. An inspector and seven constables were pensioned.

Extra Duties.—The whole force act as a fire brigade, but do police duty; a superintendent, four serjeants, and 27 constables have to live near the station and receive extra pay.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, a decrease of five, with five fewer prosecutions, but one conviction less, and one endorsement. Of beerhouses with on licenses, a decrease of eight, with only two prosecutions and convictions. Beerhouses with off licenses have decreased by five, and refreshment-houses by 10. For drunkenness, &c., 50 fewer prosecutions, and 41 fewer convictions.

One hundred and nineteen members of the force hold St. John Ambulance Association certificates. This is a decrease by four, but there is likely to be a larger proportion in future.

The police stations and cells visited (six) were all clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

† Part of parish of Clifton, with 922 population, and 138 acres, is excluded here, and added to City of York, in which it is now included.

Inspected between Friday, 2nd June, and Friday, 9th June, both inclusive, and on the 13th July, when the force was complete.

Establishment 215.—This includes a recent increase of one constable.

Variations.—Six constables have resigned voluntarily, and nine were called upon to do so, and two serjeants and two constables were pensioned.

Licensing, &c.—A decrease of 13 public-houses, with seven more prosecutions and convictions. Beerhouses with on licenses have increased by three, and with off licenses, an increase of three; altogether a decrease of four in prosecutions, and of three in convictions. For drunkenness, &c., 25 fewer prosecutions, and 34 fewer convictions.

Only 55 members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association; but this is a slight increase of five.

All the nine divisions and 11 outlying stations (total 20) were inspected, and found to be clean and in good order.

The borough of Thornaby-on-Tees is policed by the county force.

The books and returns were well kept.

During the year the chief constable has acted as inspector of weights and measures, with three specially appointed inspectors, who are additional constables.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

Inspected on Wednesday, 7th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Seventy-six.

Variations.—On Friday, 4th April 1893, police constable William Henderson was shot dead by a lunatic while aiding the relieving officer to take the man to an asylum. The widow has received the grant of a pension of 15*l.* a year, during widowhood, from the watch committee, and each child a grant of 2*l.* 10*s.* a year until 15 years of age. Other changes: two constables resigned voluntarily, one was dismissed, and another died naturally; one serjeant and two constables were pensioned.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, a decrease by two in prosecutions, and also in convictions. Beerhouses with off licenses have decreased by one. For drunkenness, &c., fewer prosecutions by two, and of convictions by three.

Fifty-one members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates, a decrease of five, but there is a prospect of another class.

The cells and police offices at the central and sub-stations were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been well maintained.

Inspected on Monday, 5th June, when the force was complete.

Establishment.—Thirty-eight.

Variations.—One constable resigned voluntarily, and one was dismissed. There was a vacancy for a constable at Michaelmas 1893. The private constable is paid for by the Pier Company, and is available for police duty.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is assistant relieving officer for vagrants, and chief of the fire brigade, for both of which he gets extra pay.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses, two more prosecutions, and one more conviction. Of beerhouses with on licenses, there is one less; but of beerhouses with off licenses, there are five more. For drunkenness, &c., there were six more prosecutions, and 12 more convictions.

Eleven members of the force again hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates. This is a very small proportion, and in such a popular resort ambulance aid should be plentiful.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order.

N.B.—There are also 14 serjeants and 30 constables drawing 2*d.* a day extra for merit class; also 147 serjeants and 343 constables drawing 1*d.* per diem for "good conduct."

Inspected between Monday, 17th April, and Friday, 5th May, when there were 64 vacancies, including 40 reserve.

Establishment.—One thousand and eighty-six. The force has no longer to police Ovenden, which is now included in Halifax, so there was a reduction by three constables in that district. Elsewhere the force has been increased during the past year by one inspector, five serjeants, and 33 constables, total 39, giving a net increase of 36. At Michaelmas 1893 there were vacancies for two inspectors, two serjeants, and 33 constables. Of the latter, these men are part of a reserve of 40 for times of emergency, so that, owing to the late crisis, seven of the reserve have been called out.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, a decrease of 17, with 21 fewer prosecutions, and 10 fewer convictions, and four endorsements on licenses. Of beerhouses with on licenses, a decrease of 36, with 22 fewer prosecutions, and 19 fewer convictions, and three endorsements. Of beerhouses with off licenses, a decrease of five in the number of houses; but Ovenden is no longer policed by the West Riding. Of the latter there were fewer prosecutions by five, and three fewer convictions, with one endorsement. For drunkenness, &c., 382 fewer prosecutions, and a decrease in convictions by 397.

Three hundred and sixty-three members of the force hold St. John Ambulance Society's certificates; this is a satisfactory increase of 48.

The following municipal boroughs are policed by the West Riding Constabulary, viz., Barnsley, Batley, Harrogate, Keighley, Morley, and Ossett.

Twenty-one of the divisional stations were inspected, and also 24 lock-ups, total 45. The Ingelton Division came to Settle for their inspection; and the Saddleworth men were inspected at Huddersfield.

At Brighouse the drains, &c. had been for months out of order, and the matter has since been remedied. But this is a large place, and should have a better police station.

At Todmorden, which is an important border town and partly in Lancashire, but entirely policed by West Riding, more police than 25 are required. At the inspection one constable to 1,500 was the state of things. There, also, a room for the inspection of weights and measures should be hired, as at present they are examined in the parade room.

It is desirable to have separate offices for the inspectors of weights and measures, where they are not members of the police force; and it seems undesirable to call upon police constables to act as assistants, not only to keep order, but to perform manual labour under such inspectors; and this is done in several divisions of the West Riding, which takes up much time, and is extremely inconvenient; and this is calculated to cost the West Riding the entire time of one constable a year; and only one inspector of weights, &c. is now in the police force.

Weights and measures should not be inspected in Dewsbury Petty Sessional Court-house, or in the magistrates' room at Pateley Bridge.

At the former, also, a room is still taken up exclusively for weights and measures, which much interferes with the privacy of the police station, and is found to be most inconvenient.

At Knaresboro' there is a lack of office accommodation, and the present office should be enlarged by taking in the adjoining cell. Since the inspection two more constables have been stationed in the town of Goole, where they are really required, as it is an increasing place.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

* The population and acreage are taken from the 1893 edition of the 1891 census.

Inspected on Wednesday, 19th April, when the force was complete, but had been reduced to 255; that is, by one constable since the year began, and this constable was appointed last year to replace an inspector.

Establishment.—Reduced to 255; but 256 does not appear to be at all too large a force for so large and important a place. At Michaelmas 1893 there was also a vacancy for a constable.

Variations.—Four constables resigned voluntarily, and one died. A serjeant and five constables were pensioned.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is chief of the fire brigade, and an inspector is inspector of hackney carriages.

Licensing, &c.—Of public-houses, one conviction less. Of beerhouses with off licenses, a decrease of four. Altogether five more prosecutions, and two more convictions. For drunkenness, &c., 20 more prosecutions, and 13 more convictions.

Only 23 members of this force again hold St. John Ambulance Association certificates, and it is to be regretted that more men have not been instructed since last year.

The cells and police offices visited (two) were clean and in good order.

The books and returns were well kept.

Inspected on Friday May 5th, when the force was complete.

Establishment: 30. Variations: Captain Despard, from the Salford Police Force, was appointed chief constable, on the resignation of Mr. Weatherald. Three constables were called upon to resign.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is inspector of common lodging-houses, hackney carriages, and under the Cattle Diseases, Explosives, and Petroleum Acts; he is also assistant relieving officer for vagrants, and has extra pay. A serjeant is superintendent of the fire brigade, and receives extra pay for so acting, as does a constable, but both do police duty; and nine auxiliaries complete the Brigade.

Licensing, &c., of beerhouses, with off licenses, an increase of five. For drunkenness, &c., 12, more prosecutions, and two more convictions.

Only 12 members of the Force hold St. John Ambulance certificates, a decrease of nine, but a new class has recently been formed.

† The population and acreage are taken from the 1893 edition of the 1891 census.

Inspected on Tuesday 5th April, when the force was complete, except a chief clerk.

Establishment, 90.—Owing to the enlargement of the borough in November 1892, by the district of Ovenden, there has been an increase in this force, by one serjeant and five constables, to 90.

The chief clerk has been made chief detective inspector, and a clerk is required. There was also a vacancy at Michaelmas 1893 for an inspector and for a constable.

Variations.—A constable resigned voluntarily, as did also an inspector. A constable was dismissed, and two inspectors, one serjeant, and a constable were pensioned.

Extra Duties.—A serjeant acts as inspector of explosives, common lodging-houses, brokers, and hackney coaches, but no constables are any longer firemen, as there is an auxiliary brigade with four or five permanent men.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses doing business, an increase of twelve, owing partly to the inclusion of Ovenden, with three more prosecutions and two more convictions. Beerhouses, with on-licences, an increase of 11; of beerhouses, with off-licenses, an increase of 21, which increases are accounted for by the great enlargement of the borough. Altogether five convictions and one endorsement of license. For drunkenness, &c., 21 fewer prosecutions, and 19 fewer convictions.

No. 2. Northern District.

Twenty-four members of the force only hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates, the same number as last year; but a large class is undergoing instruction.

The cells and police offices were clean and in good order; but are to be condemned. There are only seven cells and one set of offices for this force, and these cells and offices, and the closets, are all considerably below the level of the road, and to light them in winter gas must be required. The parade-room and offices are much too small for the number of men, and close to them are the cells, with an open closet in each, and on the same level there are other closets for the men and a urinal. Proper ventilation under these circumstances is impossible. The best thing to do is to build new cells and police offices above ground, and in the vicinity of the Town Hall, and to do away with the present cells and offices which are underneath that building. Another police office with cells may be required elsewhere, owing to the great enlargement of the borough.

The books and returns were well kept, and a new pay scale is appended.

The management, numbers and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

21 men of the force went to Hull on special service from 25th April 1893 to 26th May.

No. 2. orthern District.

Inspected on Thursday 4th May, and Friday 5th May, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 112.—A serjeant has been substituted for an inspector. At Michaelmas 1893 there was a vacancy for one constable. Variation: One constable resigned voluntarily.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable, assisted by the superintendent, an inspector, and four serjeants, is inspector under the Cattle Diseases Act; also, assisted by an inspector, of Shop Hours, Explosives and Petroleum Acts. The chief constable and the superintendent are also inspectors of common lodging-houses; and the chief constable, assisted by a constable, is also inspector of hackney carriages, for which the constable has some extra pay. The fire brigade consists of the chief constable, an inspector, a serjeant, and 21 constables, and the latter receive extra pay; for which they do weekly fire-drill out of hours, besides regular police duty.

Licensing, &c., of Public-houses.—The same number of prosecutions, and three fewer convictions. Of beerhouses with on-licences, a decrease of one; and one conviction less. For Drunkenness, &c., 19 fewer prosecutions, and a decrease of 10 in convictions.

One hundred and three members of the force hold St. John's Ambulance Association certificates. This shows a very satisfactory increase of 22.

This borough now includes a very large area, and is judiciously provided with outlying stations (4); all of which were visited and found to be clean and in good order; as were also the cells and police offices at head-quarters; but nothing has yet been done to make the headquarters fit for such a force.

Twenty men of this force were at Hull on special duty in May 1893.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been well maintained.

Inspected on Monday 17th April, and on Tuesday 18th April, when there were 45 vacancies, as the force had been quite recently increased by 66 men. As 100 men were then away at Hull, Leeds was again visited, and they were inspected on Friday 28th July.

Establishment 450.—Since the inspection it has been decided to increase the force by 27 men instead of 66. That is to add 27 men to the force in 1892, which consisted of 423 men. It is to be hoped that this increase will suffice for the present.

Variations.—During the year 11 constables resigned voluntarily, two were called upon to do so, and eight were dismissed. One constable was discharged with a gratuity, and an inspector, three serjeants, and three constables were pensioned. One serjeant and one constable died.

Licensing, &c.—Fewer public-houses by five, and of convictions by two; there are three fewer beerhouses with on-licenses, but seven more beerhouses with off-licenses. A decrease of nine and two prosecutions respectively, and only one conviction of an off-licensed house. Nine fewer prosecutions for drunkenness, but six more convictions.

No. 2. Northern District.

No extra duties are performed by the police, but 32 members of the force are attached to the fire brigade; but all of them, including the superintendent, do street duty, or mounted police work.

The City Council have recently reduced the fixed age of limit for pensions from 55 years for constables and serjeants to 52 years of age, and for officers of higher rank from 60 to 55 years.

Only twenty-seven members of the force hold certificates of the St. John's Ambulance Association. It is to be hoped that this matter will be encouraged in future.

The Inspector visited 13 police stations and found the cells and offices clean and in good order.

A good police station has been recently erected at Headingley.

Besides the contingent to Hull, 50 men were for two months on special service in Durham during the financial year.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers and discipline of the force have been well maintained.

Inspected

No. 2. Northern District.

Inspected Wednesday, 26th April, when the force was complete; since then the force has been increased by two constables.

Establishment, 48.

Variations.—Two constables have resigned voluntarily during the year, and three were called upon to do so.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is inspector of hackney carriages, and under Weights and Measures Act, for which he receives extra pay, and has a serjeant as assistant, and a serjeant is inspector of common lodging-houses, and receives a small increase of pay. For drunkenness, 217 fewer prosecutions, and 202 fewer convictions.

Licensing.—One more public-house was proceeded against, and one more conviction was obtained.

Twenty-four members of the force have passed the examination of St. John's Ambulance Association. A satisfactory increase of five.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained. A site has been bought and plans prepared for the new buildings; it would be desirable to have a residence for the borough serjeant and his wife near the proposed new cells, as borough prisoners will in future no longer be in the adjoining county cells.

Inspected on Monday, 1st May, when the force was complete, but seven men were on the sick-list.

Establishment 386.

Variations.—Four constables resigned voluntarily, two were called upon to do so, three were dismissed, and one constable died. Three inspectors, 6 serjeants, and seven constables were pensioned off.

Extra Duties.—The chief inspector of detectives is inspector of common lodging-houses, and a serjeant and a constable are inspectors of hackney carriages. A serjeant and 18 constables are also firemen, and receive extra pay and house free of rent. Two are grooms, and they and the serjeant do no police duty except to convey prisoners, and also ambulance work.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses a decrease of five, 12 more proceeded against, and 11 more convictions; a decrease of five in houses to sell on, a decrease of one; to sell off, one more was prosecuted; 188 fewer persons proceeded against, and 180 fewer convictions for drunkenness, &c.

Three hundred and sixty-two members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association, a slight decrease (16), owing to changes in the force, but a very satisfactory proportion.

The cells and police offices at the central and sub-stations were clean and in good order.

It is intended shortly to build some 20 new cells and a court, adjoining the central office.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force were efficiently maintained.

One inspector, 2 serjeants, and 17 constables were for 23 days at Hull in May 1893. And an inspector, 4 serjeants, and from 45 to 20 men were lent to Derbyshire for some days in August and September 1893.

* The population and acreage include part of the parish of Clifton, with 138 acres, and with 922 population, which has been recently added to the City of York.

Inspected Saturday, 3rd June, when the force was complete.

Establishment, 76. There were at the end of the year six vacancies, as the force has been increased by four men recently to meet an impending increase of the city. This accounts for a vacancy for a superintendent and also for three constables. A serjeant has been replaced by an inspector.

Variations.—One serjeant and two constables were pensioned.

Extra Duties.—The chief officer is assistant relieving officer, and chief of the fire brigade, to which five inspectors, five serjeants, and 13 constables belong, and to all extra pay is given for so acting.

Licensing, &c.—Public-houses—a decrease of one; an increase by one in prosecutions and by six in convictions. Beerhouses, to sell off only, a decrease of one. Only one of each were prosecuted and convicted.

For Drunkenness, &c., 15 more prosecutions, and 29 more convictions.

Pension.—The age of limit of 50 for all ranks was abolished on 8th January 1893.

Fifty-five members of the force hold certificates from the St. John's Ambulance Association; a decrease of two.

The cells and police offices visited (2) were clean and in good order. The new cells and police offices and courts were occupied on 8th December 1892, and are satisfactory.

The books and returns were well kept.

The management, numbers, and discipline of the force have been efficiently maintained.

No. 3
South of England and South Wales District.

I have to report that owing to the recent strikes in the timber and coal trades in Bristol, Glamorganshire, Carmarthenshire, Monmouthshire, and Somersetshire, the police forces have been unusually taxed; but I have much pleasure in stating that in all these authorities, when they were required to act in order to suppress riot and disorder, they carried out their exceedingly severe duties by night and by day without complaint, and with good temper, patience, and discretion.

The management of the chief constables and their officers deserve the highest praise.

I deeply regret that I have to report that Captain Fellowes, chief constable of the county of Hants, met his death from the result of injuries received while gallantly endeavouring to stop a runaway horse, who had already dashed two persons out of the cart. Had he not, to a certain extent, checked the animal's progress, no doubt many lives might have been lost in the narrow streets he was heading for in Winchester. He died on the 30th November from his injuries.

He was a young officer, beloved by his men, and had the complete confidence of those under whom he served, and was held in high estimation by them and all who knew him.

The stations were clean and in good order, excepting at Cardigan, where the lock-up is in an insanitary condition. Attention was called to the matter in my last year's report. An alteration to the present building should be made or a new police station built.

In connection with the question as to whether the force can be regarded as efficient, this matter requires careful consideration, as well as the fact of there being in the county upwards of 100 County Court Tithe Orders unexecuted. It has been alleged that this was partly owing to the insufficiency of police protection to the bailiff, but the chief constable has since informed me that this is not the case, as he is perfectly willing to furnish sufficient police for the protection of the county court bailiff if called upon to do so. In other respects the force is efficient.

REPORT.

TO THE RIGHT HON. THE SECRETARY OF STATE FOR THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

SIR,

I HAVE the honour to submit my Report on the Police of the Metropolis for the year 1893.

1. The authorised strength on 31st December 1893 was 31 Superintendents, 647 Inspectors, 1,784 Sergeants, and 12,664 Constables; total 15,126, being a decrease of 74 Inspectors, and an increase of 77 Sergeants and 123 Constables since 31st December 1892.*

2. Of these, 4 Superintendents, 55 Inspectors, 204 Sergeants, and 1,468 Constables were employed on special duties for various Government Departments, including special protection posts at public offices and buildings, dockyards and military stations, and by public companies and private individuals.

3. The services of men thus employed were paid for to the Receiver of the Metropolitan Police District by the Departments to which the services were rendered. The details are given in Return No. 14.

4. The number of Police available for service in the Metropolis, exclusive of those specially employed and whose services were paid for, was 27 Superintendents, 592 Inspectors, 1,580 Sergeants, and 11,196 Constables; total 13,395.

5. An average of one-fourteenth of the force, excluding those employed on special duties, and those who are on the sick list, &c. (546) is daily on leave in accordance with the regulation granting one day's leave of absence to each man every fortnight. The withdrawals from duty caused by men sick and on detached sick leave averaged 509 daily.

6. Under the existing system about 60 per cent. of the number available for duty in the streets is required for night duty—from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. The remaining 40 per cent. is detailed for duty in four reliefs in town districts and two reliefs in country districts from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m.

7. The Metropolitan Police District as established by 2 & 3 Vict. c. 47. extends over a radius of 15 miles from Charing Cross exclusive of the City of London, and the liberties thereof, and embraces an area of 688·31 square miles extending from Colney Heath, Hertfordshire, on the north, to Mogadore, Todworth Heath, in the south, and from Lark Hall, Essex, in the east, to Staines Moor, Middlesex, in the west.

8. The mean rateable value of the Metropolitan area for Police purposes for the year 1893–4 was 37,413,881*l.*, but of the enormous actual value of the property in charge of the Police it is impossible to form any estimate.

9. The Police rate is now fixed by 31 & 32 Vict. c. 67. at 9*d.* in the £, of which 4*d.* in the £ is payable out of the Local Taxation Account under the Local Government Act, 1888.

11. The pay of the force alone, including Chief Constables, Superintendents, Inspectors, Sergeants, and Constables, was 1,251,148*l.*

---

* The decrease in Inspectors is nominal only, there being a corresponding increase of Station Sergeants to replace them.

U 83330. Wt. 9981.

12. During the year 1893 the following buildings, works which were in progress at the end of 1892, were completed :—

A new Station at—

Plumstead,

where the increase in the population had necessitated such additional protection.

A new Station to replace an old one at—

Chislehurst,

and reconstruction of the administrative premises at—

Peckham,

which had become inadequate to present requirements.

The important alterations at—

were also completed during the year.

The Section House for single men at—

was nearly completed, and the residential portion of Peckham was still in progress.

The central building in—

Great Scotland Yard,

was altered and adapted during the year to serve the purposes of a temporary Station for emergencies, and to provide quarters for two Inspectors.

Works for new Stations have been commenced at—

West Ham,
Blackwall (for Thames Division),
Gerald Road,
Acton,
Kentish Town, and Hunter Street,
} re-construction.

During the reconstruction of the last-mentioned Station it was found necessary to rent temporary premises, and these were adapted during the year to meet the requirements of the Police Service.

The re-arrangement and alteration of—

Bethnal Green Station,

the addition of new cells at—

North Fulham, and of stabling at Carter Street, all of which had been taken in hand during the year, were still in progress.

The erection of new Stations at Lavender Hill, Croydon, and Kenley, and the reconstruction of the existing Station in Walton Street, will very shortly be commenced.

CRIMINAL INVESTIGATION DEPARTMENT.

The total number of felonies relating to property, committed within the Metropolitan Police District during 1893, was 19,043, which was a smaller number relatively to population than in any previous year, with the single exception of 1890 (Table 19.) It is here, of course, that the efficiency or otherwise of preventive Police administration in relation to crime can best be tested, for offences against the person are by their very nature due to causes which Police action can do comparatively little to control. 1893 was the fifteenth year completed since the Criminal Investigation Department was established, and the following table shows at a glance the decrease in crimes against property in the Metropolis during that time. The years are grouped in quinquennial periods :—

Years.	Average Yearly Number of Felonies relating to Property.	Proportion per 1,000 of average Yearly Number of Felonies to the Population.
1889–1893 - - -	18,816	3·249

It should be remembered that during this period the population of the Metropolitan Police District has increased by more than 1,000,000, and, as noticed in previous reports, with every million added to the population the difficulty in dealing with crime, especially of this class, increases in a ratio much greater than the arithmetical proportion.

There was a slight increase last year in the number of offences against the person, enumerated in Table 20, the total increase being ·355 to 100,000 of the population. But a reference to Table 21 shows a reduction of 192 in the total number of offences of a serious character as compared with 1892. There was a corresponding decrease in the total number of persons arrested for these offences, but the number of apprehensions by the officers of the Criminal Investigation Department was greater than in any previous year, amounting to 6,831, as compared with 6,400 in 1892 (see Table 23), which, again, was 212 in excess of the number recorded for 1891. And though the offences committed were fewer than in 1892, the statistics show an increase of 66 in the number of convictions obtained. These figures include cases dealt with by magistrates. As regards the cases sent for trial, the total number of convictions obtained was 2,758, as compared with 2,749 in 1892, and the acquittals were only 402, a number smaller both absolutely and relatively than in any previous year (see Table 18).

The statistics for the year record 20 cases of murder, as against 16 in 1892. But the actual number of murders committed was 19. In one instance, where an accused person was charged on a coroner's warrant, medical evidence subsequently obtained established clearly that the death was due to natural causes, and that no crime whatever had been committed. In four cases the crime was followed by the suicide of the murderer.

The cases of manslaughter numbered 27, as against 25 in 1892 and 32 in 1891 ; the attempts to murder, &c. 184 as against 166 and 188 in the two preceding years respectively.

The burglaries committed last year numbered 509, as compared with 637 in 1892. But notwithstanding this marked decrease in the number of these offences, the convictions obtained were 147, as against 145 in the previous year. In three cases the crime was accompanied by acts of violence against the person. In eight cases only did the value of the property stolen exceed 100*l*. The net total loss of property by burglaries, as estimated by the owners, was 3,216*l*., as compared with 4,915*l*. in 1892.

The cases of housebreaking numbered 1,343, being 23 more than in 1892. In none of these was any act of violence against the person reported. The net total loss was 13,398*l*., as compared with 10,079 in the preceding year. In 79 of these cases the criminals found no property which they thought worth carrying away. In 115 cases the property stolen was valued by the owners at less than 1*l*., and in 41 cases only did the loss exceed 50*l*. The vast majority of these crimes are committed to the prejudice of the poorer classes of the metropolis, at whose expense gangs of professional thieves habitually maintain themselves in idleness by a life of crime. Such are the facilities for breaking into humble dwellings, which are left for hours at a time with no person in charge, that immunity from these crimes could not be obtained even by doubling the police force of the metropolis, and the insignificant value of the property stolen in most instances renders detection extremely difficult. This very element, moreover—the comparative worthlessness of the property—is too often considered a sufficient reason for passing lenient sentences when the criminals are brought to justice. Convictions were obtained in 109 cases last year, but in 21 cases only were sentences of penal servitude awarded, and these, with four exceptions, were for terms of from three to five years ; the exceptions were one sentence of 10 years, one of eight years, and two of six years. The 147 convictions for burglary were followed by sentences of penal servitude in only 37 cases, and of these there were but six instances in which the term awarded exceeded five years. The maximum sentence of 10 years was imposed in three instances.

As noticed in last year's report, these crimes are mainly the work of professional criminals, and lenient sentences have no terrors for them ; they reckon them as amongst the ordinary risks of their profession. This is exemplified by the case of James Vaughan, who was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude for burglary at the Central Criminal Court on the 10th April 1893. This prisoner acknowledged in writing that he had "during the last 12 months committed about twenty burglaries." He was arrested in March 1893, and he had been released from prison on the 9th March 1892, on the expiration of a previous sentence for burglary. This case may also serve to explain the disparity between the number of burglaries recorded and the number of convictions obtained. A conviction for burglary generally accounts for several crimes of this character.

The work of the Convict Supervision Office continues to be maintained efficiently and with excellent results. Last year's report mentioned the system inaugurated in 1889 to bring the 7th section of the Prevention of Crimes Act into practical operation in the metropolis. The number of fresh cases registered under that section in 1893 was 1,286, bringing the total number of cases on the books up to 7,085. The number of prisoners photographed during the year was 1,086; the number of attendances to search the records and photograph albums at the office amounted to 4,853, as compared with 4,000 in 1892: the number of identifications thus obtained of prisoners as having been previously convicted increased to 2,124, as compared with 1,265 in 1892 and 563 in 1891. These figures cannot but be considered satisfactory, having regard to the means available for the purpose ; and much more favourable results may be looked for hereafter under the new scheme for the measurement, &c. of criminals, the administration of which the Secretary of State has entrusted to the Assistant Commissioner in charge of the Criminal Investigation Department.

The total number of penal servitude convicts liberated on licence into the Metropolitan Police District during 1893 was 767, as compared with 871 in 1892 ; and the number of licence holders reported as moving into the district was 162. The number of licence holders and supervisees reporting to the Metropolitan Police during the year was 1,212. The number of licence holders, supervisees, and expirees apprehended in the Metropolitan Police District was 881, as compared with 872 in 1892 ; of these 81 were charged with failing to report, and the rest with other offences. The total number of licence holders, supervisees, and expirees registered in the Convict Supervision Office up to 31st December 1893 was 45,662.

Notwithstanding the increasing pressure of work in this office resulting from the rapidly increasing number of cases recorded, assistance continues to be systematically rendered to the various agencies engaged in aiding discharged prisoners.

COMMON LODGING HOUSES.

During the year 81 houses were closed, leaving 671 registered houses under control at the end of the year, the same being apportioned to accommodate 28,340 lodgers.

The above numbers show a decrease of 81 houses and a decrease of 1,943 lodgers on the numbers of the preceding year.

88 keepers have been served with notices to register their houses ; 85 of this number subsequently made application to provisionally register, the remainder either discontinued to receive lodgers or have made such alteration in their houses as to exempt them from the provisions of the Act.

156 non-registered houses are periodically visited to enforce the Acts; a number of these will be registered when the necessary alterations and improvements are completed.

348 houses were surveyed, of which 158 were those requiring re-measurement, caused through alterations to premises, the whole apportioned to receive 11,265 lodgers.

5 keepers of registered houses were summoned and convicted.

71 cases of illness other than infectious occurred, 47 of which resulted fatally, necessitating inquests being held.

213 cases of infectious diseases occurred; this shows an increase of 167 on the numbers of the previous year, and is due to the increase in the cases of small-pox and erysipelas. They are classified as follows :—

Scarlet fever	11
Scarlatina	2
Itch	4
Measles	2
Erysipelas	32
Diphtheria	7
Small-pox	152
Typhoid fever	3

PUBLIC CARRIAGES.—LOST PROPERTY BRANCH.

In this Branch there has been a great increase in the number of articles deposited.

In 1892 there was a slight falling off in the number, but this has been more than compensated by the increase in 1893.

During the 12 months ended 31st December last 28,270 articles were deposited, as against 26,780 in the previous year. Of these 15,310 were restored to the owners, and the remainder have, with a few exceptions, been returned to the finders, or will be so returned when the three months during which property is detained have expired.

There were also many bags with considerable sums of money and valuable jewellery.

119 coins, found on the seat or floor of cabs and omnibuses, have been received; of these 57 were gold coins.

Articles of jewellery numbered 566, and there were also 94 watches and 43 clocks.

The remaining property consisted of umbrellas, bags, clothing, opera-glasses, and miscellaneous articles of every description.

I venture to think that these facts speak well for the general honesty of drivers and conductors of public carriages, and that they also show that the present system of dealing with property found in public vehicles is working well.

Over 17,600 letters and informations with reference to lost property have been received during the year, and these have had prompt attention.

Continued efforts have been made to trace owners, and between 6,000 and 7,000 notices have been sent to addresses where it was thought a clue might be obtained.

PUBLIC CARRIAGES.—LICENSING DEPARTMENT.

Carriages.

Proprietors' licences during 1893 were issued in respect of—

7,193 two-wheeled hackney carriages.
3,613 four do. do.
2,366 omnibuses	stage carriages.
1,072 tramway cars
Total	14,244

These figures show a total increase of 62 when compared with the licences issued in the previous year.

There were 60 more licences for hansoms or two-wheeled carriages, and 66 less for clarence or four-wheeled cabs, 61 more for omnibuses, and 7 for tramway cars.

New vehicles were presented for licensing during the year as follows:—

145 clarence cabs.
100 omnibuses.
45 tramway cars.

Total - - 758

All these carriages are reported as being of superior build and finish.

Return of proprietors' licences issued yearly during the past five years:—

1889 - - -	7,409	3,966	2,092	970	14,437

During the year the vehicles rejected by the Inspectors of Public Carriages as unfit for public use when presented for licensing were:—

139 two-wheeled vehicles.
106 four do. do.
27 omnibuses.
2 tramway cars.

principally owing to want of compliance with the regulations as regards fittings, &c., but in most cases, the requirements having been subsequently met, the carriages were licensed.

Night inspections in every month, on uncertain days, were, as usual, made by the Inspectors of Public Carriages, and the vehicles, horses, and harness reported as unfit as shown below:—

223 two-wheeled hackney carriages,
93 four do. do.,
5 omnibuses,
1 tramway car,
22 horses.

In every case the proprietor was served with a notice not to use until the horse or carriage was again inspected and found fit for public use.

A comparative return, for the past five years, of hackney and stage carriages reported by the public and police as unfit is shown below:—

1889 - - -	3,062	23	13	1	158	167	—	11	39	—

During the past year the licences of 26 hackney carriages and of six stage carriages were revoked by the Commissioner, the proprietors having committed breaches of the law. He also suspended the licence of one hackney carriage.

In 65 cases convictions were obtained against proprietors for cruelty to horses, and in each case the proprietor was served with a notice forbidding the use of the animal until seen by the Inspector of Public Carriages and certified as fit for use.

During the year the hackney carriage standings have been increased by six, giving additional accommodation for 45 hackney carriages.

The total number of hackney carriage standings in the Metropolitan Police District at the end of 1893 was 608.

There were also 28 standings in the City of London.

DRIVERS AND CONDUCTORS.

The licences issued during 1893 to drivers and conductors were:—

	14,985 to hackney drivers,
	6,454 to stage drivers,
	8,534 to conductors.
Total -	29,973

The number of licences issued to hackney drivers is less by 26 than those issued last year. The stage drivers show a decrease of 63 and the conductors of 351, a total reduction of 440 licences.

The following table exhibits the increases and decreases for the past five years:—

Year.	Hackney Drivers.	Stage Drivers.	Conductors.	Totals.
1893 - - - -	14,985	6,454	8,534	29,973
1892 - - - -	15,011	6,517	8,885	30,413
1891 - - - -	15,219	7,051	10,050	32,320
1890 - - - -	15,336	6,145	7,427	28,908
1889 - - - -	15,513	5,878	7,324	28,715

During the past year the number of persons attending to be examined as to their knowledge of London, with the view of becoming licensed as hackney drivers, was 1,639. Of this number 1,168 passed the examination satisfactorily.

The number of applicants who successfully passed the examination during the past five years was as follows:—

Year.	Examined and passed.	Remarks.
1893	1,168	Applicants are examined as to their knowledge of the chief thoroughfares, squares, public buildings, railway stations, &c., and the most direct routes to and from them.

In the majority of cases the applicants were persons who followed the callings of carmen, horsekeepers, coachmen, and grooms.

The proportion of hackney drivers to hackney carriages during 1893 was 13·88 drivers to every 10 carriages.

The proportion during the previous five years was:—

1892 for each 10 carriages 13·88 drivers.
1891 ,, 10 ,, 13·67 ,,
1890 ,, 10 ,, 13·57 ,,
1889 ,, 10 ,, 13·63 ,,
1888 ,, 10 ,, 13·63 ,,

These proportions do not appear to be in excess of requirements, taking into consideration the many proprietors holding driving licences who seldom use them, and the numerous licensed men who during part of the year follow other occupations.

Convictions for drunkenness during the past five years have been as below:—

E. R. C. BRADFORD,
The Commissioner of Police of the Metropolis.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF SURGEON ON THE HEALTH OF THE METROPOLITAN POLICE FORCE DURING THE YEAR 1893.

Total Number of Sick in 1893.

Quarter ended	Fresh Cases.	From previous Quarter.	Total.	Resumed Duty.	Continued to next Quarter.	Sick Leave.	Detached Leave.	Reported Unfit.	Died.
March 31st - - -	3,169	631	3,800	3,042	410	166	117	52	13

Average daily Number of Sick.

The total number of men for whom payment was made to the Divisional Surgeons was, on 30th June 1893, 14,549, and on 31st December 1893, 14,431, giving as the mean 14,490. To this must be added 769, the average number of men in the outlying dockyard divisions and men employed beyond the boundaries of the Metropolitan Police District, making a total of 15,259.

The addition of the "morning states" for each day divided by 365 gives the following results :—

Average daily number of men on the sick list - - - -	445·27
,, ,, ,, sick leave - - - -	31·83
,, ,, ,, detached leave - - - -	32·87
Total -	509·97

This gives as the daily average loss on the whole Force by sickness a per-centage of 3·34 as against 3·58 in 1892.

The following table gives the total number of Police placed on the sick list on account of injury both on and off duty, and also of the men who were placed on the sick list in consequence of sore feet :—

NOTE.—The population for the years 1882 to 1890 was taken from the Registrar General's Returns: the Census of 1891 has shown that the population of London during the above period has been over-estimated.

* The increase as compared with 1892 is mainly accounted for by the large amount (30,696*l.*) charged against the case of Charles Wells ("of Monte Carlo").

* The apparent decrease as compared with previous years is due to the new system of classification adopted by the Home Office for framing the Judicial Statistics, under which numerous cases of a kind previously included in this column are now transferred to Table 16. The convictions shown in that table under the head of Intoxicating Liquor Laws show an apparent increase of 2,218. This increase includes between 1,100 and 1,200 cases of Prostitutes, which under the old system of classification would have been added to the 573 given in Table 24.

THIRTY-SIXTH REPORT.

ANNUAL REPORT of Captain DAVID MONRO, Her Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary for Scotland, for the Year ended 15th March 1894.

GENERAL REPORT.

General Report.

To the Right Honourable Sir GEORGE OTTO TREVELYAN, M.P.,
Secretary for Scotland.

ALLAN HOUSE, FEARN, ROSS-SHIRE,
15*th March* 1894.

SIR,

Introductory. I have the honour, in compliance with the 65th Section of 20 and 21 Vict. cap. 72, to submit to your Lordship the Thirty-sixth Annual Report on the state and efficiency of the Constabulary and Police forces in the counties, cities, and burghs in Scotland.

Annual Inspections. During the past twelve months I have duly inspected the 31 county constabulary forces, and the 33 city and burgh police forces, in addition to the headquarters, the principal, divisional, and sectional stations, and all new or altered stations.

Certificates of Efficiency. I recommend that certificates of efficiency be granted by the Secretary for Scotland to the 31 county, and to the 33 city and burgh forces, as shown in Tables 1 and 2; these numbers include all the county constabulary forces (except the Orkney and Shetland police, who are still not under Government inspection), and all the city and burgh police forces in Scotland.

United Counties. The following counties are so far united as to have only one chief constable, viz.: Berwick and Roxburgh; Mid, West, and East Lothian, and Peebles; Fife and Kinross.

New Burgh Force. On the 10th March 1894, authority was granted for the following new police force for the burgh of Coatbridge, as from the 15th May 1894, viz.:—A chief constable at £200 per annum, 4 sergeants on 4th Model Scale, 26 constables on 6th Model Scale of pay, with 6d. extra each per week boot money. At present the Burgh is policed by the county of Lanark under a consolidation agreement.

Augmentations. The changes authorised during the year, as shown in Table 10, have resulted in an increase of 22 in county, and 16 in city and burgh forces, giving a total increase of 38, which make the present authorised strength 1663 in county forces, or 1 to 1257 of the population; and 2868 in city and burgh forces, giving 1 to 685; the total authorised force being 4531, which gives 1 to 895. If the 210 additional police, who are privately employed and paid, are added, the total in counties will be 1744, or 1 to 1198; in cities and burghs, 2997, or 1 to 656; giving a grand total of 4741 constables, or 1 to 855 of the population, excluding the Orkney and Shetland Islands.

Present Strength.

Augmentation Required. In addition to the annual augmentations that are absolutely necessary in order to keep up with the increasing population and the police work generally, and to maintain the forces in a state of efficiency, there are still a number of county and burgh forces numerically weak in proportion to area, population, and the extent and nature of the police duties, notably the counties of Aberdeen, Ayr, Banff, Caithness, Clackmannan, Dumbarton, Edinburgh, Elgin, Fife, Kincardine, Kirkcudbright, Lanark, Linlithgow, Stirling, Wigtown, and the cities of Aberdeen and Dundee, and the burghs of Alloa, Arbroath, Airdrie, Ayr, Brechin, Dumbarton, Dumfries, Dunfermline, Forfar, Galashiels, Govan, Hawick, Johnstone, Kilmarnock, Kinning Park, Kirkcaldy, Leith, Montrose, Paisley, Partick, Port-Glasgow, Rothesay, and Stirling.

Small Separate Forces. The large number of small separate police establishments unfortunately remains the same, and I have again to repeat that I find the greatest difficulty in reporting a number of these forces as thoroughly efficient, because they are certainly not, for very obvious reasons, so economical or as effective and generally useful as they would be if forming districts or divisions of larger forces.

Forces under 20 men, and 20,000 inhabitants.

Of the 31 county forces there are 5 with less than 20 men in each, in counties of under 20,000 inhabitants. Of these 5 forces, 2 have each less than 10 men, and 3 of the 5 are in counties of under 10,000 population.

Of the 33 cities and burghs maintaining separate forces, there are 19 with less than 20 men in each, 16 of these 19 being in towns having populations of under 20,000, and 7 of these 19 forces have each under 10 men, 4 of these 7 being in burghs of under 10,000 inhabitants.

Burghs Policed by Counties.

There are at present 24 burghs with populations ranging from 1600 to 31,739 policed by counties, as shown in Tables 8 and 9. Of these, 16 are police districts of counties, and 8 burghs, with over 7000 inhabitants each, and are consolidated with their respective counties in terms of Sections 58, 59 & 61, of 20 & 21 Vict. cap. 72 Police (Scotland) Act, 1857.

Detective Staff.

Much more attention is now given to this most important branch of the service, the Authorities apparently seeing the advantage of having one or more trained and qualified officers specially retained for criminal work, not only to assist local officers, but to continue investigations elsewhere without taking officers away from their beats. At present there is a Detective Staff of 119 officers in 11 county and in 11 city and burgh forces, the staff in the former being 10 inspectors, 7 sergeants, 5 detective officers,—total, 22; in the latter, 2 lieutenants, 5 inspectors, 7 sub-inspectors, 5 sergeants, 78 detective officers,—total, 97. In addition to these, there are frequently constables assisting in plain clothes. I have always been in favour of a General Criminal Investigation Department for Scotland, working from a central office, which would be of the greatest service in the prevention and detection of crime.

The Criminal Registry kept at Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen, and Inverness, referred to in previous reports, continues to work very satisfactorily in supplying the police with valuable information regarding habitual criminals; and to still further facilitate matters, four new centres have been approved for Photograph Registers, viz., Dumfries, Elgin, Greenock, and Stirling. And in regard to this very important matter it would be desirable that the police authorities, especially of the larger jurisdictions, should examine and consider, with the view of adopting them, the valuable recommendations in the Report of a Committee recently appointed by the Secretary of State for the Home Department to inquire into the best means available for identifying Habitual Criminals, as these recommendations, added to the existing system, might very materially aid in the prevention and detection of crime.

A "Police Gazette" for Scotland appears to be wanted, and was recommended to be established by the Select Committee of the House of Lords on "Scotch Police System," so long ago as 1868, for circulating among the police forces throughout the country information of crimes committed, &c., and other useful details, with a view to the more speedy detection of criminals. This was also strongly recommended by one of my predecessors in 1872.

Reserve Force.

Without a reserve it is almost impossible, in a number of instances, to have men in some degree trained and ready to fill vacancies, consequently the posts remain vacant until men are sufficiently qualified to fill them, or inexperienced and untried men are appointed. Acting on a recommendation made some years ago by the Secretary for Scotland, a number of Authorities have appointed a small reserve force at Head Quarters in order to provide trained men for general or escort duty, to take the places of those on the sick list or absent from duty from any cause. This is a very great improvement, and there are now 41 in reserve in 22 county, and 69 in 6 city or burgh forces; in all, a total of 110 reserve men.

Sheriff Officers.

The objectionable practice referred to in previous reports, of sheriff officers taking over charge of criminal cases at an intermediate stage in the proceedings, still exists in the Lower Ward of Lanarkshire, the Kilmarnock district of Ayrshire, the Dundee district of Forfarshire, the cities of Edinburgh, Glasgow, and Dundee, burghs of Kilmarnock, Kinning Park, Leith, Broughty Ferry, and Partick. This is a most unsatisfactory division of responsibility in the discharge of a very serious duty, which might lead to a miscarriage of justice, and has an injurious effect on the discipline and usefulness of the forces concerned. The police alone should be entrusted with criminal investigations from the commencement to the end. In a number of jurisdictions, however, the Constabulary are sworn sheriff officers, and have full charge of criminal offenders and cases, and there is no reason why this should not be general, so far as criminal cases are concerned. Sums are paid by the Crown to the Local Authorities as fees, in addition to expenses for this service; it is doubtful whether more than the actual outlays for travelling and personal expenses should be paid for what is clearly a police duty performed by forces in respect of which the Government Grant is paid. General Report.

In Table 7 are shown the additional police who are privately employed and paid, and for whom the Government Grant is not received, but whose services are available in case of emergency. They all wear uniform, and are under the orders of the chief constables, by whom they are appointed. There are 81 in counties, 129 in cities and burghs, in all 210. This includes a number of officers on duty at Government Public Buildings, the whole cost of whom is charged to Her Majesty's Treasury. It is a question whether these duties should not fall to be performed by the police of the jurisdiction, within which these Government Public Buildings are situated, as part of the general duty expected of a force on which the Government Grant is paid. The additional police should in all respects be effective, and be paid, clothed, and treated as an integral portion of the regular force, although they may be maintained by private funds. Additional Police Force.

Table 11 deals in detail with the ages, length of service, and height in the Permanent Force. The average age is 33½ years; average service, 9 7/12 years; average height, 5 ft. 10½ inches. Age, Length of Service, &c.

Forty-seven chief constables, 23 superintendents, 16 lieutenants, 49 inspectors, 3 detective sergeants, 27 detective officers, 12 clerks, 123 sergeants, 612 constables, total 912, have served in other forces for periods varying from 3 months to 36 years. Service in other Forces.

The nationality of the actual strength, vide Table 12, is:—Scotch, 4126; English, 66; Irish, 281; other nations, 6;—total, 4479. Tables 11 and 12 exclude the "additional" force privately employed and paid. Nationality.

In Tables 13 and 14 similar information is given regarding the "Additional" Police, viz.:—average age, 37⅓ years; average service, 12 7 years; average height, 5 ft. 10½ inches.

One inspector, 1 sergeant, 1 detective officer, and 28 constables have served in other forces for periods varying from 3 months to 17¼ years.

Nationality:—195 Scotch, 5 English, 10 Irish—total, 210.

There are 119 in the county, 225 in the city and burgh forces, total 344, who have served in the army; of whom 37 in the former and 83 in the latter are in the Army Reserve Force; and 5 have served in the Navy, none of whom is in the Naval Reserve. Army, Navy, and Reserve.

In Table 6 is given the number of changes that have taken place, viz., by death, 32; by resignation, 198; by retirement on gratuities, 7, and superannuation, 42; by dismissal, 104; by desertion, 1; by discharge, 14; by transference, 27;—total, 425, being 59 less than last year. Variations.

Although there has been a decrease of 47 as compared with last year, there has still been a large number of resignations, principally of young men fond of a change, who have joined other forces, or who have sought to better their prospects elsewhere. Of the 198 resignations, 12 were compulsory, and 14 were discharged as unfit for the service. Frequent resignations are attended with much inconvenience and expense, and are to a considerable extent caused by the practice in a number of City and Burgh forces of always having the same men on night-duty, including the recruits on joining. If this system was discontinued, new entrants might have more inducement to remain, and all the men would obtain a better knowledge of both day and night duty, and there would be fewer resignations. And no doubt the number of resignations would be further reduced if the Police (Scotland) Act, 1890, was assimilated as near as possible to the Police (England) Act, 1890, and by the general adoption of the "Model Scales of Pay" in their entirety for all ranks, as there would then be less inducement to seek service in the English constabulary and police forces. It would appear that 16 resigned to join English forces, but no doubt others did so after resignation. Frequent Resignations.

As so much has now been done to improve the pay, condition, and superannuation of the constabulary and police, only the very best men available should be engaged; and when a man has, by misconduct, proved his unfitness for the police service, he should be dismissed and not compelled to resign, or be Discharged and Dismissed Constables.

General Report.

discharged; for compulsory resignation is really dismissal, and the latter term surely should imply mental or physical unfitness.

General Conduct and Discipline.

On the whole, the general conduct has been very good, and the necessary discipline maintained.

Promotions and Appointments.

The promotions and advancements appear to have been carefully made; and the recruits inspected are, on the whole, much superior to those seen at previous inspections, and appear to be a satisfactory body of young men, suitable for the service.

The popularity of the constabulary and police appears to increase every year, which is very satisfactory, for nothing is more essential to peace and order than that the relations between the public and police should be always of the most harmonious character.

General Instruction.

The important matter of general instruction in police duties appears to be well attended to, especially in the larger forces. Since last report the Committee of Chief Constables have completed their labours, and produced a most useful and instructive "Police Manual," or General Regulations and Instructions. This has been duly published; 3250 copies were printed, and 2993 copies disposed of, of which 222 were presentation copies, the rest having been sold. It is, however, to be regretted that, though duly provided with copies, there are three forces in one sheriffdom where this useful book is not authoritatively recognised, and the police are therefore debarred from its useful guidance and instruction. The Committee deserve praise and thanks for their gratuitous labour, which has brought about such useful and excellent results.

Education.

As a rule, the Scottish constabulary and police are well educated, and a number of them highly so; if periodical examinations as to knowledge of police duties, such as are made in some forces, were more generally held by the Chief Constables, it would stimulate and probably bring the ablest and best qualified to the front.

Extra Duties and Allowances.

There should be no such thing as allowances for extra duties, for, if the police are suitably paid, clothed, and housed (as they ought always to be, for the duties are very responsible, often arduous and dangerous, and too frequently exposed to temptation), no extra allowances should be required for such duties as are not inconsistent with police service.

Some local authorities, with a desire to reduce local taxation, still endeavour to obtain the Government Grant on police salaries, which, in a number of instances, include allowances for extra duties, such, for example, as those of Procurator-Fiscal, the collection of rates and taxes, the inspection of weights and measures, of lighting, cleaning, paving, and draining, and bill-sticking, from which the Local Authorities derive either a revenue or a direct saving. The discharge of these offices is very likely to interfere with the due and efficient performance of the primary police duties, and the practice should therefore be discouraged. There are, however, duties which may be usefully performed by the police in some jurisdictions, as, for example, assisting sanitary inspectors, inspection under the Explosives, Food, and Drugs, and the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, and assisting the Inland Revenue officers and the officers of the Societies for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and Animals.

Books, &c.

Books, Forms, Records, &c., are complete, well kept, and up to date; but there is a want of uniformity, which is now more than ever necessary under the Police (Scotland) Act, 1890, especially with regard to schedules for candidates, registers and default books, and the pay books and pay sheets of forces. This want of uniformity might be overcome by the Chief Constables adopting set forms applicable to the several requirements of counties, cities, and burghs.

General Cost, Pay, Clothing, &c.

In Tables 1 and 2 are set forth the general cost, pay, clothing, &c. The total amount for pay and clothing for the authorised county constabulary, including the burghs policed by counties, is £126,302, 5s. 1d.; for the city and burgh police, £227,799, 18s. 3d. The total amount for the whole authorised force for pay and clothing is £354,102, 3s. 4d.

The aggregate cost of the police force, excluding the additional police, together with the rent, taxes, building, and all other expenses amounts to £162,569, 2s. in counties, and to £271,868, 7s. 5d. in cities and burghs, giving a grand total of £434,437, 9s. 5d.

Average Pay per Constable, &c.

The average annual pay of a county constable is £71, 12s., that of a city or burgh constable, £74, 16s. 3d. Including pay and clothing, the former is £75, 18s. 9d., and the latter £79, 8s. 6d., giving a general average of £73, 12s. 9d. for pay, and £78, 3s. for pay and clothing. General Report.

All the forces are now, wholly or in part, paid on the Government "Model" Scales. It is to be regretted that when adopting these rates of pay the chief constables, and the superior officers were, in so many instances, debarred from participation in these prospective benefits, and the boot allowance was not included in the pay. It is a moot point whether stamps are necessary on receipts for police pay, but if required by the Inland Revenue it should surely be paid by the local authority, and not by the recipients; the former is the practice, but there are exceptions, and in some large forces, which is to be regretted. Forces Paid on the Government Model Scales.

Great care should be taken that only the best conducted, ablest, and most deserving officers and men are advanced to the higher rates of pay on completing the fixed periods of approved service. And it should be borne in mind that the power of advancement is an instrument of discipline as well as a reward for merit. Pay Advancement.

The practice where it occurs, of stopping all or even a portion of the pay of men on the sick list appears to be unfair and injurious, because it deprives men and their families of money at the very time that it is most required, and on that account men may too long delay reporting sick, or get into debt and difficulties. On producing medical certificates surely constables who have contracted illness in the discharge of their duty are entitled to draw full pay during a reasonable duration of such illness, which might be left to the discretion of the chief constable. Pay Stoppages when Sick.

On the whole, the material, make, and pattern of the uniforms and clothing inspected are satisfactory, and the prices within the Government maximum rates, and generally reasonable. But in some city and burgh forces the night men are supplied with tunics every second year only, which places them at a disadvantage when put on day-duty temporarily or permanently, and is not in accordance with the Secretary for Scotland's rules on the subject. With the approval of the Secretary for Scotland, 26 county and 11 burgh forces have adopted, as an undress uniform for general duty, serge patrol jackets and trousers to be worn with the forage cap; the cloth tunic, trousers, and helmet being retained as full-dress to wear on special occasions; the former to be supplied annually, the latter as required, but on the distinct understanding that the authorised maximum cost of the clothing is not exceeded. It would be better if each force had sealed patterns of each article of clothing, according to which the uniforms should be made and supplied. Uniforms and Clothing.

A certain want of uniformity still exists, though in a very much less degree; for example, waist-belts are not worn with tunics, and the constable's number is worn on the breast instead of on the coat collar; and occasionally helmets and forage caps without badges, and great-coats without numbers, are found.

It is most striking how much better care some men take of their uniforms than others; the superior officers should note this, and also see that all necessary repairs are made at once. Nothing looks worse than to see unbrushed, unrepaired, and dirty uniforms.

It is absolutely necessary that every man should have at least one spare suit in readiness to replace the one in regular wear, in case of wet or damage. To enable this to be done, in a great number of instances, especially in burgh forces, the cloth must be better, in order to last the required period, which as a rule it should do for the liberal prices paid.

It is satisfactory to be able to report that 26 new and 10 altered stations in counties, and 10 new and 4 altered in cities and burghs, have been provided, during the past year, or are about to be completed on approved plans. Police Stations, Offices, Cells, &c.

The new stations are very satisfactory, many affording suitable accommodation for married and single men, as well as providing offices, charge-rooms, and well constructed cells, with the latest improvements. The small sub-stations erected in the city of Aberdeen, and the telephone signal boxes adopted in the city of Glasgow, are very serviceable, and should be adopted in other large towns. Where single men are quartered in barracks, it is desirable, where practicable, to adopt the cubicle system, in order to give as much privacy as possible. Due attention has also been paid to the sanitary arrangements, heating, ventilation, and the security of prisoners. New Stations.

By degrees the authorities are either replacing the worst stations with new ones, or adding to, altering, and improving others as far as may be, Additions and Alterations.

General Report.

taking the most important or worst first; but it will be a long time before they can all be made quite satisfactory.

Old County Stations.

As offices or charge-rooms have not been provided at many of the old county stations, the business has to be transacted in one of the officer's dwelling rooms, which are frequently few in number; and this arrangement is often very inconvenient, when the family is large, or when there is sickness in the house. Many of the old county cells are so badly placed or constructed that they are a nuisance to the officer's family, and particularly so when there are living rooms over the cells, and when prisoners have to be taken in by the house door; and communication can, in too many instances, be carried on between prisoners in the cells and from the outside through the imperfectly protected windows; and a number of cells are damp and cold, owing to imperfect foundations and drainage, or from defective or insufficient heating and ventilation; and in many instances from neglect of the necessary periodical repairs.

Allowances for cleaning Offices, Cells, &c.

Instead of allowances for cleaning offices and cells, the system of granting free houses appears to be more satisfactory; and the plan in some forces of supplying paint, paper, &c., for ordinary periodical repairs to be executed by the men themselves, seems to be a good and useful one.

Inferior City Stations.

Several divisional and sub-stations in the large cities are also exceedingly defective in construction and inadequate in accommodation, as indicated in the separate reports thereon, but it is satisfactory to state that the matter is now receiving careful consideration, and the numbers gradually reduced.

Absolute Necessity for Suitable Stations.

The necessity for providing proper police accommodation has been frequently brought before the Local Authorities concerned, and it should be understood that if a force is not provided with suitable stations, houses, offices, and cells, where they may be required, it may, on that account, be considered so far inefficient, because it is impossible to carry out the work effectually in defective, inadequate, and unsuitable premises.

Quarters for Married and Single Officers. Rented Houses.

The excellent plan of providing quarters for as many married and single men as possible at important stations should be encouraged. Care should be taken, for obvious reasons, that the rented houses provided for the others are suitable, affording at least three living-rooms and separate sanitary conveniences, and that all premises occupied by the police are kept clean, tidy, and model dwellings. The result of recent general inspections of the rented houses provided for the police is that, in many cases, the number of rooms are insufficient for the families; that in far too many instances the houses are in tenements, which are very inconveniently arranged; and further, that the houses are shared between a number of families, are in an insanitary condition, and lack the necessary conveniences.

If the members of the Standing Joint and Watch Committees would occasionally visit the Stations, but especially the rented houses provided for the county constabulary in their respective districts, the result would be most beneficial.

It would also be advisable to have a visitors' book at every police station, in order that the dates, remarks, and signatures of official visits might be entered by those who have the right to make such inspections.

Unnecessary Association in cells.

It is necessary that I should again refer to a practice, too common in city and burgh forces, of unnecessarily associating prisoners in the cells, both before and after trial, when there are vacant cells available. It is impossible to estimate the harm that has been or may be done by such association, the object being apparently to save trouble to the turnkeys and cleaners. This subject deserves the serious consideration of the authorities, because such unnecessary association may possibly be one of the means of increasing crime, which it is the duty of the police to suppress in every possible way.

Four prisoners died in the cells, or whilst in the custody of the police. All these cases were fully investigated by the Procurator-Fiscals, and no blame attached to the police.

Legalised Cells.

The police cells that are legalised for short periods of detention and imprisonment are given in Table 15, and, with the exception of those at the Central Police Station at Edinburgh, are periodically visited by the Inspectors of Her Majesty's Prisons.

I have again to point out the urgent necessity for legalised cells at Dornoch or Golspie, at Wick, and at Stranraer; because, in addition to other objections, the time occupied, and the expense incurred, by the police escorting prisoners to and from the prisons at Inverness and Maxwelltown, are very considerable. General Report.

It is most desirable that in future legal powers should be given to local authorities to acquire suitable sites for police buildings, and provisions made that plans and specifications for the erection of new police buildings, alterations to old, or converting premises intended for police purposes in cities and burghs be submitted, as in the case of counties, for the approval of the Secretary for Scotland. Plans of New Stations, &c., in Burghs should be approved by the Secretary for Scotland.

In recent years the greater efficiency and more general usefulness of the police has been attained by— Greater Efficiency.

The passing of the Police Act of 1890, to provide Superannuation.

Augmenting forces that were numerically weak, and providing a necessary small reserve in county and city and burgh forces; by having detective officers in the larger forces; and in some important jurisdictions abolishing the objectionable practice of sheriff officers taking over charge of criminal cases.

Improving the pay, and adopting for forces rates based on the rules of the Government Model Scales, which afford increased rates of pay after completion of approved periods of service.

Supplying better and more suitable uniforms, and providing annually an undress serge uniform for general duty in a number of County Constabulary and in some Burgh forces.

Providing suitable police stations, offices, and cells where required, and repairing and improving the older premises, and paying more attention to the suitability of the rented houses provided.

The adoption in 17 Counties of bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy in terms of Section 57 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889.

Mounting officers and constables on bicycles where practicable in several forces has been found most serviceable.

The extension of telephonic communication in 15 county and in 32 city and burgh police jurisdictions.

Providing the new "Police Manual," as prepared by a Committee of Chief Constables, to which can be added the general orders for each force; making the whole a most useful book of instruction and guidance for every constable.

Instruction in simple drill formations, which should, however, always be uniform throughout the service. And the ambulance instruction now given to 3391 men in 62 forces. This very useful knowledge has been found of much service in affording first aid to the injured. All forces should be provided with a complete ambulance kit.

The chiefs of police in 10 county and 23 city or burgh forces being provided with uniform, and in 15 of the former and in 13 of the latter being mounted on special occasions.

The introduction of the early closing of licensed premises, which has not only proved conducive to peace and order, but enables the police to give more undivided attention to the very important duty of patrolling and watching earlier in the night.

The provision in some forces of noiseless boots for night duty.

In my opinion greater effectiveness and more general usefulness of the police would be attained— Greater Effectiveness attainable.

By reducing the large number of small separate police establishments by grouping into larger districts; and where two or more county forces are under the same chief constable, by providing means for a free transfer of men from one force to another without limit or restriction as to age or length of service.

By extending the telephone to all the important police stations so as to give continuous communication, and very much reduce indoor and clerical work. And also by adopting in large towns small Sub-stations, and the telephone box signal system.

By providing vans for conveying constables to or from distant beats, and for bringing in prisoners.

By regular periodical exercise of the men in simple drill formation, which should be uniformly the same for all forces, so that they may be able to act together in order when massed, or when in conjunction with another force, and by increasing the number who receive ambulance instruction.

By holding periodical examinations of the men as to their knowledge of police duties, &c.

By having detective officers in most forces for criminal work, and abolishing the objectionable practice, where it still exists in some jurisdictions, of sheriff officers taking charge of criminal cases.

General Report.

By having a reserve in proportion to the strength, to provide men in some degree trained to fill vacancies, &c.

By providing bicycles in county districts where they could be serviceable to the constabulary. Where adopted, this mode of travelling has been found most useful, as it enables constables to visit their beats oftener, and to be visited more frequently by their superior officers. Local Authorities should therefore do everything to encourage the use of the bicycle, either by providing bicycles, or giving each officer an annual allowance, so long as he utilises a bicycle of his own on duty.

By keeping in some of the larger and more important forces a few trained horses, in order that the men may be better mounted.

By providing some effectual means for dealing with and disposing of "Habitual Offenders," who at present monopolise too much of the time of the police.

By extending the Public-Houses Hours of Closing (Scotland) Act of 1887 to all places, which would conduce to peace and order, and enable the police to give more and earlier attention to patrolling and watching.

By introducing a "Police Gazette" for Scotland.

By the County Councils in the 14 remaining counties framing bye-laws for prevention of vagrancy under the 57th section of the Local Government Act of 1889. And it would be better if these Bye-Laws were made uniform and general.

By providing the city and burgh police with noiseless boots for night duty.

By providing more suitable rented houses in certain counties.

Licensed Premises.

As shown in Table 18, the total number of licences in county jurisdictions is 4412, which gives 1 to every 417 of the population. In city and burgh jurisdictions 7118, or 1 to every 311 of the inhabitants. In Scotland (omitting the Orkney and Shetland Islands) there are 11,530 licensed premises, or 1 to every 352 of the estimated population. At present there are 116 separate licensing authorities, 31 in counties, and 85 in cities and burghs. If the courts were restricted to county, city, and large burgh jurisdictions there would be fewer and better licensed premises, and the police work would be proportionately reduced; in some counties there is a number of separate Licensing Courts. In Fifeshire, for example, there are no less than 19, whereas in other counties there are comparatively few; Lanarkshire, for instance, has only 7. The County Courts grant the licenses for the burghs of Alloa, Broughty Ferry, Govan, Johnstone, Kinning Park, and Partick.

Licensing Courts.

Special Permissions.

Convictions.

Result of Early Closing.

The Table also shows the number of "special permissions," of which there were 3004 in counties, and 2518 in cities and burghs, in all 5522; and 108 convictions for breach of certificate, which is 28 more than last year. The effect of the early closing on peace and order has been so very satisfactory, that it is to be regretted that it was not made more general, or indeed absolute, instead of permissive, as it would, while improving peace and order, also have relieved the police in large cities and burghs earlier in the night to attend to the very important duty of patrolling and watching.

Vagrants, Tramps, and Beggars, Census of.

Table 20 gives the result of the census of vagrants ordered by the Secretary for Scotland to be taken by the police on a given form twice a year, viz., on the first Sunday night after the longest and the shortest days; and in Table 21 an analysis of the census taken in 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, 1892, and 1893.

The 15th Section of The Prevention of Crimes Act, 34 and 35 Vict. cap. 112, is enforced in 15, and the Trespass Act, 28 and 29 Vict. cap. 56, in 28 counties. The 57th Section of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, gives County Councils powers to make bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, and these have been framed in 17, but not in 14 counties. Where enforced these bye-laws have been found of service; but, unfortunately, in consequence of a late decision in a Mid-Lothian case by the High Court of Justiciary, these desirable bye-laws have, in a number of instances, either not been framed or are in abeyance.

Pedlars' Certificates.

There were 2995 pedlar certificates granted in counties, and 3097 in cities and burghs, total 6092, or 236 more than last year. This represents a sum of £748, 15s. in counties, and £774, 5s. in cities and burghs; and a total sum of £1523, which now goes towards the Superannuation Funds under the Police Act, 1890. General Report.

It is alleged that a number of persons obtain pedlar certificates as a cloak for begging. If this be so, the police, who issue the licenses, have the remedy in their own hands, for these certificates should only be granted to bonâ fide pedlars of known respectability, and the license can, if necessary, be withheld or cancelled.

The state of crime is indicated in the separate Reports on forces. The increase is generally in ordinary police offences, but there has been some increase in serious crime. In connection with this subject it may be observed that what may be considered as strictly confidential police information in regard to grave criminal charges unfortunately in some cases obtains premature publicity through the medium of the newspapers, and thus criminals may be assisted in evading the officers of the law and defeating the ends of justice. This should, so far as possible, be avoided. General State of Crime. Serious Crimes.

In conclusion, I would most respectfully submit the necessity for legislation with regard to the following subjects, as they have a vital importance and bearing on the state, efficiency, general usefulness, and cost of the Scottish constabulary and police :— Prematurely publishing Police Information.

(1) The reduction of the very large number of small separate police establishments, by grouping into larger districts, or consolidating with county forces ; and where two or more county forces are under the same chief constable provision should be made for a free transfer of men from one force to another without limit or restriction as to age or length of service. Necessity for Legislation.

(2) The assimilation, as far as practicable, of the provisions of the Police (England) Act, 1890.

(3) Giving powers to sheriffs and magistrates to deal with habitual offenders, by sentencing them for lengthened periods to suitable places provided for the purpose.

(4) The Public-Houses Hours of Closing (Scotland) Act, 1887, to be made compulsory throughout Scotland.

With superannuation, and, in most forces, improved pay on the Government "Model" Scales, which afford advancement on rising rates of pay on completion of approved periods of service, the very best men should be induced to join and remain contented in the Scottish police service.

It would very much facilitate the preparation of this Report if made up to the 31st December instead of the 15th March of each year, as this would make it concurrent with the Constabulary and Police Annual Reports, and thus save the chief constables and myself a great deal of unnecessary trouble ; it would further enable the annual inspections to be begun earlier in the year.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

D. MUNRO,

Her Majesty's Inspector of Constabulary for Scotland.

ALTERATIONS WHILE PRINTING.

Burgh of Partick Police Force.—On the 29th March 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an increase of the salary of the chief constable from £220 to £260 per annum, as from the 15th May next.

County of Stirling.—On 3rd April 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of one 3rd class constable.

County of Aberdeen.—On the 13th April 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the number of duty sergeants being increased from 6 to 7 by the transfer of an office sergeant whose place has hitherto been filled by a constable.

County of Haddington.—On the 10th May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an additional allowance to the Deputy Chief Constable of £10 per annum as such as from 15th March 1894.

County of Kirkcudbright.—On the 10th, as from the 15th May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of two 3rd-class constables.

County of Renfrew.—On the 17th May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an addition of £15 per annum to the salary of Detective Inspector Robert Mearns, on the condition that the increased salary (£130) is personal to that officer.

Burgh of Brechin.—On the 18th, as from the 15th May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the Chief Constable being paid on the Government scale of pay applicable to a 2nd-class superintendent, viz., £120, rising by quinquennial increments of £15 to £150 per annum.

City of Edinburgh.—On the 22nd May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of the force by three constables.

Burgh of Partick.—On the 22nd May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of this force by five 3rd-class constables.

County of Banff.—On the 22nd May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation to the force of one 3rd-class constable.

County of Argyll.—On the 22nd May, as from 15th March 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the Inspectors being paid, one on the 1st, one on the 2nd, and one on the 3rd Government Model Scales of Pay.

County Police Assessment.—County, 1·078d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of the city of Aberdeen, all the burghs are policed by the county.

Alterations in the Force.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 6th June, as from the 15th May 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of five inspectors (including the office inspector) being raised to the highest model scale for their grade, viz.:—£100 on appointment, rising after 5 years' approved service to £107, 10s.; after 10 years' approved service, to £115 per annum.

Police Reserve.—Two constables at Head-Quarters for general duty.

Variations.—One constable died, 4 constables resigned, 4 constables were superannuated, and 2 constables were discharged at the end of the fishing season.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable and three inspectors are inspectors of weights and measures; the former receives £30 and the latter £16 each, and two constables employed in assisting the inspectors receive £7 and £5 each per annum. Seven inspectors receive from £4, 4s. to £3, 3s. each as inspectors under the Explosives Act.

Police Stations.—There are 29 stations, with from 1 to 6 cells at each, in all 64 cells; 24 are county, 1 burgh property, and 5 are rented. The 6 cells at the disused prisons at Peterhead, 2 at Fraserburgh, and 3 at Huntly, are legalised for 3 days' imprisonment, and the officers in charge receive 20s. each per annum. An excellent police station, with cells, has been provided on approved plans at Auchmill, near Aberdeen. Officers occupying station-houses, the property of the county, pay from £3 to £5 rent per annum, paid monthly; and receive actual outlays for cleaning offices and cells. When rented houses are supplied, excess of rent and taxes over £5 is paid by the county. The deputy chief constable is allowed £17, 10s. per annum for house rent.

The Telephone.—There is one connection at the head-quarters office, Aberdeen, with chief constable's residence and exchange, at a cost of £9, 10s. per annum.

Mounted.—The chief constable in uniform on special occasions.

Mounted on Bicycles.—A detective officer, office clerk, a sergeant, and 40 constables.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable, 2 inspectors, a detective officer, office clerk, two sergeants, 26 constables, total 33, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—252 granted, being an increase of 33.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Steps were being taken to frame Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, but have been delayed, owing to the decision of the High Court of Justiciary in a Mid-Lothian case.

State of Crime.—An increase of 5 in serious crime, but a general decrease in general offences, apprehensions, and convictions.

Remarks.—The force giving only one officer to 1643 of the population is numerically weak. It appears to be a mistake to discharge all the extra constables at the end of each fishing season. If retained, their services could be very well utilised during the rest of the year.

Report.—Subject to the above remark, the force is efficient.

City Police Assessment.—2d. in the £.

Augmentations.—Nil.

Alterations in Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Eleven constables resigned, one compulsory; a sergeant was superannuated, and 2 constables were discharged as unfit for the service. Total, 14 changes.

Promotions.—One constable to sergeant on 2nd June 1893.

Mounted Police.—On special occasions the chief constable in uniform, 2 lieutenants, 4 inspectors, and 4 sergeants are mounted on hired horses, and more if necessary; and there are 2 inspectors and 4 constables mounted on bicycles.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief officer, 2 lieutenants, 6 inspectors, 6 detective officers, 2 clerks, 11 sergeants, 111 constables—total, 139 (including the Harbour police), have been instructed.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—One inspector receives £7 per annum as inspector of hackney carriages.

Police Offices and Cells.—The office accommodation is most inadequate, and the 10 cells are very badly arranged and unsuitable. The city authorities are, however, providing a suitable central station by converting the adjacent old prison, which is also intended to provide police court house, &c.

The Telephone.—The central police station, six sub-stations and telephone signal boxes, the chief constable, the superintendent of the Fire Brigade, and the police surgeon's residences, and the exchange, are all connected for £55 per annum.

Police Reserve Force.—Nil.

Pedlars' Certificates.—209 granted, being an increase of 21.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males, 11; females, 2;—total, 13; being a decrease of 1.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—Considering the area and population, the force, giving only 1 officer to ·933 of the population, appears to be numerically weak.

Report.—Subject to the above remark, the force is efficient.

station with 14 cells legalised for 14 days, in charge of a sergeant, who has a free house, and his wife receives £18 per annum as matron; and the burgh providing the other police office with 3 cells, and the county pays £10 per annum rent for a married sergeant's quarters. The burgh of Dunoon and parish of Kilmun are formed into a separate district.

Augmentations.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Four constables resigned voluntarily, 1 constable discharged for unfitness. A superintendent, two sergeants, and a constable were superannuated. Total, 9 changes.

Promotions.—An inspector to superintendent, 3rd August 1893. A constable to sergeant, 8th June 1893. A constable to sergeant, 3rd August 1893. A sergeant to inspector, and a constable to sergeant, 18th January 1894.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is chief inspector under the Explosives and Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, and billet-master. Two superintendents and an inspector are assistant explosive inspectors. Two superintendents, 3 inspectors, 6 sergeants, and 4 constables are inspectors under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts; and a superintendent, and an inspector are billet-masters.

Police Reserve Force.—Two constables in reserve at head-quarters for escort and general duty.

Police Stations.—There are 14 stations with 2 to 23 cells at each, in all 79 cells; 11 county, 1 burgh, and 2 rented property. The disused prisons at Campbeltown, Dunoon, Inveraray, Lochgilphead, and Tobermory are used for police purposes. The 14 cells at Campbeltown, the 7 at Dunoon, the 23 at Inveraray, and the 5 at Oban are legalised for 14 days' detention of prisoners before, or during, or after trial; and the 4 cells at Lochgilphead, and the 4 cells at Port Ellen, in Islay, are legalised, the former for 3, the latter for 5 days' detention. The officers in charge of legalised cells have free houses, coal, &c.; and with the exception of Lochgilphead and Port Ellen, the officers' wives, as matrons, receive £18 each per annum. The authorities have prepared plans for providing new stations with cells at Bowmore in Islay, and at Tighnabruaich. A new station is much required at Dunoon, and necessary alterations to the Dalmally station; and accommodation should be provided at Inveraray station for constables coming from a distance who have to remain over night. Officers in charge of stations live rent free. The chief constable and inspector pay rent for the houses provided at head-quarters. Some officers pay from 10d. to 1s. 8d. per week as rent for houses provided. A shilling a week is paid to the sergeants and constables at Campbeltown, Dunoon, and Oban, who are not provided with quarters. The remainder find their own houses or lodgings.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced.

Ambulance Instruction.—Two superintendents, 2 inspectors, 7 sergeants, 1 office clerk, 41 constables, total 53, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—85 granted, being a decrease of 5.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Bye-laws under section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, for the prevention of vagrancy, have been framed, but not approved of, by the Secretary for Scotland.

State of Crime.—A general increase in ordinary offences, apprehensions, and convictions, but a decrease of 22 cases of serious crime.

Remarks.—No deputy chief constable has been appointed.

Report.—The force is efficient.

† One superintendent is authorised to receive £20 per annum additional as deputy chief constable.

The office clerk may be either an inspector, a sergeant, or a constable. At present an inspector.

The detective officers may be either inspectors or sergeants. At present inspectors.

Boot money included in the pay, except in the case of inspectors who will continue to receive the present allowance until advanced to a higher rate of pay.

* At present there is a superintendent and an inspector short of the authorised number; for the former an extra constable is borne, so that there is one vacancy, viz., an inspector.

The following deductions are made for officers occupying station houses or county rented houses:—Superintendents 3s., inspectors 2s., sergeants and constables 1s. 6d. per week. Single men rent free.

There are four constables in reserve.

No deduction from pay under three months on sick list.

County of Ayr.

County Police Assessment.—2d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of Ayr and Kilmarnock, which maintain separate establishments, all the burghs and populous places are policed by the county. Irvine pays £100, in addition to county assessment, and the county supplies the police station.

Variations.—Twelve constables resigned; the deputy chief constable and 2 constables superannuated, and a constable retired on a gratuity; 5 constables discharged as unfit for the service; 3 constables dismissed for misconduct, and a constable transferred to another force. Total, 25 changes.

Augmentations.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Promotions.—A superintendent to deputy chief constable, and an inspector to superintendent, and a sergeant to inspector, 21st December 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The deputy chief constable, 4 superintendents, and 4 inspectors are inspectors under the Explosives Acts. The deputy chief constable, 3 superintendents, 3 inspectors, 6 sergeants, are inspectors of weights and measures, for which they receive between them £79, 16s. The senior officer at each station is billet-master.

Police Stations.—There are 21 stations with charge rooms, &c., and from 2 to 15 cells, total 75, and are all county property. The stations are generally suitable, and those recently constructed or altered are very satisfactory. There are 44 rented houses provided. Deduction for houses provided are made at the following rates:—Superintendents, 3s.; inspectors, 2s.; married sergeants and constables, 1s. 6d. per week; single constables are lodged free. Those not provided with houses or lodgings are granted the following allowances:—Superintendents, £15; inspectors, £8 per annum; sergeants and constables, 1s. 6d. per week. Allowance for cleaning offices and cells varies from £1 to £9, 12s. per annum.

The Telephone.—The following are connected:—Chief constable's residence and Head Quarter Office and County Buildings Ayr, Ardrossan, Cumnock, Dalry, Irvine, and Kilmarnock stations, at an annual cost of £58, 5s., and with the Glasgow Circuit and other places at the usual rates.

Police Reserve.—There are 4 constables in reserve.

Mounted Constables.—On special occasions the chief constable, deputy chief constable, 4 sergeants, and 5 constables, in all 11, are mounted on hired horses and saddlery.

Drill.—The force is now instructed in a peculiar drill in "threes" instead of the usual drill in "fours."

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 5 superintendents, 6 inspectors, 2 detective officers, 18 sergeants, 60 constables, total 92, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—259 granted, being a decrease of 36.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are strictly enforced. No steps have been taken under Section 57 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889, to frame bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy. A mendicity society is successfully carried out by the constabulary.

State of Crime.—An increase of 45 cases of serious crime, of 29 in the general offences, of 177 in apprehensions, and of 127 in convictions.

Remarks.—The force giving only one officer to 1281 of the population appears to be numerically weak, considering the state of crime, the area, and the number of burghs and populous mining and other villages policed. Notwithstanding the fact that the Secretary for Scotland approved, on the 6th November 1888, of the appointment of a detective inspector for the express purpose of assisting the procurator-fiscal in criminal cases in the Kilmarnock district, this important duty is still attended to by a sheriff officer, and the constabulary officer has therefore not been appointed to the district, which is very unsatisfactory, for this very responsible duty should be carried out by a constabulary officer specially selected for the purpose.

Report.—Subject to the above remark, the force is efficient.

The chief constable's salary is at a fixed rate.

The chief constable receives 6d. per week boot allowance; that for sergeants and constables is included in the pay.

On the 14th July 1893, the Secretary for Scotland sanctioned the promotion of the inspector to the rank of superintendent on a salary of £120 per annum, and on the 24th January 1894, the constables being raised to the 6th model scale of pay.

Pay may be stopped by the chief constable when the period off duty on the sick list does not exceed two weeks, after that the committee will deal with the case.

Provide their own houses.

Number on street day duty, 11 for 11 hours. Number on street night duty, 12 for 9½ hours. Two suburban constables have part day and night duty. One on office day duty for 10½ hours. One office night duty for 9½ hours. Every third Sunday off duty. Constables 5½, other grades 7, days' annual leave.

The Burgh Police Assessment is 4d. in the £.

Augmentations.—Nil.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—On the 14th July 1893, the Secretary for Scotland sanctioned the promotion of Inspector Findlay to the rank of superintendent, on a salary of £120 per annum; and on the 24th January 1894, the constables being placed on the 6th model scale of pay.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—One office inspector to superintendent, a sergeant to office inspector, and a constable to sergeant, 14th July 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector under the Explosives Act, for which he receives £2, 2s. per annum; as billet-master he receives no extra allowance.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The offices are suitable, and there are 19 very good cells on two flats, and there is a female searcher and cleaner. All provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—The Police Office is in connection with the counties of Ayr, Dumbarton, Lanark, and Renfrew, at a cost of £8, 10s. per annum, and pays usual trunk rates for messages elsewhere.

Mounted Police.—Two constables are mounted on special occasions, on hired horses and saddlery, but 5 are available if required. The office clerk and 9 constables are mounted on bicycles when required.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, the superintendent, the office inspector and sergeant, 2 sergeants, 21 constables, total 27, have been instructed. The force is provided with all the necessary ambulance appliances.

Pedlars' Certificates.—76 granted, being a decrease of 3.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 13, females 12, total 25, being an increase of 7.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 942 of the population, appears to be numerically weak.

Report.—Subject to the above remark, the force is efficient.

Burgh of Kilmarnock.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £42 per annum as procurator-fiscal of the Burgh Police Court, inspector of lighting, and of hackney carriages, and as billet-master. He is also prosecutor under the Public Houses Acts, for which he receives £8 per annum, in all £50. A lieutenant is inspector under the Explosive Acts, and a sergeant inspector of common lodging-houses, but neither have any extra allowance.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The offices are suitable, and there are 6 cells. Members provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—Direct telephonic communication with the counties of Ayr, Lanark, Renfrew, and Dumbarton at an annual cost of £8, 10s.; and the usual trunk rates for messages to other places.

Mounted Police.—One lieutenant, 1 sergeant, and 4 constables available if required.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 lieutenants, 1 office clerk, 2 sergeants, constables, total 14, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—98 granted, being an increase of 1.

Vagrants, &c., Convicted of Begging.—Males 5, Females 0,—total 5, being a decrease of 1.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Sheriff Officers.—Take over charge of criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings. This is very unsatisfactory, for the police only should have charge of such cases from the commencement to the end.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1211 of the population, is numerically weak. The chief constable should be provided with uniform to wear on special occasions.

Report.—Subject to the above remark as to numerical weakness, the force is efficient.

Burghs.—All the burghs are policed by the county, and assessed as above.

Augmentations.—On the 4th January 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of one 3rd class constable being added to the strength of the force.

COUNTY OF BANFF—continued. County of Banff.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A sergeant and 4 constables resigned, one of the latter compulsory. Two constables dismissed for misconduct—total, 7 changes.

Promotions.—The senior inspector to superintendent and deputy chief constable 8th July 1893. A constable to sergeant 17th January 1894.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is procurator-fiscal for the burgh of Cullen under the Public Houses Act, and allowed fees. All are inspectors under the Explosives and the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts. A constable, as sanitary inspector, receives £4, 4s. per annum.

Police Stations. — There are 16 stations, 6 county, 1 burgh, and 9 rented property, with from 2 to 21 cells at each, in all 57 cells, and suitable offices at Aberlour, Banff, Buckie, Keith, and Newmill. A new station, on approved plans, has has been provided and occupied at Keith. Plans are prepared and a site obtained for a new station at Macduff. New stations are much required at Dufftown and Portsoy. Married officers pay 1s. 6d. each per week house rent. The twenty-one cells in the disused prison at Banff are legalised for fourteen days' detention and imprisonment, are in charge of a married constable who has free quarters, &c., and his wife, as matron, receives £12, 12s. per annum.

The Telephone—Has not been introduced, but might be with great advantage to the service.

Police Reserve.—One constable in reserve at head-quarters.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, inspector, 2 sergeants, 21 constables, total 26, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—114 granted, being an increase of 17.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws have been framed for the prevention of vagrancy under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, but are in abeyance owing to the decision of the High Court of Justiciary in a Mid-Lothian case.

State of Crime.—A decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1944 of the population, is numerically weak, and there are a number of important burghs and populous fishing villages to police.

Report.—Subject to this remark the force is efficient.

County Police Assessments.—$\frac{21}{24}$d. in the £.

Burghs.—All the burghs are policed by the county, and assessed at the same moderate rate.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay and the Force.—On the 31st December 1893, the late chief constable, Mr George Henry List, was superannuated after 32 years' service, and Mr Alexander Porter, chief constable of Roxburghshire, appointed chief constable of both counties, on a salary of £190 per annum and £40 per annum travelling allowance for this county. Approval of the Secretary for Scotland 4th January 1894.

Variations.—The chief constable, Mr G. H. List, after 32 years' service, was superannuated, and 5 constables resigned, 1 compulsory, and 1 to join the City of London Police Force—Total, 6 changes.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is chief officer, assisted by the superintendent, under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, and billet-master. The superintendent, inspector, and 2 sergeants are inspectors under the Explosives Acts. A superintendent has £25 as inspector of weights and measures. Two constables are sanitary inspectors. A few constables are still employed as lighting, cleaning, paving, and draining inspectors, and in collecting outstanding local rates; these are not police duties, are objectionable, and should be discontinued.

Police Stations.—There are 11 stations, all county property, with 2 to 12 cells at each, in all 35 cells. There are 13 rented houses provided. The 12 cells at Greenlaw are legalised for 14 days' detention and imprisonment, and are in charge of a resident married sergeant, who has a free house, &c., and his wife, as matron, receives £5 per annum. Plans have been approved for providing a suitable head-quarter station in connection with the proposed new County Building and Sheriff Court House at Duns which is now in progress. The superintendent and deputy chief constable and a constable at Duns have free houses, &c.; the remainder pay 1s. each per week house rent. Unmarried men receive 1s. each a week lodging money. Cleaning allowances from 8s. 8d. to £1, 6s. per annum.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced in the county.

Ambulance Instruction.—The superintendent and 3 constables have been instructed. Instruction should be given to more of the men.

Pedlars' Certificates.—94 granted, being an increase of 2.

Vagrants.—The 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not, but the Trespass Act is, enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, have not been framed.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The chief constable has also charge of the adjoining county of Roxburgh, which appears to be a very satisfactory arrangement.

Report.—The force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—2¾d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of the burgh of Rothesay, which maintains a small separate police force, all the other populous places are policed as part of the county, and assessed at the above rate.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector under the Explosives and the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, but receives no extra allowance.

Police Stations.—At the head-quarters, Rothesay, there is only a very small office room for the chief constable, and there being no county cells, prisoners have to be handed over for custody to the burgh police, who provide the county with the use of a cell at a rent of £15 per annum, which is not at all a satisfactory or desirable arrangement. There are suitable police stations, with two cells at each, at Kilchattan Bay, Lamlash, and Millport. Police stations with cells appear to be much required at Port-Bannatyne, Brodick, and Shedog. A new police station with cells has been completed and occupied at Lochranza. The sergeant at Lamlash, and the constables at Millport, at Lochranza, and at Kilchattan have free houses. The sergeant stationed at Port-Bannatyne receives £5 per annum house rent. The remainder provide their own houses.

The Telephone—The Head Quarter Office and Port Bannatyne at £6 per annum.

Ambulance Instruction.—One constable, but it would be desirable to have all instructed.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws have been framed for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government (Scotland) Act, 1889.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—Stations with cells are required, especially at head-quarters or Port Bannatyne, and at Brodick, and Shedog. The force is much too small to be a separate police establishment, and it would be rendered more efficient and useful at a less cost if the burgh of Rothesay was consolidated, which would be a mutual advantage, and in all respects a very much better arrangement.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

BURGH OF ROTHESAY—continued. Burgh of Rothesay.

Promotions.—Nil.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There is an office for the chief constable, a charge room, &c., and 6 cells. The chief constable has a house at the police buildings, for which he pays a rent of £15 per annum; £3 per annum allowed for cleaning offices and cells; all others provide their own houses. The county of Bute pays the burgh £15 per annum for the use of one cell.

The Telephone.—Has been introduced at an annual cost of £6, 10s.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 sergeants, 3 constables have been instructed, and hold the St Andrew's certificate.

Pedlars' Certificates.—27 granted, being a decrease of 8.

Vagrants, &c. Convicted of Begging.—4 males, being an increase of 3.

State of Crime.—A very slight increase, except in apprehensions and convictions.

Remarks.—One officer to 1011 of the population is still numerically weak for area, population, and the extra summer duty; and the force is much too small to be thoroughly efficient as a separate establishment; and on public grounds the burgh authorities ought to consolidate with the county, which would be a cheaper and in every respect a much better arrangement, as well as a mutual benefit.

The area of the burgh is 2555 acres, and about 2½ miles in length and breadth; the work during the summer season is greatly increased when the resident population is about 15,000, and crowds constantly coming and going.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1¼d. in the £.

Burghs.—The burgh of Wick pays the county for police £125 per annum, for which it is assessed at 3¼d. in the £, but the cost to the county was £138, 2s. 1½d.; and the burgh of Thurso, which is formed into a separate police district, is assessed at 3¼d. in the £, and costs the county £207, 3s. 2d. On the 18th October 1890, the Secretary for Scotland, in reference to the expressed wishes of the County Council, consented to the proposal to form the District of Pulteneytown, as described in the Act 7 and 8 Vict. Cap. 52, Section 171, and including the Harbour of Pulteneytown, into a separate police district, in terms of Section 58 of the Police Act, 1857, from the 15th May 1890, the police force, as already sanctioned for the said district, to consist of 1 sergeant and 4 constables, the county providing the police offices, cells, &c.; police assessment 3½d. in the £, the cost to the county being £353, 15s. 1d.

Augmentation and Alteration in the Force.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector under the Explosives, the Contagious Diseases (Animals), and the Weights and Measures Acts, and is billet-master. The inspector is sub-inspector under the Weights and Measures Acts. No extra allowances granted.

Police Stations.—There are 6 stations, 4 county, 1 burgh, and 1 rented property, with from 2 to 5 cells at each, in all 16 cells. There are 6 rented houses provided. The 3 cells at Thurso are legalised for 3 days' detention or imprisonment in charge of a married sergeant who pays 2s. a week rent, and his wife receives, as matron, £3, 16s. per annum. There are very dangerous stone steps leading down to the 5 very inferior police cells at Wick. The sergeant at Pulteneytown receives £5 per annum; the sergeant at Thurso pays 2s. per week and the remainder 1s. per week house rent.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, the inspector, 2 sergeants, 19 constables, total 23, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—55 granted, being an increase of 5.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is in force, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. No steps have been taken to frame bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

County of Caithness.

Remarks.—The force is numerically weak, giving only one officer to 1616 of the population which is greatly increased during the fishing season. And there should be at least one constable in reserve at Wick for escort and general duty. It is very desirable that there should be suitable and legalised cells at Wick, in order to save the county the expense and the time occupied in conveying prisoners to and from the distant prison at Inverness. If it was necessary for the county authorities to have legalised cells at Thurso when there was a prison at Wick, the necessity for legalised cells at Wick is very apparent. During the last 12 months 36 males and 4 females, total 40 prisoners, were escorted to or from the prison at Inverness, which necessitated 39 officers making 38 journeys, the average period of absence 18 hours, and the cost to the country £92, 2s. 4d. Having regard to the interests of police administration, it is to be regretted that the authorities did not, as advised, find it practicable to arrive at an arrangement under which the formation of Wick and Pulteneytown, including the Harbour, into one district might have been effected. It is also to be regretted that when revising the rates of pay the authorities did not act on the suggestion to adopt the government model scales of pay, and a rising scale of salary for the chief constable and the inspector. The police cells at Wick are very inferior, and the approach to them most dangerous.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

COUNTY OF CLACKMANNAN—continued.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 4th November 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the adoption of the 6th model scale of pay for sergeants and constables.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £43 as inspector of weights and measures, and £2, 2s. as inspector under the Explosives Act. The sergeant stationed at Tillicoultry receives £7, 10s., and the constable at Dollar £5 per annum as assistant sanitary inspectors. The sergeant at Tillicoultry has £2, 10s. per annum as public park ranger.

Police Stations.—There are 5 stations, all county property, with 2 to 3 cells at each, in all 11 cells. The 3 cells in the County Buildings and Sheriff Court House at Alloa are in charge of the keeper, who is sworn in as a constable. There are 5 rented houses provided. All who are not in charge of stations pay 1s. a week for house rent.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced, but might be with great advantage.

Police Reserve.—Nil.

Ambulance Instruction.—One sergeant and 9 constables have been instructed.

Mounted on Bicycles.—Two constables.

Pedlars' Certificates.—28 granted, being a decrease of 6.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. No steps have been taken to frame bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1715 of the population, is numerically weak, especially considering the number of populous places policed. The efficiency and more general usefulness of this force would be much increased, and at a less cost, if the burgh of Alloa was consolidated with the county, which would be a mutual and public benefit, as the two establishments are far too small to be worked separately, and could so well go together, the county head-quarters being in the burgh. The introduction of telephonic communication would also be of the greatest service.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

The Telephone.—The introduction of the telephone has been most serviceable.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable, as sanitary inspector, inspector of lighting, cleaning, paving, draining, common lodging-houses, inspector under Shop Hours Act, fire and billet-master, and charge of the powder magazine, receives £12 per annum.

Pedlars' Certificates.—41 granted, being an increase of 6.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—6 males, 0 female, total 6, being a decrease of 4.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—As a separate establishment, with its limited jurisdiction, this force is much too small to be thoroughly efficient, giving only 1 officer to 1190 of the population. It would in every way be more satisfactory if the burgh authorities would agree, on the first opportunity, to consolidate with the county, the head-quarters of that force being located in Alloa; this would be a mutual benefit, and increase the efficiency and more general usefulness of the police at a less cost.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1$\frac{19}{40}$d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of the burgh of Dumbarton, which maintains a separate force, all the other burghs and populous places are policed by the county. Clydebank, Helensburgh, and Kirkintilloch are formed into separate police districts, and, with the exception of at the former, the burghs provide the police stations, &c.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Four constables resigned, two compulsory; one constable died.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector under the Explosives and the Weights and Measures Acts, for the latter office he receives £40 per annum; and £15 as burgh procurator-fiscal at Clydebank. The superintendent and deputy chief constable at Helensburgh receive £70 per annum as burgh procurator-fiscal, lighting and cleaning, common lodging-houses, and sanitary inspector, and as assistant inspector of weights and measures, and inspector under Foods and Drugs Act, and Dairies and Cowsheds. An inspector receives £35 per annum as burgh procurator-fiscal, assistant inspector of weights and measures, sanitary, and common lodging-house inspector. Three inspectors have £5 each as assistant inspectors of weights and measures.

Police Stations.—There are 13 stations with from 2 to 4 cells at each, in all 36 cells; 9 are county, 1 burgh, and 3 are rented property, and 31 rented houses are provided. The stations are generally satisfactory, and much has been done to provide new and to improve the old stations. The new stations at Canniesburn, at Kilcreggan, and at Cumbernauld, have been completed, on approved plans. And plans for providing more suitable accommodation at head-quarters, Dumbarton, are still under consideration. Officers in charge of stations with cells live rent free, others pay from 1s. to 2s. 6d. per week for houses provided, according to the rents.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's residence, the head-quarter office at Dumbarton, Helensburgh, Cardross, Alexandria, Renton, Clydebank, Kirkintilloch, Canniesburn, Row, and Milngavie police stations, are most usefully connected at an annual cost of £67, 10s., and with the Glasgow Circuit and other places at the usual trunk rates.

Ambulance Instruction.—4 inspectors, 1 detective officer, 5 sergeants, 29 constables, total 39, have been instructed.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable in uniform on special occasions.

Pedlars' Certificates.—73 granted, being a decrease of 18.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Bye-laws, for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, are still under consideration.

State of Crime.—A general increase except in serious crime, in which there has been a decrease of 11 cases.

Remarks.—The force, giving only one officer to 1279 of the population, appears to be numerically weak for this populous county, and considering its proximity to Glasgow. The county head-quarter staff being at Dumbarton, it would be more satisfactory if the burgh was consolidated with the county, which would increase the efficiency and more general usefulness of the constabulary at a less cost, and be a mutual benefit.

Report.—Subject to this remark the force is efficient.

Burgh Police Assessment.—2½d. in the £.

Variations.—A constable resigned; a constable (acting sergeant) transferred on promotion to inspector in a Scotch Burgh force. A constable transferred to an English Burgh force.

Alterations in the Force, Augmentation, and Pay.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £20 as burgh procurator-fiscal, £10 as sanitary inspector, £5 as inspector of Explosives, £10 as inspector of weights and measures, £3 as inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, £10 as inspector of dairies, £2 as billet-master, in all £60 per annum. But no allowances granted for the following duties he performs, viz.:—inspector of common lodging-houses, lighting, cleaning, paving, draining, and fire-master. This officer has far too many municipal offices to attend to.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There is a chief constable's office, charge-room, and 9 cells; 2 cells are reserved for female prisoners, and there is a female searcher. A new station is very much required.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's residence and the police office are in telephonic communication for £6 per annum, and the ordinary trunk rates for communicating with other places.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable in uniform on special occasions.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, the inspector, a sergeant, and 9 constables, total 12, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—10 granted, being a decrease of 1.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 19, females 3, total 22, being an increase of 8.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—The force giving only one officer to 1285 of the population is numerically weak. The efficiency and more general usefulness of the police would be much increased, and at a reduced cost, if the burgh was consolidated with the county, which has its head-quarter staff resident in the town. A more modern police station is required.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1·39d. in the £.

County of Dumfries.

COUNTY OF DUMFRIES—continued.

Burghs.—With the exception of the burgh of Dumfries, which maintains a small separate establishment, all the other burghs and populous places are policed by the county.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Augmentation.—On the 26th October 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of one 3rd class constable being added to the strength of the force.

Variations.—The office inspector died; a constable resigned; a constable discharged as unfit for the service; and a constable dismissed for misconduct—Total, 4 changes.

Promotion.—A serjeant to inspector, and a constable to sergeant, 9th October 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable has £20 for having charge of the "additional" or river police, and £10 as inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts.

Police Stations.—There are 25 stations with from 1 to 3 cells (4 with only 1 cell at each), in all 47 cells; 1 station is burgh property, 3 are rented, and the remainder the property of the county. The station houses are generally satisfactory and suitable for the requirements of the localities. Much has been done to provide new and improve the older stations, and the former are exceedingly good, providing very suitable offices, cells, and excellent quarters for married and single men. With the exception of the chief constable, all live rent free; and single men provided with quarters are allowed 1s. each per week. When houses or lodgings are not provided, married men receive 2s., single men 1s. 6d., each per week.

The Telephone.—There are 26 county connections, viz.,—the chief constable's residence, the head-quarter office, the constabulary stations at Dumfries, Annan, Clarencefield, Collin, Glencaple, Gretna, Eaglesfield, Ecclefechan, Canonbie, Langholm, Lockerbie, Lochmaben, Burrancebridge, Moffat, Sanquhar, Dunscore, Dalswinton, Wanlockhead, Johnstonbridge, Penpont, Moniaive, and Thornhill are connected at an annual cost of £303 per annum.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 inspectors, 3 sergeants, 18 constables, total 24, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—113 granted, being an increase of 10.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act, and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act, is enforced. Bye-laws are in force for the prevention of vagrancy under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1890.

State of Crime.—An increase of 5 cases of serious crime, but a decrease in general offences, apprehensions, and convictions.

Remarks.—The force giving only 1 officer to 1458 of the population is apparently numerically weak, but the services of the 10 additional constables are available if required. The efficiency and more general usefulness of the constabulary would be increased, and at a reduced cost, if the burgh of Dumfries was consolidated with the county.

Report.—The force is efficient.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is burgh procurator-fiscal, sanitary inspector, and inspector of common lodging-houses, for which he receives no extra salary, but has £30 as inspector of cleaning, lighting, paving, and draining. The chief constable has too many municipal offices to attend to.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The offices and 4 cells are satisfactory.

The Telephone.—At the Police Office, at a cost of £8, 10s. per annum.

Ambulance Instruction.—1 sergeant and 4 constables only have passed, and are qualified to afford first aid to the injured. All should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—154 granted, being an increase of 10.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 8, females 3, total 11, being an increase of 4.

State of Crime.—A general increase in ordinary offences, apprehensions, convictions, and 2 cases in serious crime.

Remarks.—The force giving only 1 constable to 1188 of the population is numerically weak. The efficiency and more general usefulness of the police would be increased, at a less cost, if the burgh was consolidated with the county, which has its head-quarters and staff in the town.

COUNTY OF EDINBURGH—continued. County of Edinburgh.

County and Burgh Police Assessments.—County, $1\frac{14}{48}$d. in the £. Musselburgh, $2\frac{1}{2}$d.; Portobello, $1\frac{3}{4}$d.; Dalkeith, 3d., each in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of the city of Edinburgh and the burgh of Leith, all the burghs and populous places in Mid-Lothian are policed by the county. The burghs of Musselburgh and Portobello are consolidated with the county, and under agreements pay the actual cost of the police supplied, receiving back the Government Grant thereon. At the former, the offices and cells are provided by the burgh, and the officers' quarters by the county, and at the latter the police buildings are supplied by the burgh. Dalkeith is a separate police district, and the police buildings are provided by the county.

Augmentations.—Nil.

Promotions.—A detective officer to sergeant, 17th September 1893. Two constables to serjeant on the 2nd April and 25th May 1893.

Variations.—Four constables resigned, 2 to join English forces; 2 constables were dismissed for misconduct; a sergeant and 2 constables were transferred to Peeblesshire; a constable retired on a gratuity; and a constable was superannuated;—total, 11 changes.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is chief inspector, and 3 inspectors sub-inspectors under the Explosives and Petroleum Acts, and the latter receive £5 each per annum, and the inspector at Portobello 5s. per annum. The inspector at Musselburgh has £15 per annum as Burgh Procurator-Fiscal. The inspector at Dalkeith receives £3 per annum for municipal offices. One inspector has £7, 10s. per annum as a sanitary inspector. One inspector receives £1 per annum as inspector of common lodging-houses. One inspector receives £2 as billet-master. One inspector £3 as fire-master. And 2 inspectors, as inspectors of cow-sheds and dairies, receive £1 and £1, 10s. each. All ranks are officers under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act.

Police Stations.—There are 30 stations with from 1 to 5 cells at each, total 67 cells; 18 are county, 2 burgh, the remainder rented property, and there are 7 rented houses provided; the station with a single cell is at a place where there are veryfew prisoners, and near another station with cells. Mid-Calder station has been altered and much improved. Plans are also under consideration for providing new head-quarter offices, &c. All the officers, with the exception of the chief constable, have free houses. At head-quarters, and at the burgh stations, quarters are provided for married and single officers. When not in quarters, unmarried men are allowed 3s. each per week.

The Telephone.—The head-quarters office at the County Buildings and the chief constable's residence, Edinburgh, are connected with the Exchange, City, Leith, Dalkeith, Musselburgh, Portobello, Penicuik, Peebles, Linlithgow, Armadale, Bathgate, Broxburn, and Bo'ness, at an annual cost of £68, 15s., and with public call offices at Lasswade, Granton, Slateford, and a number of other places at the usual rates.

Reserve.—There is a sergeant and a constable in reserve at head-quarters.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable, 6 inspectors, 2 detective officers, office sergeant, 8 sergeants, 58 constables, total 76, have been instructed, and hold certificates from the St Andrews Ambulance Association.

Mounted Constables.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, an inspector, a sergeant, 7 constables, total 11, are mounted on special occasions. Saddlery provided: but, with the exception of the chief constable, they are mounted on hired horses. And when necessary the chief constable, deputy chief constable, 6 inspectors, 2 detective officers, 3 sergeants and 15 constables are mounted on bicycles. A certain allowance is made for the upkeep of the bicycles.

Pedlars' Certificates.—113 granted, being an increase of 4.

County of Edinburgh.

COUNTY OF EDINBURGH (MID-LOTHIAN)—continued.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act, and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act, are enforced; and bye-laws, for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been framed and approved by the Secretary for Scotland, but the High Court of Justiciary have decided that they are ultra vires of the powers of the County Council.

State of Crime.—A general decrease in general offences, apprehensions, and convictions, but an increase of 5 cases of serious crime.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1196, appears to be numerically weak, considering the burghs and the populous mining villages policed. The chief constable has also charge of the West and East Lothian, and the Peeblesshire constabulary forces, which appears to be a very satisfactory arrangement.

Report.—Subject to the above remark, the force is efficient.

* The Government Grant is only authorised to be paid on £600 of the chief constable's salary.

(a) Includes 9 constables in plain clothes.

One-fourth of the pay is deducted from detective officers, sergeants, and constables when on the sick list.

On the 25th August, as from 25th July, 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the revised rates of pay, including boot money, as shown in the table for the sergeants and constables.

The lieutenants are indoor officers. One inspector and 3 constables are court officers. Three constables are turnkeys, 3 constables are hall porters, 1 constable in charge of prison van, 1 constable is a storekeeper, 1 constable is in attendance on the medical officer of health, and in divisional and sub-stations there are 10 sergeants and 6 constables on day and night office duty.

Number on day street duty, 255 for 8 hours; number on night street duty, 203 for 8 hours; number on office day or indoor duty, 29 for 8 hours; number on night officer or indoor duty, 13 for 8 hours. Monthly leave is given as far as possible on Sundays. Annual leave—superintendents, 21; lieutenants and inspectors and clerks, 14. Detective officers, sergeants, and constables, after 3 years' service, 10 days; from 1 to 3 years, 7 days—constables on appointment are placed on night duty, and transfers take place to day duty as vacancies occur—day and night duty is not taken alternately.

Alterations while Printing.—City of Edinburgh.—On the 22nd May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation to the force by three constables.

This is not in accordance with the Secretary for Scotland's rules on the subject, and as the night men have often to assist the day men, and may have to change from night to day duty, there should be no difference in the issue of this article of uniform. City Police Assessment.—1·992d. in the £.

Variations.—Two sergeants and 2 constables were superannuated, and a constable retired on a gratuity; a sergeant and 3 constables died; 9 constables resigned, 1 compulsory; a constable was discharged owing to ill health; 7 constables were dismissed for misconduct;—total, 26 changes.

Promotions.—Two constables to sergeant, 10th October 1893, and 14th March 1894.

Alterations in the Pay and Force.—On the 25th August, as from 25th July 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the revised rates of pay, including boot money, for the sergeants and constables, as shown in the pay table. And, further, sanctioned the employment of 8 additional men as probationary constables at a weekly wage of 21s. This increase of pay, and addition to the force, to have effect from the date of the resolution of the Magistrates and Council.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—None.

Police Stations, Offices, Cells, &c.—There are 3 divisional stations and 6 sub-stations, with from 2 to 37 cells at each, in all 67 cells. The 37 cells at the central, or head-quarter station, are legalised for 3 days' detention or imprisonment, in charge of 3 male and 3 female turnkeys. Four stations are comparatively new, and are suitable. The Morningside New Police Station is nearly completed. The Canongate and St Leonard's sub-stations are very inferior and inadequate, but are to be discontinued and new stations substituted as soon as possible. A scheme is now under consideration for providing telephone signal boxes in the suburbs. Three superintendents have free houses at their stations. Five sergeants and 7 constables residing at the station houses pay from 3s. each per week house rent, and lodge unmarried constables.

The Telephone.—All the police stations, the chief constable's residence, the Telephone Exchange, General Post Office, Holyrood Palace, the Museum of Science and Art, and fire stations, are connected at an annual cost of £183, 2s. 1d.

Detective or Criminal Investigation Department and Staff.—At the chief or central station there is a separate criminal investigation department and detective staff, consisting of an inspector in charge, 1 inspector, 2 sergeants, and 11 detective officers, and 9 plain clothes constables, total 24, who are under the immediate supervision of the chief constable and the superintendent of the centre division.

Ambulance Instruction.—The whole force is most usefully instructed.

Mounted Police.—Two sergeants and 11 constables on special occasions. It would be useful to have the superior officers mounted on such occasions; and, if the horses provided were trained for this particular duty, it would add to the efficiency of the force. Saddlery is provided.

Pedlars' Certificates.—225 granted, being a decrease of 39.

Vagrants, &c., convicted of Begging.—Males 115, females 20, total 135, being an increase of 2.

State of Crime.—A very slight increase in serious crime, and a decrease in general offences, apprehensions, and convictions.

Sheriff Officers.—Take charge of criminal cases at certain stages in the proceedings, which is very objectionable, as the police should have the full charge and responsibility from the commencement to the end of all such cases. As the practice has ceased in the county, there appears to be no reason why this objectionable procedure should be continued in the city, which could be obviated by having certain officers sworn as sheriff officers.

Remarks.—Nil.

Burgh of Leith.

Burgh Police Assessment.—2¾d. in the £.

Variations.—Eight constables resigned, 1 compulsory; 1 constable died; 3 constables dismissed for misconduct;—Total, 12 changes.

Augmentations.—On the 11th April 1893, the Secretary for Scotland sanctioned the appointment of an office inspector on the 3rd or highest Model Scale of pay.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Promotions.—A detective officer to office sergeant 15th May 1893. A sergeant to detective officer and a constable to sergeant 18th May 1893.

Police Reserve.—There are 3 constables in reserve.

Police Stations, Offices, Cells, &c.—The police offices at the Town House, with 16 cells, are well arranged and suitable. There is a resident female turnkey who has a free house. There is a sub-station, with office and 2 cells, at Newhaven, and a free house for the inspector in charge, with office and 2 cells. All others provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's and police surgeon's residences and the stations are connected, and with the Edinburgh circuit, at a cost of £29, 12s. per annum.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £35 per annum for being burgh procurator-fiscal, and £65 for having charge of the marine police division. He is also inspector under the Explosives Act, inspector of lighting, and billet-master, but receives no extra allowance for these offices.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, the lieutenant, 6 inspectors, 3 detective officers, 12 sergeants, 88 constables, total 111, including the marine division, have been usefully instructed.

Mounted Constables.—None.

Pedlars' Certificates.—29 granted, being an increase of 8.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 12, females 1, total 13, being a decrease of 3.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Sheriff Officers.—Take charge of criminal cases at certain stages in the proceedings, which is very objectionable, as the police should have charge of all such cases from the commencement to the end; and, as this practice has been discontinued in the county, there appears to be no reason why it should be continued in this burgh.

Remarks.—The chief constable should be provided with suitable uniform to wear on special occasions. It would be desirable if quarters could be provided for a certain number of married and single men as near as possible to the principal station, in order that a body of police could be readily obtained in an emergency. Notwithstanding recent additions the force giving only one officer to 971, would still be numerically weak were it not for the Dock Police.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

(2) The promotion of the constable office clerk to office sergeant on the 3rd Model Scale of pay; in both cases boot money to continue, as at present, at the rate of 6d. each per week. (3) On the superannuation of Superintendent Lyon, from the 15th May next, the abolition of the grade of superintendent, and the appointment of an inspector on the 2nd Model Scale of pay. From the 15th May next there will thus be two 2nd class inspectors and an office sergeant shown on the authorised establishment. Office sergeant not yet appointed.

On the 13th December 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of three 3rd class constables.

There is a reserve constable at head-quarters for clerical, escort, and general duty.

No deduction from pay when on the sick list for the first 3 months.

The constable in charge of the legalised cells at Elgin and the constable at Grantown live rent free. The remainder pay 1s. 6d. to 2s. per week each house rent.

County Police Assessment.—1·59d. in the £.

Burghs.—The County and Burgh of Elgin have a consolidation arrangement, under which the former has agreed to police the latter, providing the office and cell accommodation, and the use of the certified cells, and the services of the chief constable and county staff at Elgin, for £235 per annum.

Augmentation.—On the 13th December 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of three 3rd class constables.

Alterations in the Pay and Force.—On the 11th April 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the following alterations in the force:—(1) The promotion of the sergeant at head-quarters to inspector on the 2nd Model Scale of pay. (2) The promotion of the constable office clerk to office sergeant on the 3rd Model Scale of pay; in both cases boot money to continue, as at present, at the rate of 6d. each per week. (3) On the superannuation of Superintendent Lyon, from the 15th May next, the abolition of the grade of superintendent, and the appointment of an inspector on the 2nd Model scale of pay. From the 15th May next there will thus be two 2nd class inspectors and an office sergeant shown on the authorised establishment.

Variations.—Two constables resigned; the superintendent and deputy chief constable superannuated. Total, 3 changes.

Promotions.—A sergeant to inspector 11th April 1893; a constable to inspector and a constable to sergeant 16th May 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is procurator-fiscal for the burgh of Elgin Police Court. An inspector is inspector of explosives in the burgh of Forres, for which he receives £1, 1s. extra per annum.

Police Stations.—There are 9 police stations, with from 2 to 23, in all 40 cells; 7 are county, 1 burgh, and 1 rented property. The 23 cells in the disused prison at Elgin are legalised for 14 days' detention or imprisonment, before, or during, or after trial, and are in charge of a constable, who has a free house, &c., and his wife receives £10 per annum as matron. New Police Stations with cells at Burghead, Lossiemouth, and at Knockando are being provided on approved plans. Two constables in charge of stations live rent free; the others pay from 1s. 6d. to 2s. each per week rent.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable in uniform on special occasions.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 inspectors, 2 sergeants, 18 constables, total 23, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—136 granted, being an increase of 43.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act, and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act, are enforced, but no steps have yet been taken to frame bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—Notwithstanding a recent augmentation, the force is still numerically weak, giving only 1 officer to 1498 of the population, and there are populous places and fishing villages to police.

Report.—Subject to this remark the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—$1\frac{1}{69}$d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of Dunfermline and Kirkcaldy, which maintain separate police establishments, the 22 royal and police burghs, and a number of populous mining and fishing villages, are policed by the county.

Variations.—The deputy chief constable and 2 constables were superannuated, and a sergeant resigned; total, 4 changes.

Alterations and Augmentations.—On the 21st July 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of one 3rd class constable.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Police Reserve.—There are two constables in reserve at head-quarters for escort and general duty.

Promotions.—An inspector to superintendent and deputy chief constable, and a sergeant to inspector 2nd December 1893; three constables to sergeants 10th September, 2nd December 1893, and 16th January 1894.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable prosecutes in the J. P. Courts, but receives no extra salary. The deputy chief constable and 3 inspectors receive £2 and £3 each per annum as inspectors under the Explosives Act. One inspector has £3 per annum as inspector of weights and measures; and 2 inspectors receive £2 and £1 per annum each as officers under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, and inspector of common lodging-houses.

Police Stations.—There are 26 stations, with from 2 to 6 cells, in all 60 cells; 17 are county, 4 are burgh property, and the remainder are rented stations; and there are 30 rented houses provided. Six cells in the disused prison, Dunfermline, are legalised for 14 days' imprisonment, before, during, or after trial, and are in charge of a resident married constable who has a free house, &c., and his wife an allowance of £5 per annum as matron. New stations on approved plans have been provided at Buckhaven, and at St Monance. New stations for Leuchars and Auchtermuchty are under consideration. New stations are required at Markinch and Crail, the latter being a royal burgh, the magistrates should provide (as was done at St Andrews, Dysart, and Burntisland), or assist the county in providing a police station and cells. Strathmiglo station has been improved. A number of the older stations are out of repair, and the cells require heating and ventilation. The superintendent and inspectors pay 2s., sergeants and constables 1s. each per week house rent.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's residence, and the head-quarter office at Cupar, St Andrews, Dysart, and Dunfermline, are most usefully connected at an annual cost of £53, 10s., and with other places at the usual trunk rates. All the principal stations should be connected.

Bails, Deposits, and Receipts.—Are only taken at head-quarters. It would be desirable that officers in charge of stations with cells should be authorised to take bails and deposits.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, 2 inspectors, 4 sergeants, office constable clerk, and 58 constables, total 67, have been instructed

Pedlars' Certificates.—143 granted, being an increase of 10.

County of Fife.

COUNTY OF FIFE—continued.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, for the prevention of vagrancy, are still under the consideration of the Standing Joint-Committee and the County Council.

State of Crime.—A decrease in ordinary offences, and an increase in apprehensions and convictions, but not in serious crime.

Remarks.—All the members are sworn, and act as sheriff officers. Compared with similar counties in Scotland, Fifeshire is, notwithstanding recent augmentations, still very considerably underpoliced, having only 1 officer to every 1568 of the population, which is largely composed of miners, sailors, fishermen, and mill-hands. This county occupies a somewhat unique position, on account of the large number (22) of royal and police burghs, and also many mining and fishing villages, all policed by the county. In 18 of the 22 burghs there are magistrates exercising jurisdiction in the burgh courts. At St Andrews, for example, there is a force of only an inspector and 4 constables for town and county duty, and the inspector has a very large beat to superintend, containing over 20 parishes. The county and burgh authorities have recently done a great deal towards improving the condition and efficiency of the force, but much remains to be done by necessary augmentation, by providing new, and altering and improving the old stations, where required. It would also be desirable to extend the telephonic communication to all the principal stations. In order to render the police more effective, there ought to be only one constabulary force in the county.

Report.—Subject to these remarks the force is efficient.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £10 per annum as sanitary inspector, and £5 as procurator-fiscal in the police and dean of guild's court; he is also inspector under the Explosives Act, of common-lodging houses, and billet-master; for the latter offices he receives no extra allowances.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There is an office for the chief constable, a charge-room, and 10 cells, 5 are licensed for 5 days detention and imprisonment. The resident married sergeant in charge has a free house, &c., and his wife acts as matron. The remainder provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—Is in use at an annual cost of £8, 10s.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, office sergeant, 2 sergeants, 12 constables, total 16, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—73 granted, being a decrease of 4.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 12, females 2, total 14, being an increase of 2.

State of Crime.—An increase in general offences, apprehensions, and convictions, but not in serious crime.

Remarks.—Notwithstanding a recent augmentation, the force giving only one officer to 1437 of the population is numerically weak. It would increase the efficiency, and add very much to the more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, if the burgh was consolidated with the county, which has its divisional staff resident in the town.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Augmentation.—On the 19th October 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the appointment of one 3rd class constable, and the detective officer and clerk to be classed as a sergeant detective.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Promotions.—The detective clerk to detective sergeant, 26th October 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £5 as inspector of lighting; he is also inspector under the Explosives Acts, and is billet-master.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There are suitable offices for the chief constable, a charge-room, and 8 cells legalised for 14 days' detention before, and 7 days' imprisonment after trial, in charge of a constable, who has free house, &c., and his wife as matron an allowance of £7 per annum. There is a sub-station at Sinclairtown with office, 3 cells, and quarters for 2 married officers. The officers in charge of these stations have free quarters. The remainder provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—The two police stations are connected by telephone, at an annual cost of £10, and are in communication with Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Perth, &c., at the usual trunk rates.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, the detective sergeant, and a constable only have been instructed—all the force should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—87 granted, being an increase of 27.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 14, females 1, total 15, being an increase of 13.

State of Crime.—An increase of 10 cases in serious crime, 238 in apprehensions, 240 in general offences, and 368 in convictions.

Remarks.—Notwithstanding a recent augmentation, the force, giving only 1 officer to 1319 of the population, the large area, and in view of an increase in criminal and general offences, is numerically weak. It would increase the efficiency, and add to the more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, if it was policed by the county, which it used to be consolidated with.

Report.—Subject to these observations the force is efficient.

COUNTY OF FORFAR—continued. County of Forfar.

County Police Assessment.—1·227d. in the £.

Burghs.—Arbroath, Brechin, Broughty-Ferry, City of Dundee, Forfar, and Montrose maintain separate police establishments, an unusually large number, and most certainly on the public grounds of greater efficiency, more general usefulness, and economy (with the exception of the City of Dundee), there should be only one police force in the county.

Augmentation.—On the 1st November 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of one 3rd class constable being added to the force.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—One constable resigned.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—A considerable portion of the time of the constables is taken up in posting up bills for the County Council, which is certainly not a police duty.

Police Stations.—There are 12 stations—8 county and 4 rented property—with from 2 to 3 cells at each, in all 30 cells; and 7 rented houses provided. At the head-quarters at Forfar there are residences provided for the chief constable, the superintendent, and free quarters, &c. for the constable in charge of the cells legalised for 14 days' detention and imprisonment, whose wife receives as matron £26 per annum. The authorities have not yet provided the urgently required offices and cells for the important county division of Dundee, and continue using the female witness-room at the court house as an office, which is a most unsuitable arrangement; and the prisoners are now sent to the nearest county station, which, being some distance in the county, is an inconvenient arrangement; the proposed remedy, viz., to remove the criminal business of this Division to Forfar has not yet been carried out. The pressing subject of providing a suitable police station in the burgh of Kirriemuir, and doing away with the inferior cells at Southmuir, is still under the consideration of the Standing Joint Committee; but as a site has been obtained there should be no further delay. The chief constable pays a rent of £20 per annum, superintendents 4s. 8d., inspectors 3s. 6d., sergeants 2s. 11d., married constables 2s. 4d., unmarried constables 1s. 9d. each per week. Officers in charge of stations, with cells, receive from 25s. to 80s. per annum for cleaning, &c.

The Telephone.—The head quarters, Arbroath, Brechin, Carnoustie, Downfield, Dundee, and Monifieth stations are most usefully connected, at an annual cost of £7, 10s. each per annum.

Sheriff Officers.—Take charge of criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings, and execute warrants of arrest, &c. in the Dundee Division, which is objectionable, as the police should have sole charge of such cases from the commencement to the end.

Bails, Deposits, and Receipts.—At Forfar, Carnoustie, and Kirriemuir only: it is desirable that officers in charge of stations with cells should be authorised to take bails and deposits.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 superintendents, 2 inspectors, 5 sergeants, 38 constables, total 48, have been instructed.

County of Forfar.

COUNTY OF FORFAR—continued.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been framed, but not yet sanctioned.

State of Crime.—An increase of 110 in general offences, 102 in apprehensions, 90 in convictions, but not in serious crime.

Remarks.—The more general usefulness and efficiency of the police would be increased at a less cost, if the burghs, at present maintaining small separate police forces, were consolidated with the county, in which, with the exception of the city of Dundee, there should be only one police force.

Report.—The force is efficient.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 20th January 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the inspectors being placed on the 1st or lowest Model Scale of pay.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—As sanitary inspector the chief constable receives £10, as inspector of dairies and milk shops £10, as burgh procurator-fiscal £5, 5s.; but as inspector under the Explosives Acts, inspector of lighting, of common lodging-houses, and billet and firemaster, he receives no extra allowances.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There is an office for the chief constable, a general office or charge room, a muster or waiting room, and 6 cells. The latter have quite recently been renewed. Cells are not set apart for female prisoners, but there is a female searcher.

The Telephone.—Is in communication with Dundee and other places, at the ordinary rates, an instrument being placed free of cost in the office for the purpose.

Ambulance Instruction.—Two inspectors, 2 sergeants, 15 constables, total 19, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—49 granted, being an increase of 5.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 7, females 2, total 9, being a decrease of 6.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1293 of the population, is numerically weak, and the more general usefulness and efficiency of the police would be materially increased, at a less cost, if it was consolidated with the county.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Burgh of Brechin.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The chief constable has an office room, and there is a general office or charge room, and 4 very inferior old cells, which have been improved as far as possible, but are still very unsatisfactory. It is, however, satisfactory to state that new and suitable police offices are in course of erection on approved plans.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced, but should be.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is burgh procurator-fiscal, inspector under the Shop Hours Act, inspector of explosives, common lodging-houses, lighting and cleaning, for which he receives no extra allowance; but has £10 per annum as sanitary inspector. The chief constable has far too many municipal offices to attend to.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 sergeants, and 4 constables have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—54 granted, being an increase of 13.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 2, females 0, total 2, being a decrease of 1.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—This small force, giving only 1 officer to 1300 of the population, is numerically weak, and, with its very limited jurisdiction, cannot be considered thoroughly efficient as a separate police establishment. It is much to be regretted that the police commissioners did not, as advised, take advantage of a recent opportunity to consolidate with the county, which would have increased the efficiency and more general usefulness of the police at a less cost; and the county police has a sergeant, and a station with cells within the burgh.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

BURGH OF BROUGHTY FERRY—continued.

Burgh Police Assessments.—2d. in the £.

Variations.—Nil.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alteration in Pay.—Nil

Promotions.—Nil.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The chief constable's office, general office or charge room, and 4 cells are satisfactory. The chief constable and a sergeant reside at the police station.

The Telephone.—Is in telephonic communication with Dundee and district, an instrument being placed in the office for the purpose, free of charge; beyond this messages paid for at usual rates.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £10 per annum as procurator-fiscal, but as inspector under the Explosives Acts, and of lighting, he receives no extra allowance.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 sergeants, and 6 constables are instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—10 granted, being an increase of 5.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 7, females 3, total 10, being an increase of 5.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Sheriff Officers.—It is still the practice in this jurisdiction for sheriff officers to take over criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings, which is very objectionable, for the police should have full charge of all criminal cases from the commencement to the end.

Remarks.—Until the 15th May 1888, this burgh formed a separate police district of and was policed by the county. Under a Provisional Order the burgh authorities have since that date maintained a separate police establishment. The new arrangement cannot be considered as efficient, effective, or so economical as the old one was, and it is to be regretted that the authorities discontinued so useful and desirable a connection with the county.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Same men always on day and night duty. In addition to the annual leave, constables with over 6 months' approved service are allowed one day or night each month, from 15th October to 15th May each year.

REMARKS.

* The Government Grant is paid on £550 only of the chief constable's salary of £650, which includes £100 for taking charge of the Harbour Police.

† One lieutenant £20 additional per annum as deputy chief constable, and he has also charge of the detective department.

Deduction from pay, when on sick list, at the discretion of the chief constable.

There are 17 constables employed in charge of offices and as day and night turnkeys, storekeepers, prison van drivers, &c., and in addition to the detective staff there are 5 constables in plain clothes.

The lieutenant deputy chief constable has a free house at the central station. Five inspectors and 8 married officers are provided with houses, and pay from 2s. to 3s. 9d. per week. All others provide their own houses.

There are still 2 members of the city sanitary staff on the strength, as authorised by the Secretary of State on the 18th October 1881, as a temporary measure.

Boot money 6d. each per week.

On the 21st, as from the 13th April 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the inspectors being placed upon the 2nd Model Scale of pay for that grade, by the addition of £5 a year to their present rate of pay.

Variations.—An inspector killed on duty, and 2 constables died; 8 constables resigned, 1 compulsory; 15 constables were dismissed for misconduct; 4 constables transferred to other forces, 1 of them to an English force. Total, 30 changes.

Changes in the Pay.—On the 21st, as from the 13th April 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the inspectors being placed on the 2nd model scale of pay for that grade, by the addition of £5 a year to their present pay.

Augmentations.—Nil.

Alteration in the Force.—Nil.

Promotions.—A detective officer to inspector, 6th September 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is procurator-fiscal in the City Police Court, and is also billet-master, but receives no extra salary, but he has £100 per annum for having charge of the Harbour Police. An inspector receives £3, 3s. per annum as inspector under the Explosives Act. One inspector and 6 constables are sanitary inspectors.

Police Stations, Offices, Cells, &c.—There are 5 stations, with offices, and at present with from 5 to 23 cells at each, in all 46 cells. The number of cells at the central station are to be increased by 12 to 35, and are nearly completed. There will then be in all 58 cells at the 5 stations. The estimated cost of these and other improvements on approved plans is about £2154. Cells are urgently required at the Harbour police station. It would increase the efficiency, and perhaps to some extent relieve the numerical weakness of the force, if there were telephone signal boxes placed in the extended suburban beats, as in Glasgow and Aberdeen. A lieutenant, who is deputy chief constable, has a free house at the central station, and 5 inspectors, 8 married sergeants and constables are provided with houses at the divisional stations at 2s. to 3s. 9d. each per week rent, and some single men are lodged in these houses. There are male and female turnkeys at each station.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's residence and all the stations are in telephonic communication, at an annual cost of £63; also with Edinburgh, Glasgow, Perth, and other places, at the usual rates.

CITY OF DUNDEE—continued. City of Dundee.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable, an inspector, and 6 constables are mounted on special occasions on hired horses and saddlery.

Police Reserve.—None.

Ambulance Instruction.—Three lieutenants, 4 inspectors, 8 detective officers, 1 office clerk, 6 sergeants, 99 constables, total 121, including the Harbour police, have been instructed; and a class of 44 going through the course.

Pedlars' Certificates.—250 granted, being a decrease of 13.

Vagrants, &c., convicted of Begging.—Males 47, females 10, total 57, being an increase of 29.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Sheriff Officers.—It is still the practice in this jurisdiction for sheriff officers to take over criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings, which is very objectionable, for the police should have full charge of all criminal cases from the commencement to the end.

Remarks.—The chief constable wears only semi-uniform when mounted on very special occasions; it would be better if he was provided with suitable uniform, such, for example, as is supplied to the chief constables of other city forces. The population of this large and important city has, since the census of 1891, been increased by 3886. There is also an increase in crime and other offences, and the present strength of the force, giving only 1 officer to 877, is numerically weak, and would be insufficient but for the Harbour police, and compares unfavourably as to numerical strength with similar city and burgh forces. Cells are much required at the Harbour police station; and the number of Harbour police is too limited, as their number have to be increased from the city force on Sundays, and it is numerically weak. The police commissioners still continue the very doubtful arrangement of employing sanitary officers to assist the permanent police force.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Burgh Police Assessment.—3d. in the £.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A constable dismissed for misconduct, and a constable died.

BURGH OF FORFAR—continued.

Burgh of Forfar.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable, as burgh procurator-fiscal, receives £5 per annum; as sanitary inspector and inspector of common lodging-houses, £25; as inspector of Explosives, £2, 10s.; as Weights and Measures inspector, £2, 10s.; as inspector of lighting and cleaning, £1; total, £36. But no extra allowances for being inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, and billet-master. The chief constable appears to have too many municipal offices to attend to.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The offices and 4 cells are suitable. There is no resident officer, but always one on duty, day and night, in the office, and a female searcher and cleaner employed. Officers find their own houses.

The Telephone.—A rent-free instrument is put in the police office for local use; messages beyond boundary charged at the usual rates.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable, a sergeant, and a constable on special occasions, on hired horses, but the superintendent does not wear uniform.

Ambulance Instruction.—The two sergeants and a constable only have obtained certificates, all should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—41 granted, being the same as last year.

Vagrants, &c., convicted of Begging.—Males 1, females 0, total 1, being a decrease of 1.

State of Crime.—A general increase, but not in serious crime.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1339, is numerically weak; and, with its limited jurisdiction, is far too small to be thoroughly efficient as a separate establishment. It would increase the efficiency and more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, if the burgh authorities would take the first opportunity of consolidating with the county, which has its head-quarters in the burgh.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—On 4th April 1894, as from 16th March 1893, the Secretary for Scotland sanctioned the adoption of 1st of the revised Model Scales for constables and sergeants.

Variations.—One constable resigned.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable as burgh procurator-fiscal receives £18; as sanitary inspector, £12; as inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, £10; total, £40 per annum. But he has no extra allowance as inspector of lighting.

Burgh of Montrose.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There is a suitable office for the chief constable, a general office or charge-room, and 13 cells, 9 of which are legalised for 14 days' detention and imprisonment, and are in charge of a sergeant, for which he receives a free house, coal, gas, &c., and his wife £7, 10s. as matron. The 4 police cells are very inferior, but are only used for drunk and disorderly prisoners, and the 5 legalised cells are available for police purposes.

The Telephone.—Has been introduced free of cost, but the usual trunk rates are charged for messages beyond the burgh.

Ambulance Instruction.—Two sergeants and 6 constables have been instructed. All should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—35 granted, being a decrease of 7.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 1, females 0, total 1, being a decrease of 2.

State of Crime.—A general increase, except in serious crime, and apprehensions.

Remarks.—The strength of this force was reduced from 15 to 12 in 1872, and since then a sergeant has been employed principally in taking charge of the 14 days' legalised police cells; and the force giving only 1 constable to 1081 of the population is somewhat numerically weak. The more general usefulness and efficiency of the police would be materially increased, at a less cost, if the force was consolidated with the county force.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

COUNTY OF HADDINGTON (EAST-LOTHIAN)—continued.

County Police Assessment.—1$\frac{11}{24}$d. in the £.

Burghs.—All the burghs are policed by the county.

Alterations in the Pay and Force.—On the 31st December 1893, the late chief constable, Mr George Henry List, was superannuated after 53$\frac{1}{2}$ years' service, and in his eightieth year, and was succeeded by Colonel Alexander Borthwick, chief constable of Mid and West Lothian and Peebles, on an annual salary of £100 per annum, rising 10 per cent. every five years, and £30 travelling allowance; approval of the Secretary for Scotland dated 19th January 1894.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Promotions.—A constable to sergeant, 15th March 1894.

Variations.—The late chief constable was superannuated; 2 constables, 1 compulsory resigned. Total, 3 changes.

Reserve.—One constable is in reserve at head-quarters.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, the detective inspector, 2 inspectors, a sergeant, and a constable are inspectors under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act; 2 inspectors are inspectors under the Weights and Measures Acts; the detective inspector is sanitary inspector and common lodging-house inspector; 3 inspectors are billet-masters and common lodging-house inspectors. The chief constable and 2 inspectors are inspectors under the Explosives Acts. The extra allowances run from £1, 5s. to £8, 10s. per annum. Some constables are occasionally employed in collecting outstanding rates; this is not a police duty, is objectionable, and should be discontinued.

Police Stations.—There are 9 stations,—7 county, 1 burgh, and 1 rented property,—with from 2 to 18 cells at each, in all 32 cells. There are 15 rented houses provided. Increased cell accommodation, &c., at Tranent has been provided. The disused prison at Haddington provides dwelling-houses for the superintendent, 2 married and 2 unmarried constables, and there are 18 cells available for county and burgh prisoners, which are legalised for 14 days' detention, before, during, and after trial, and in charge of a resident constable, whose wife receives £5 per annum as matron, and a free house, &c. A committee has been appointed to report upon the Dunbar burgh police office. The superintendent pays £3, 18s., other ranks £2, 12s. per annum house rent; unmarried men receive 1s. per week lodging money.

Ambulance Instruction.—The superintendent, 1 detective inspector, 2 inspectors, office sergeant, 15 constables, in all 20, have been instructed.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced.

Pedlars' Certificates.—65 granted, being a decrease of 6.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not, enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1890, have been framed, but not approved by the Secretary for Scotland.

State of Crime.—A general decrease, except 3 cases of serious crime.

Remarks.—The chief constable has also charge of the counties of Mid and West Lothian and Peebles, which appears to be a very satisfactory arrangement.

Report.—The force is efficient.

County of Inverness.

County Police Assessment.—2d·407 in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of Inverness, which maintains a separate force, all the burghs and populous places are policed by the county, and assessed at the above rate.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Alteration in the Strength of the Force.—Nil.

Variations.—A constable died; 3 constables resigned, 2 to join English police forces; a constable deserted; and a constable was transferred to a Scotch force. Total, 6 changes.

Promotions.—Nil.

Mounted Men.—The chief constable is mounted on any special occasion.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £25 per annum as chief inspector, and the superintendent and divisional inspectors £5 each as assistant inspectors under the Explosives and the Weights and Measures Acts. All are officers under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act. Three inspectors and a sergeant have £10 per annum each as Court-house keepers.

Police Stations.—There are only 7 county stations, with from 2 to 6 cells at each, in all 24 cells, in this very large and scattered county. Suggested necessary improvements in the offices at Portree have for years been under consideration. The proposed alterations for improving the station at Fort-William have only been partially carried out, and the office accommodation is still most inferior and unsuitable. The police cells at Fort-William, Lochmaddy, and at Portree are legalised for 14 days' detention and imprisonment, the two former in charge of inspectors, and the latter of a constable; all have free houses, &c., £10 each per annum is allowed their wives as matrons. And a new police station with cells has been completed at Tarbert, and an office and new cells provided at Lochmaddy. Plans and estimates have been prepared, and contracts received for building police stations with cells at Castlebay Barra, Dunvegan, Fort-Augustus, and Campbeltown. The subjects of providing cell accommodation at head-quarters, and police stations with cells at Carrbridge, Aviemore, Lochboisdale, and Broadford, are still under consideration. In addition to the 7 county stations with cells, there are 23 rented houses provided, for which the following deductions are made for rents, viz.:—Sergeants, 1s. 6d.; constables, 1s. each per week.

The Telephone.—The head-quarter office and the chief constable's residence at Inverness are in telephonic communication with the exchange and the burgh police office, at an annual cost of £13, 10s.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, an inspector, detective sergeant, office sergeant, 3 sergeants, and 15 constables, total 23, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—68 granted, being an increase of 5.

Vagrants.—No proceedings taken under the Trespass Act, or the 15th Section of the Crimes Act. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been approved by the Secretary for Scotland.

State of Crime.—A decrease in serious crime, apprehensions, and convictions, but a slight increase in general offences.

Remarks.—It would add to the general usefulness and greater efficiency of the police, at a less cost, if there was only one police force in the county. The subject of providing police stations with cells at certain places named in this report should receive the earnest consideration of the Standing Joint Committee, and not be delayed any longer.

Report.—The force is efficient.

Burgh Police Assessment.—2½d. in the £.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—One constable resigned.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £10 per annum as burgh procurator-fiscal; he is also inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals), the Explosives Acts, billet-master, fire-master, inspector of hackney carriages, lighting, and cleaning. A sergeant has £6 as keeper of the powder-magazine. Three sergeants act as halberdiers to the Town Council, and receive each 1s. an hour while so engaged.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There is an office for the chief constable, a general office and charge-room, and 4 cells. There is always an officer on duty in the office day and night, and a female searcher employed. The members of the force, with the exception of the superintendent, who is provided with a free house at the police office, find their own houses.

The Telephone.—Is in use at an annual cost of £7.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable is mounted on special occasions, but he does not wear uniform.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, office inspector, 3 sergeants, 14 constables, total 19, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—52 granted, being an increase of 8.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 3, females 3, total 6, being a decrease of 4.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—It would increase the efficiency, and add very much to the more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, if the force was consolidated with the county, which has its head-quarters and a considerable staff resident in the town.

Report.—The force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1d. in the £.

Burghs.—The county town of Stonehaven and all the burghs are policed by the county.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Variations.—A sergeant was superannuated.

Reserve.—None.

Promotions.—An acting sergeant to sergeant, 15th May 1893.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable wears uniform, and is mounted on special occasions.

Mounted on Bicycles.—The whole force trained to use them when necessary; one bicycle provided at headquarters.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector under the Explosives Act, and receives actual travelling expenses when inspecting. He is also procurator-fiscal in the burgh courts at Stonehaven, Banchory, and Laurencekirk, for the former of which he receives £8 per annum; and £15 as inspector of Weights and Measures, assisted by a constable, who is paid £5 per annum.

Police Stations.—There are 6 stations with from 2 to 13 cells at each, in all 23, all county property, and there are 6 rented houses provided. A new stationhouse without cells has been built at Nigg. The cells at Stonehaven are legalised for 14 days' imprisonment, in charge of a married resident officer, who has a free house, &c., but no allowance to matron. The remainder pay 1s. 6d. each per week house rent.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced, though it would be of much service.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, the inspector, 2 sergeants, 14 constables, total 18, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—82 granted, being a decrease of 7.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been framed, but are in abeyance owing to the decision in the Mid-Lothian case.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1,635, is numerically weak.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1d. in the £.

Burghs.—Kinross and Milnathort are policed by the county, and assessed at the above rate.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The acting inspector is inspector of explosives, but no allowance.

Police Stations.—The only police station is at head-quarters Kinross, where there are 4 cells legalised for 14 days' imprisonment, and in charge of a resident married constable, who lives rent free, but his wife has no allowance as matron. The acting inspector has a house adjacent to the police station, and he and all who are provided with houses pay 1s. each per week rent.

The Telephone.—Will be introduced as soon as the wires reach Kinross.

Ambulance Instruction.—Nil. But it would be desirable to have this instruction given.

Pedlars' Certificates.—16 granted, being an increase of 3.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. No steps have been taken to frame Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—Nil.

Report.—Subject to the present arrangement, the force is efficient.

COUNTY OF KIRKCUDBRIGHT—continued.

Burghs.—All the burghs are policed by the county, and assessed at the same rate as the County, except the separate police district of Maxwelltown, which is assessed at $3\frac{23}{52}$d. in the £.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay and Force.—On the 26th October 1893, the Secretary for Scotland sanctioned the salary of the chief constable being raised from £300 to £310 per annum.

Reserve.—One constable in reserve at head-quarters for general and escort duty.

Variations.—One constable resigned.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £43, 6s. per annum as procurator-fiscal to the justices, and for three burghs; £20 as inspector of weights and measures; £10, 10s. as inspector under the Explosives and Petroleum Act; and £55 as inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts; in all, £128, 16s. The superintendent receives £6 per annum as fire-master for the burgh of Kirkcudbright; and £5 as assistant inspector of weights and measures.

Police Stations.—There are 12 county stations, with from 2 to 4 cells at each, in all 27 cells, and there are 4 rented houses provided. The cells at the head-quarters, Kirkcudbright, are very inferior and unsuitable, being insufficiently heated and ventilated, and are detached from the police offices in the county buildings and court house, in a house occupied by a married sergeant and constable, with bedrooms situated over the cells, much to the discomfort of the families. This is not at all satisfactory, and the county and burgh authorities should provide suitable cells, attached to the police office and court house, which would also afford suitable accommodation for prisoners awaiting trial. New police buildings have been provided at Maxwelltown; also a new police station at Mainsriddle has been completed, all on approved plans. With the exception of the chief constable, all have free houses.

The Telephone.—Has not yet been introduced into the county.

Ambulance Instruction.—One inspector, 2 sergeants, and 8 constables have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—61 granted, being an increase of 20.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been framed, but not yet approved or sanctioned.

State of Crime.—An increase in general offences, apprehensions, and convictions, but a decrease of 5 cases in serious crime.

Remarks.—Castle-Douglas would appear to be a more central and a better position for the head-quarters of the constabulary. The force giving only 1 officer to 1480 is apparently somewhat numerically weak.

Report.—Subject to this remark the force is efficient.

Remarks.

On the 30th October 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of one sergeant (or sub-inspector) and 11 constables.

* One superintendent as deputy chief constable has £20 additional.

† One superintendent is general inspector and chief office clerk at headquarters.

‡Four detective inspectors are procurator-fiscal's officers.

The reserve force consists of 1 inspector, 1 sergeant, 8 constables, total 10.

1st class superintendents receive £20 each per annum for week-day travelling expenses; actual expenses paid for Sundays, and for night duty after 10 p.m.

As approved, for special meritorious and distinguished action, 10 sergeants and 20 constables may receive, the former 2s., the latter 1s. each extra per week, and wear a merit star.

No deduction from the pay when on the sick list.

Boot allowance 6d. each per week, and 40 sergeants and constables who are mounted receive 9d. each per week.

The superintendent at Lanark has a house for £12 per annum; 1st class superintendents find their own houses, 2nd class superintendent 4s., inspectors 3s., sergeants and constables 2s. per week each for house rent, single men in furnished quarters pay 1s. each per week.

The men generally get to church 3 out of 6 Sundays, and oftener if asked for. The annual leave is, superintendent, 14 to 21; inspectors, 10 to 12; sergeants and constables, 8 days. Burgh constables have 1 clear week day off in every 6 weeks.

State of Additional Force privately employed and paid, not included in the Permanent Force, and for whom the Government Grant is not received.

Calculated County Police Assessment.—For Lower, Middle, and Upper Wards, $2\frac{6}{10}$d. in the £.

Police Districts Assessment.—Hamilton district, $1\frac{78}{100}$d.; Motherwell burgh district, 2d.; Lanark district, $1\frac{85}{120}$d.; Airdrie district, $2\frac{21}{120}$d.; Lower Ward district, $4\frac{2}{120}$d.

Burghs.—Airdrie, City of Glasgow, Govan, Hamilton, and Partick maintain separate police establishments. All the remaining burghs and populous places are policed by the county. The burghs of Coatbridge, Rutherglen, and Wishaw have consolidated agreements with the county, and levy their own assessments. The burgh of Rutherglen provides the police office and cells. The county provides the stations, office, and cells at Coatbridge, Lanark, and Wishaw. The burghs of Rutherglen, and Wishaw, in terms of their several agreements, pay to the county the following sums, £287, 16s. 6d., and £482, 5s. 6d. per annum respectively. The burgh of Coatbridge pays for its police identically as if it was a separate county police district formed under the 58 and 59 Section of the Police Act, 1857, viz., it defrays its actual cost for local and general expenditure, which is this year £2321, 17s. 4d., less one-half the cost of pay and clothing £951, 3s. 11d., making the net payment £1370, 13s. 5d. These county and burgh consolidated police systems work most efficiently, and are at the same time more economical than separate forces would be. If these burghs maintained their own separate police forces they would require to be very much stronger numerically than under the present arrangement, as now, when additional strength is likely to be of service, it is always available and readily furnished by the county, and the normal strength in the burghs can thus be safely maintained at a minimum. The efficiency and general usefulness of the police would be increased, at a less cost, if the burghs of Airdrie and Hamilton were likewise consolidated with the county. The burgh of Motherwell is formed into a separate district, and policed by the county, and assessed at 2d. in the £. The county provides the police station house, &c. There are four other separate districts, viz., the Upper Ward, the Hamilton, the Airdrie, and the Lower Ward, in addition to the burghs situated therein.

Reserve.—There is a reserve of 1 inspector, 1 sergeant, and 8 constables, total 10, who also provide the escort for prisoners, and are available on any particular occasion for general duty.

Augmentation.—On the 30th October 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of a sergeant (or sub-inspector) and 11 constables being added to the strength of the force.

Changes in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A sergeant killed on duty, and 2 constables died, a constable superannuated, a constable discharged as inefficient, 11 constables resigned, 8 constables dismissed for misconduct, and 3 constables transferred to other forces; total, 27 changes.

Promotions.—Two constables to sergeant, 10th January 1894.

Drill.—This force is exercised in a formation of "threes," instead of the usual drill in "fours."

Mounted Force.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, 2 superintendents, 2 inspectors, 19 sergeants, 20 constables, total 45, can be mounted on special occasions; they have gone through the riding school parade drills, and arrangements are made for obtaining suitable hired horses, fully equipped, at short notice. This has been found of great service on particular occasions. If the sword belts worn were of black or brown instead of white leather they would be less conspicuous, and the clothing would not be soiled with pipe-clay.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—Five superintendents and an inspector receive in all £52, 2s. per annum as inspectors under the Explosives Acts. Six superintendents are inspectors under the Contagious (Animals) Acts. Two sergeants receive £10 each as inspectors of common lodging-houses. An inspector has £4 as inspector under the Shop Hours Act, and a sergeant £5 as inspector of dairies and cow sheds.

Police Stations.—There are 40 stations, 4 of which are rented, 1 a burgh, and 35 county property, having from 2 to 6 cells at each, in all 99 cells, and generally providing suitable offices, cells, &c., and quarters for married officers, and well-furnished barracks for single men at Wishaw, Rutherglen, and Motherwell. There are also 92 rented houses provided. A new police station is being provided at Coatbridge in connection with the new municipal buildings. A new police station is urgently required at Motherwell, and also at East Kilbride and at Cleland. The 1st class superintendent at Lanark is provided with a house by the County at the police station, for which he pays a rent of £12 per annum. First class superintendents provide their own houses. When houses are provided, married officers pay, 2nd class superintendents 4s., inspectors 3s., sergeants and constables 2s., and unmarried constables in furnished barracks pay 1s. each per week. Officers in charge of stations with cells are allowed from 1s. to 6s. per week for cleaning.

The Telephone.—The following places are now in communication. The chief constable's residence and the head-quarter office at Hamilton, with Blantyre, Motherwell, Coatbridge, and 4 sub-stations, Rutherglen, County Office in Glasgow, the COUNTY OF LANARK—continued. County of Lanark.

Glasgow circle, &c., the total cost being about £89, 10s., of which the county pays £44, 10s. and the burghs £45 per annum. The saving in time, expense, and other advantages are very considerable, and this ready means of communication has very materially increased the efficiency and usefulness of the force.

Conferences with adjoining Forces.—None have been established.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable, 2 inspectors, 19 sergeants, 135 constables, total 157, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—358 granted, being an increase of 2.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. No steps have been taken to frame bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Sheriff Officers.—In the Lower Ward, including the suburbs of the city of Glasgow, sheriff officers take over charge of criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings; this is very objectionable, for the police should have the entire charge of such cases from the commencement to the end.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1151 of the population, appears to be numerically weak for this large county, and the number of burghs and populous places policed, and there is a considerable increase in crime.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

REMARKS.

On the 24th October 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the following rates of pay for the district sub-inspectors of detectives, exclusive of the Central District, viz.:—On appointment, 41s. 6d.; after 2 years' approved service, 42s. 6d.; after 4 years, 43s. 6d.; after 6 years. 44s. 6d. including boot money at the rate of 6d. each per week.

Ten constables, as double pointsmen, to receive 2s., and 70 constables, as single pointsmen, 1s. extra each per week. Drill instructor, cab and tramway inspectors, 42s. 6d. each extra per week. Inspectors on special service, 2s. each per week. There is a reserve force of 59 constables.

The lieutenants, 10 inspectors, and 3 detective officers are employed principally in clerical work at the different police offices.

There is 1 inspector drill instructor; 1 inspector orderly officer; 1 inspector court officer; 2 inspectors bar officers; and 16 constables are day and night turnkeys, and 3 constables on prison vans; 2 constables hall or gate porters.

Houses are provided for 104 married men, who pay from £3 to £12 rent per annum, and 93 single men are in barracks, and pay 1s. 9d. each per week. Half pay deducted, when on the sick list, from inspectors, sergeants, and constables.

Boot money included in the pay.

City Police Assessment.—3d. in the £.

Variations.—A detective officer, a sergeant, and 6 constables died; 47 constables resigned, 3 to join English forces; one constable retired on a gratuity; an inspector, a sergeant, and 2 constables were superannuated; 39 constables were dismissed for misconduct; and a constable transferred to a Scotch County force. Total, 100 changes.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 24th October 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the following rates of pay for district sub-inspectors of detectives, exclusive of the central district, viz.:—On appointment, 41s. 6d.; after 2 years' approved service, 42s. 6d.; after 4 years, 43s. 6d.; after 6 years, 44s. 6d.; including boot money at the rate of 6d. each per week.

Promotions.—Three constables to sergeant, 20th March, 9th and 22nd June 1893; a sergeant to detective officer, 19th September 1893; a sergeant to inspector, and a constable to sergeant, 28th October 1893; and a constable to detective officer, 12th March 1894.

Police Reserve.—There are 59 constables in the different divisions who have no fixed beats, who are available to fill vacancies and replace men absent from duty.

CITY OF GLASGOW—continued. City of Glasgow.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable, and 9 divisional superintendents prosecute in their respective district police courts without additional salary. The chief constable, 9 superintendents, and a lieutenant are inspectors under the Explosives Acts; and a superintendent is billet-master.

Police Offices, Cells, Houses, Barracks, &c.—The city is divided into 9 divisions, and there are in all 18 stations, with the requisite offices, &c., and from 3 to 46 cells at each, in all 270 cells, and quarters for 104 married, and 93 unmarried officers, who pay, married officers from £3 to £12 per annum, and single men 1s. 9d. each per week; and a number of constables lodge with the married men. The new station for the southern division is in course of erection, and sites have been purchased for new stations at Queen's Park, and Springburn. Fourteen telephone signal boxes have also been placed in the extended suburbs; and vans have been provided for taking prisoners to the cells from the outskirts of the city on requisition from these signal boxes, which is of great service. Each division is in charge of a superintendent, assisted by a staff of lieutenants (or indoor officers), inspectors, detectives, and a full complement of sergeants and constables for day and night duty. All the stations are in telephonic communication, and also with the chief constable's residence. The arrangements appear to be excellent for managing a large force, and keeping good order in a great city. The Paisley Road sub-station is very inferior and unsuitable. A male, two female prisoners, and a child died while in custody of the police at the station; they were immediately attended to by the police surgeon, the cases at once reported, and a full inquiry followed, and no blame attached to the police.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's residence and all the police, and fire stations are in communication, and with the Exchange, the annual cost of which is £183, 16s., and the ordinary trunk charges for messages beyond the city circle.

Ambulance Instruction.—A superintendent, 2 lieutenants, 50 inspectors, 7 detective officers, 70 sergeants, 914 constables, total 1044, have been instructed.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable, 7 superintendents of divisions, 7 inspectors, 2 sergeants, 33 constables, total 50, are mounted on special occasions, and 1 inspector and 38 men are mounted when necessary, and 6 inspectors are permanently mounted for patroling the suburban districts. With the latter exception the horses and most of the saddlery are hired as required.

Band.—The force has a band, consisting of 30 constables, which does not interfere with the men taking their regular turn of day and night duty, and adds to the popularity of the force.

Pedlars' Certificates.—922 granted, being an increase of 101.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 361, females 60, total 421, being an increase of 195.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Sheriff Officers.—Take over charge of criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings, this is a most objectionable practice, for this most responsible duty should be attended

Burgh Police Assessment.—3½d. in the £.

Variations.—Two constables resigned, 2 constables dismissed for misconduct, and a constable discharged as insane. Total, 5 changes.

Promotions.—A sergeant to inspector, 11th October 1893.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable has £50 per annum as inspector of stair and street lighting.

Police Stations, Offices, Cells, &c.—There are 3 stations, the central and 2 sub-stations, with offices, &c., and from 8 to 10 cells at each, in all 27 cells. The Police Commissioners have still under consideration the necessity for providing better police office and cell accommodation at the central; and have provided additional office and cell accommodation at the sub-station at Plantation. The Fairfield station, offices, and cells are very satisfactory. Suitable houses are provided for a certain number of married and single officers, who pay from 2s. to 4s. per week each.

The Telephone.—The 3 stations are connected, and with the chief constable's residence, with various local offices, shipbuilding yards, with the Glasgow circle, and other places, at an annual cost of £44, 10s.

Band.—The force has a band composed of 1 sergeant and 12 constables, who are in the band classed as 1 pipe major, 1 pipe sergeant, 7 pipers, 1 drum major, and 3 side drummers, and dressed in Highland costume when playing out; this does not interfere with the men taking their regular turn of day and night duty, and adds very much to the popularity of the force.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, 3 lieutenants, an inspector, 7 sergeants, 2 detective officers, and 28 constables, total 43, have been instructed.

Mounted Police.—On special occasions the chief constable in uniform, a lieutenant, a sergeant, and 6 constables. Two horses are provided, others are hired when required.

Pedlars' Certificates.—24 granted, being a decrease of 1.

Vagrants, &c., convicted of Begging.—Males 3, females 0, total 3, being an increase of 3.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—As compared with the adjoining city of Glasgow, the force, giving only 1 officer to 790 of the population, is numerically weak.

Burgh Police Assessment.—2d. in the £.

Variations.—Two constables resigned one compulsory; a constable superannuated; and 2 constables transferred to Scotch county forces.

Promotions.—A constable to sergeant, 31st January 1894.

Augmentations.—On the 29th January 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of two 3rd class constables being added to the force, and a constable to be promoted to sergeant, which is equivalent to an addition of one sergeant and one constable to the force.

Reserve.—One constable.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is procurator-fiscal in the burgh police court, for which he receives £50 per annum, and a free house adjoining the police buildings. As inspector under the Shop Hours Act he receives £30 per annum. He is also procurator-fiscal in the Dean of Guild's Court, and under the Public Houses Acts, and inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals), Explosives, and Food and Drugs Acts, but receives no additional allowances for the latter offices. The police attend to the public weighing machine of the burgh, which is at the principal station.

Police Stations, Offices, Cells, &c.—The principal police station at the Municipal Buildings provides very suitable offices and 10 good cells. There is a sub-station at Burnbank, in charge of a resident sergeant, consisting of an office and 2 cells. A site has been acquired and plans prepared for a new sub-station at Burnbank, providing an office, charge-room, a private office-room, four cells, and three dwelling-houses, at a probable cost of £1600, and so arranged that the cell accommodation can be increased at any time. The sergeant at the central station has £24 per annum for keeping the station cells, &c., and the sergeant at the sub-station has a free house.

The Telephone.—The 2 police stations are connected, and with the county constabulary stations, and Glasgow, at an annual cost of £15.

BURGH OF HAMILTON—continued. Burgh of Hamilton.

Ambulance Instruction.—Three sergeants and 9 constables, total 12, only hold certificates of proficiency, and a complete ambulance kit is provided. More might be usefully instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—62 granted, being the same as last year.

Vagrants, &c., convicted of Begging.—Males 17, females 1, total 18, being an increase of 6.

State of Crime.—A decrease of 309 in general offences, of 277 in apprehensions, and of 37 in convictions, but a slight increase in serious crime.

Remarks.—It would increase the efficiency and more general usefulness of the police, in this important district, at a less cost, if this force was consolidated with the county.

Report.—The force is efficient.

Promotions.—Inspector to superintendent 12th June 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector of weights and measures.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There are suitable offices, and 8 cells. The superintendent has a free house at the police station, and houses are provided for married men for 2s. 6d. rent each per week.

Mounted.—The chief constable in uniform on special occasions.

The Telephone.—The police office is in telephonic communication, at a cost of £15 per annum.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, the superintendent, a sergeant, and 2 constables only have been instructed; all should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—12 granted, being an increase of 5.

Vagrants, &c., convicted of Begging.—None.

State of Crime.—An increase in apprehensions, but a decrease in general offences and convictions.

Sheriff Officers.—Sheriff officers take over charge of criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings, this is very objectionable, for the police should have the entire charge of such cases from the commencement to the end.

Remarks.—On the 15th May 1892, the burgh became part of the county of Lanark, and from that date the burgh authorities set up and have since maintained a separate police force, by taking over the inspector (now a superintendent), 2 sergeants, and 10 constables from the Renfrewshire constabulary, and appointing the chief constable (Mr Harding) of that county to be chief constable, which appears, in the meantime, to be a satisfactory arrangement. The force, giving only 1 officer to 977 of the population, is numerically weak.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

REMARKS.

On the 4th April 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the following alterations in the pay and numbers of the force:—(1) the future authorised strength to be 1 chief constable, 1 superintendent (deputy chief constable), 2 inspectors, 2 detective officers, 6 sergeants, 38 constables, total 50; (2) the pay of the new inspector to be on the 1st Model Scale, viz.:—on appointment £90, after 5 years £97, 10s., after 10 years £105 per annum; (3) the pay of the sergeants and constables to be increased (by 1d. each per week) to the 6th Model Scale for sergeants, and the 7th for constables.

* One inspector at £100, one at £90 per annum.

Boot allowance included in the pay.

The 1st class sergeant in charge of the sub-station pays £10 per annum rent; an inspector, 2 detective officers, a sergeant, and a constable are provided with houses at the police station, rents varying from £8, 9s. to £13 per annum, the remainder provide their own houses.

Two constables in reserve.

Alterations while Printing.—On the 29th March, as from the 15th May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the salary of the chief constable being raised from £220 to £260 per annum.

Alterations while Printing.—Burgh of Partick.—On the 22nd May 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an augmentation of the force by five 3rd-class constables.

Burgh Police Assessment.—3d. in the £.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—On the 4th April 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the following alterations in the pay and numbers of the force:—(1) the future authorised strength to be 1 chief constable, 1 superintendent (deputy chief constable), 2 inspectors, 2 detective officers, 6 sergeants, 38 constables, total 50; (2) the pay of the new inspector to be on the 1st Model Scale, viz.:—on appointment £90, after 5 years £97, 10s., after 10 years £105 per annum; (3) the pay of the sergeants and constables to be increased (by 1d. each per week) to the 6th Model Scale for sergeants, and the 7th for constables.

Variations.—Three constables resigned, 1 compulsory; one constable superannuated; one sergeant transferred to a Scotch burgh force as inspector; total, 5 changes.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—Nil.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The principal station, at the Municipal Buildings, has suitable offices, and 23 cells. There is to be a new sub-station provided at Whiteinch, with an office and 4 cells, in charge of a resident sergeant, who pays £10 per annum house rent. An inspector, 2 detective officers, a sergeant, and a constable are provided with houses at the police station, paying rents varying from £8, 9s. to £13 per annum. The remainder find their own houses.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's residence, both police stations, various local offices, and the Glasgow Exchange are connected by telephone, at an annual cost of £25.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, superintendent, 2 inspectors, 2 detective officers, the office sergeant, 5 sergeants, 16 constables, total 28, have been instructed, but all should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—18 granted, being an increase of 7.

Vagrants, &c., convicted of Begging.—Males 1, females 0, total 1, being a decrease of 4.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Sheriff Officers.—Take over charge of criminal cases at certain stages of the proceedings, which is not satisfactory, as the police should have charge of all such cases from the commencement to the end.

Remarks.—As compared with the adjoining City of Glasgow, the force, giving only 1 officer to 847 of the population, is numerically weak.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—2d. in the £.

Burghs.—All the burghs are policed and provided with suitable stations by the county, and assessed at the above rate.

County of Linlithgow (West Lothian).

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alteration in the Force.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Four constables resigned; a constable superannuated; 2 constables dismissed for misconduct; a sergeant transferred to the Peebles Constabulary. Total, 8 changes.

Promotions.—A detective officer to detective sergeant, 4th June 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is chief inspector, the superintendent, and an inspector receive £5 each as sub-inspectors under the Explosives, and Petroleum Acts. All ranks act as officers of the local authority under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act. A sergeant is procurator-fiscal for the burgh of South Queensferry, for which he receives £10 per annum. All the officers assist the Inland Revenue with reference to dog, gun, and game licences; and the section officers act as inspectors under the Shop Hours Act, 1892.

Police Stations.—There are 11 county stations, with from 2 to 5 cells at each, in all 32 cells, with suitable quarters for married and single men. The authorities have provided new stations at Kirkliston and Uphall. All ranks (with the exception of the chief constable) live rent free. Single men in lodgings allowed 3s. each per week.

The Telephone.—The head-quarters, Linlithgow, is connected with the chief constable's residence and county buildings in Edinburgh, Peebles, the City of Edinburgh, and Leith, and also the police stations at Armadale, Bathgate, Broxburn, and Bo'ness, at an annual cost of £37, 10s. This has greatly increased the efficiency and more general usefulness of the force.

Reserve.—There is a constable in reserve at head-quarters.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable, 2 inspectors, the office clerk, 4 sergeants, 21 constables, total 29, hold the St Andrews certificates.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, a sergeant, and a constable are mounted on special occasions.

And the chief constable, deputy chief constable, an inspector, 3 sergeants, and 11 constables are mounted on bicycles when necessary. Four bicycles provided, and 5 officers allowed £1 per annum for upkeep of their own bicycles.

Pedlars' Certificates.—110 granted, being an increase of 14.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been framed, approved and were in force, but found inoperative owing to a decision of the High Court in connection with an appealed case from Mid-Lothian.

State of Crime.—An increase of 17 cases of serious crime and 144 in convictions, but a decrease of 51 in general offences and 15 in apprehensions.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1218, is numerically weak. The chief constable has also charge of the adjoining counties of Edinburgh (Mid-Lothian), Haddington (East Lothian), and of Peebles, which appears to be a very satisfactory arrangement.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—2·225d. in the £.

Burghs.—The burgh of Nairn is policed by the county with a sergeant and 3 constables, and assessed at the county rate.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is procurator-fiscal in the Justice of the Peace Court; he receives £2, 2s. as inspector under the Explosives Act; and £2, 2s. as inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act; and £20 as inspector of weights and measures; he is also billet-master for the burgh of Nairn.

Police Offices.—The police station at Nairn is suitable, providing office accommodation, 2 cells, and houses for 2 married constables; one of the constables has a free house and small allowance for keeping the office and cells. The sergeant has the governor's house in the disused prison, for which he pays a nominal rent of £3 per annum. There are 6 cells available in the old prison, if required. Remainder of force pay 1s. each per week for houses provided.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced.

Mounted on Bicycles.—Three constables, and one bicycle provided by the county.

Ambulance Instruction.—One sergeant and 5 constables have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—19 granted, being a decrease of 1.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been approved, and are not in operation in consequence of the High Court decision in the Mid-Lothian case.

State of Crime.—Increase, except in serious crime.

Remarks.—When an opportunity occurs, it would be desirable to unite for police purposes with either of the adjoining counties of Inverness or Moray, which would be a better and a cheaper arrangement, as the force is too small to be thoroughly efficient as a separate police establishment.

Report.—The force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—2⅓d. in the £.

Burgh.—The county town of Peebles is policed and assessed at the above rate.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A sergeant resigned owing to bad health; a sergeant and a constable were superannuated; and 2 constables transferred to the Mid-Lothian force. Total, 5 changes.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The superintendent (deputy chief constable) receives £10 as inspector of weights and measures. The superintendent is inspector of explosives, and the whole force officers under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts.

Police Stations.—There are 4 county and 3 rented stations, with 2 to 6, in all 13 cells; and 3 rented houses provided. The police station at head-quarters, with offices and 6 cells, and quarters for the superintendent, sergeant, and married constables, are modern and satisfactory. And the standing joint committee have decided to build a new station, with 2 cells, at Broughton. With the exception of the chief constables, all have free houses, and unmarried men 3s. per week for lodgings.

The Telephone.—The head-quarters office at Peebles is in communication with the chief constable's residence and the county buildings in Edinburgh, and other places, for £7, 10s. per annum.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable, 2 sergeants, and 5 constables have been instructed.

Mounted Police.—The chief and deputy chief constable and a sergeant on special occasions.

And the chief constable, 2 sergeants, and 5 constables on bicycles when necessary; 3 bicycles provided.

Pedlars' Certificates.—116 granted, being a decrease of 16.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act, and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act, are enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, were framed, approved, and adopted, but the decision of the High Court of Justiciary in a Mid-Lothian case have made them appear to be ultra vires of the powers of the County Council.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The chief constable has also charge of the Lothians Constabulary Forces, which appears to be a satisfactory arrangement.

Report.—The force is efficient.

County of Perth.

COUNTY OF PERTH—continued.

County Police Assessment.—1·465d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of the city of Perth, which maintains a separate force, all the burghs are policed by the county.

Augmentation and Alterations in the Force.—On the 8th November 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of two 3rd class constables being added to the force.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A constable died; an inspector and a constable superannuated. Total, 3 changes.

Promotions.—A constable to sergeant, 16th April 1893; a detective sergeant to inspector; a constable to detective sergeant, 25th January and 18th February 1894.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector under the Explosives Act, but has no extra allowance.

Police Stations.—There are 29 stations, with from 2 to 10 cells at each, in all 70 cells, 19 of these are county property and 10 are rented; and there are 28 rented houses provided. The disused prison at Dunblane is used for police purposes, and affords suitable quarters for married and single men, offices and 12 cells, 10 of which are legalised for 14 days' imprisonment. There are suitable offices and 3 cells at the head-quarters at Perth, and a house for the resident married officer in charge. A new station with cells on approved plans has been provided at Muthill, and the Errol and Bankfoot stations improved. The new stations are very satisfactory, and others have been added to and otherwise improved. There are, still, however, an unusual number of old and inferior stations with unsuitable quarters for the men, and very inferior cells, the latter in many instances being deficient in ventilation and heating. The authorities, however, intend putting these in order by degrees, dealing with the worst and most necessary first, and as soon as the authorities are clear of leases, the necessity for new stations at Coupar-Angus, Methven, and Dunning will be considered. The resident married officers in charge of stations and cells at the head-quarters at Perth, Blairgowrie, and the legalised cells at Dunblane, and at Alyth and Crieff have free houses. Of the remainder, married men pay 1s. each a week rent for house provided, and unmarried men are allowed 2s. each a week for lodgings.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced, but might be with great advantage, at a comparatively small annual cost.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 superintendents, 3 inspectors, a detective sergeant, 5 sergeants, 25 constables, total 37, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—192 granted, being an increase of 15.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been adopted and are enforced.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay and Force.—On the 21st August 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the salary for the new chief constable being £200 per annum, on the understanding that such salary is in respect of the chief constable's purely police duties as head of the police force. And on the 20th December 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the appointment of a superintendent at a salary of £120 per annum, rising on approved service, by quinquennial increments of £15, to a maximum of £150.

Variations.—The late chief constable, Mr Welsh, was superannuated after 34 years' service; 3 constables were transferred to Scotch county constabulary forces; and 4 constables resigned; total, 8 changes.

Promotions.—Mr Inspector James Garrow to chief constable, 29th May 1893; an inspector to superintendent, 21st December 1893; a sergeant to inspector, and a constable to sergeant, 31st August 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—As explosives inspector, the chief constable has £2; inspector under the Shop Hours Act, £5; and £5 as billet-master; in all £12 per annum.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The offices and 8 cells are suitable, but the detective officers should be provided with a separate office room, and additional accommodation and a sub-station is much required. There is an officer in charge day and night, and a female searcher when required. Members provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—There is an instrument placed in the office free of cost for local use; messages sent beyond the city are charged for at the usual rates.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable and superintendent on special occasions. And 2 detective officers are mounted on bicycles when required.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, superintendent, an inspector, 2 detectives, office clerk, 4 sergeants, 30 constables, total 40, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—109 granted, being a decrease of 16.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 12, females 11, total 23, being 9 more than last year.

County Police Assessment.—1$\frac{23}{24}$d. in the £.

Burghs.—Greenock, Johnstone, Paisley, Port-Glasgow, and Renfrew maintain separate police forces. The other burghs are all policed and stationed by the county, and assessed at the county rate.

Alterations in the Force.—Nil.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A constable died; 7 constables resigned; a constable dismissed for misconduct; total, 9 changes.

Promotions.—Nil.

Reserve.—Four constables at head-quarters in reserve, 3 of whom are also office clerks.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £20 as inspector of weights and measures, £5 as inspector under the Explosive Acts, £5 as inspector under the Food and Drugs Act, and £50 as chief constable of the Burgh of Kinning Park Police Force. The whole force carry out the duties of inspectors under the Contagious Diseases (Animal) Acts, but no extra allowances are paid.

Police Stations.—There are 12 county stations, with from 2 to 4 cells at each, in all 29 cells, and 28 rented houses provided. A new police station, with cells, has been provided at Thornliebank. The deductions made for house rents are—superintendents, 4s.; inspectors, 3s.; sergeants, 2s. 6d.; constables, 2s.; single men in furnished quarters pay 1s. each a week. Instead of giving allowances, ranging from £3 to £10, 8s. per annum, for cleaning offices, cells, &c., it would be found more advantageous to give free houses.

The Telephone.—The following stations are now in direct and continuous communication, viz., the head-quarter office and chief constable's residence at Paisley, Barrhead, Kilbarchan, Gourock, and Pollokshaws, at an annual cost of £62, and the usual trunk rates for messages to other places. This is of the greatest service to the police.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable and two constables on special occasions.

Mounted on Bicycles.—The chief constable, 2 inspectors, detective inspector, 2 clerks, 2 sergeants, 4 constables. Total, 12, and 6 bicycles provided by the county.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, deputy chief constable, 1 detective inspector, 4 inspectors, 7 sergeants, 2 clerks, 45 constables, total 61, have been instructed.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Pedlars' Certificates.—53 granted, being a decrease of 11.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced; and the county has a special Local Act under which convictions can be obtained. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have not been framed.

Remarks.—It would add very considerably to the efficiency and more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, in this very important district, if the burghs of Johnstone, Port-Glasgow, and Renfrew were policed by the county.

Report.—The force is efficient.

Remarks.

On the 16th December 1891, the Secretary for Scotland consented, as from the commencement of the current financial year, that the Government contribution towards the cost of pay and clothing will take the form of a pro rata contribution towards 74 per cent. of the total vouched and sanctioned expenditure on the pay and clothing of the burgh force, including the chief constable.

* The chief constable also receives £10 for extra duties and £12 for uniform.

One-fourth pay deducted when on sick list.

There are 2 constables in reserve.

One inspector and a married constable have free houses; the remainder provide their own.

One sergeant and 15 single constables are in barracks at the central station, and pay 3s. each per week.

There are day and night male and female turnkeys.

Boot money is included in the pay.

Total.

BURGH OF GREENOCK—continued.

Burgh Police Assessment.—4½d. in the £.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay in the Force.—On the 16th December 1891, the Secretary for Scotland consented to the arrangement proposed for the apportionment of cost between the Police Commissioners and the Harbour Trustees, so far as it involves an alteration in the method of calculating the Government contribution towards the cost of pay and clothing, which will from the date, presumed to be from the beginning of the current financial year when this is introduced, take the form of a pro contra contribution towards 74 per cent. of the total vouched and sanctioned expenditure on the pay and clothing of the Burgh Police Force including the chief constable.

Variations.—Two constables died; 7 constables resigned, 1 compulsory, 2 to join English forces, 1 to join the Glasgow police, and 1 to become a prison warder; a constable retired on a gratuity; a detective officer and 2 constables dismissed for misconduct. Total, 13 changes.

Promotions.—A constable to detective officer, 11th December 1893.

Police Reserve.—There are 2 constables.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable acts as assistant or deputy procurator-fiscal. As billet-master he receives £5, and as inspector of explosives for the lower estuary of the Clyde he receives £5; a detective officer, as assistant inspector of explosives, receives £7, 10s.; an inspector and a detective officer have £5 each as inspectors of common lodging-houses; a sergeant has £6 as Dean of Guild Court officer; and 2 constables receive £9, 2s. and £7 respectively for ringing the town bells, which is certainly not a police duty.

Police Stations, Offices, Cells, &c.—The central station is comparatively modern, the offices are suitable, and there are 38 cells on 4 flats, which are reached by a lift and a stone staircase. There is also a muster-hall, off which there are rooms for the different ranks, lavatories, &c. There is a sub-station at the east end, with suitable offices and 6 cells. The inspector in charge of the sub-station and a sergeant have free houses; at the central station, furnished quarters and attendance is provided for 15 unmarried men, who pay 3s. each per week. The remainder provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—The chief constable's residence and the stations are connected by telephone, at an annual cost of £25, 10s., and with the trunk system at the usual rates.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 lieutenants, 6 inspectors, 4 detective officers, 9 sergeants, 50 constables, total 72, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—83 granted, being an increase of 2.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 12, females 10, total 22, being an increase of 16.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—It would be desirable to have the chief constable placed, like the others, on a rising scale of pay.

Report.—The force is efficient.

Burgh Police Assessment.—3d. in the £.

Variations.—The late chief constable, Mr John Fraser, was superannuated after 40 years' service; an inspector died; total, 2 changes.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Promotions.—Mr Inspector Charles Forbes to chief constable, 15th May 1893; a sergeant to inspector, 20th May 1893; a sergeant to inspector, 6th June 1893. The two latter were transferred from the Burghs of Dumbarton and Partick police forces.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—As acting depute procurator-fiscal of the burgh, and inspector of common lodging-houses, the chief constable receives no extra allowance, but he has £5 per annum as sanitary inspector, and £5 per annum as inspector of lighting and cleaning, and £2, 10s. per annum as inspector of dairies, cowsheds, and milkshops.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—In connection with the municipal buildings and court-house, there are suitable modern police offices, 5 cells, and a free house, &c., for the chief constable. The other members provide their own houses. There is a female turnkey and cleaner who receives £31, 4s. per annum.

The Telephone.—The police office is in connection at an annual cost of £8, 10s., which has much increased the efficiency of the force.

Ambulance Instruction.—The whole force have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—22 granted, being an increase of 3.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 4, females 1, total 5, being an increase of 4.

State of Crime.—Except in serious crime, a general increase.

Remarks.—This force, in giving only 1 officer to 1130, is numerically weak, and much too small, with its limited jurisdiction, to be thoroughly efficient as a separate police establishment, and it would therefore be in the interests of the public to take the first opportunity to consolidate with the county, which would be a cheaper and a better arrangement.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Burgh Police Assessment.—3½d. in the £.

Augmentation.—On the 6th December 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of two 3rd class constables being added to the force.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Two constables died, 3 constables were dismissed for misconduct, total, 5 changes.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £10 per annum as inspector of common lodging-houses; he is also inspector under the Explosives Act.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There are suitable police offices, with 14 cells in use, and more available if required. Quarters for the lieutenant and 8 unmarried constables are provided at the station, for which the former pays 2s., the latter 1s. each per week. The other members provide their own houses. The police commissioners are still negotiating for the purchase of a site for a sub-station in the west end of the town. It would be more useful and less expensive if they adopted the system of small sub-stations similar to those in Aberdeen.

The Telephone.—The police station and the chief constable's house are in connection, at an annual cost of £5 per annum. The Watch Committee have still under consideration the adoption of the telephone signal-box system, and a van for conveying prisoners to the cells.

Ambulance Instruction.—Two inspectors, 2 detective officers, 4 sergeants, 3 constables, total 11 only, have been instructed; it would be desirable to increase the number.

Pedlars' Certificates.—96 granted, being an increase of 7.

BURGH OF PAISLEY—continued. Burgh of Paisley.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging. — Males 2, females 2, total 4, being the same as last year.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1016 of the population, cannot be considered, under all the circumstances, sufficient for this large, populous, and important town, and compares very unfavourably in this respect with similar burgh forces. One or two small sub-stations are much required.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Burgh Police Assessment.—3½d. in the £.

Augmentation.—On the 20th February 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of an increase to the force of one 3rd class constable.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 27th November 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the chief constable being paid on an inclusive salary of £173 per annum in lieu of the salary of £143 per annum, along with a free house, &c., which allowance will be discontinued.

Variations.—A constable was transferred to a county force.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is sanitary inspector, for which he receives £10, and £22 as inspector of lighting and cleaning, and £21 as inspector of paving and draining, and £5 as inspector under the Food and Drugs Act, total £58, extra allowances. As inspector under the Explosives and Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, he receives no extra allowance. The chief constable has far too many duties to attend to.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—At the Municipal Buildings there is an office for the chief constable, a general office or charge-room, and 8 cells recently provided on approved plans, and are satisfactory. The chief constable resides at the police station. There is a female searcher and cleaner.

The Telephone.—Is in use at an annual cost of £10 per annum, and has been found most serviceable.

Ambulance Instruction.—The inspector, 2 sergeants, 8 constables, total 11, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—4 granted, being an increase of 1.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—One male, being the same as last year.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1220 of the population, is insufficient for the police duties in this burgh, and especially so when the "additional" or harbour constable has been discontinued; the neighbouring burgh of Greenock having 1 officer to 566 of its population. The efficiency and more general usefulness of the police would be increased, at a less cost, if this burgh was consolidated with the County, or policed by the adjoining burgh of Greenock.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient

Burgh Police Assessment.—4d. in the £.

Alterations in the Force.—The number of sergeants increased to two by the promotion of a constable; approval of the Secretary for Scotland, dated 23rd February 1894.

Augmentation to the Force.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—An acting sergeant to sergeant, 2nd March 1894.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £20 as sanitary inspector, £15 as inspector of lighting, cleaning, paving and draining, total, £35 per annum. As burgh procurator-fiscal, inspector of explosives, and common lodging-houses, he receives no extra allowances. The extra duties and allowances have increased in number since his appointment, and are far too numerous.

Police Offices and Cells.—The offices and 4 cells are suitable. There is no resident officer, but there is always an officer on duty in the office day and night, and there is a female searcher and cleaner, who receives £31, 4s. per annum.

The Telephone.—The telephone has been introduced with much advantage, and costs £10 per annum.

Ambulance Instruction.—Two sergeants and 3 constables only have been instructed; all should be.

Pedlars' Certificates.—9 granted, being an increase of 4.

State of Crime.—A decrease.

Remarks.—It is to be regretted that this burgh did not come within the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1889, and the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, for it is much too small with now only 7000 inhabitants, and with its limited jurisdiction, to have a separate police force thoroughly efficient; and it would have been a cheaper and a better arrangement to have consolidated with the county on a late opportunity occurring.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1·7d. in the £.

Burghs.—Cromarty, Dingwall, Tain, and Stornoway are policed and are assessed at the county rate, and the stations are provided by the county.

Variations.—Two constables resigned, and a constable retired on a gratuity. Total, 3 changes.

Police Reserve.—One constable at head-quarters for general and escort duty.

Augmentations and Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Alterations in the Force.—On the 7th and 13th May 1890, the Secretary for Scotland sanctioned the reduction of the force from 64 to 49, as from the 15th June 1890, on the understanding that the authorities will be prepared at any time, on an emergency arising, to bring up the force to such strength, not exceeding the authorised maximum of 74, as may be required. The force in the Lewis division to remain at the normal strength of 1 superintendent, 2 sergeants, 13 constables, total 16, and not to be further reduced without the approval of the Secretary for Scotland. Subsequently this division was reduced by 1 constable transferred to the mainland. The present minimum strength is 49, with a sergeant temporarily vacant.

Promotions.—An acting sergeant to sergeant, 12 April 1893.

Volunteers.—The deputy chief constable and a sergeant are members of the auxiliary volunteer force.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £20 as chief inspector under the Weights and Measures and the Explosive Acts. The deputy chief constable at head-quarters, the superintendent at Stornoway, and the inspector at Tain are sub-inspectors of weights and measures in their respective districts, and receive from £2, 10s. to £5 each. The superintendent at Stornoway receives £15, the inspector at Tain £5, and a constable £5, as sanitary inspectors; and an inspector 10s. 6d. as assistant inspector under the Explosives Acts.

Police Stations.—There are 12 county stations, with from 2 to 4 cells at each, in all 26 cells. One rented house is provided. New stations have been provided at the Muir of Ord, Strathpeffer, and at Ness in the Island of Lewis. Four cells in the disused prison at Dingwall are legalised for a period of 14 days' detention or imprisonment before, after, or during trial of prisoners, and are in charge of a constable who has a free house, &c., and his wife receives £15 as matron. Superintendents and inspectors pay 1s. 6d., sergeants and constables pay 1s. each per week rent for houses provided by the county.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable only. It would be very desirable to have as many instructed as possible.

Pedlars' Certificates.—45 granted, being 2 of a decrease.

State of Crime.—A decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1603 of the population, is under the usual strength considered necessary for a county constabulary force.

Report.—Subject to the above remark the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1$\frac{3}{10}$d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of Hawick, which maintains a separate force, all the other burghs are policed, and the stations are provided by the county.

Appointment.—On the 4th, as from the 1st January 1894, Mr Alexander Porter was appointed to be also chief constable of Berwickshire.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—Seven constables resigned, 3 joined English forces, a constable was dismissed for misconduct, and a constable discharged as insane. Total, 9 changes.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £25 per annum as procurator-fiscal for the burgh of Jedburgh, he is also inspector for the whole county under the Explosives Act. One inspector is inspector for the whole county under the Weights and Measures, but receives no extra allowance. One inspector is inspector under the Food and Drugs Act for the whole county.

Police Reserve.—One constable is in reserve at head-quarters.

Police Stations.—There are 19 stations, with from 1 to 6 cells at each, in all 38 cells, 15 are county property, and 4 rented, 5 have only single cells, an unusually large number, but at places where there are very few prisoners, the system is, however, objectionable, as not affording the necessary separation of the sexes and prisoners; and there are 4 rented houses provided. The cells at head-quarters are legalised for 14 days' short terms detention or imprisonment, before, during, or after trial, and are in charge of a married constable whose wife receives as matron 7s. a week. Roberton Station has been altered, added to, and improved. A station with cells appears to be required in the village of St Boswells. With the exception of the chief constable, all live rent free, and single men, not in furnished barracks, receive 2s. each per week lodging money.

The Telephone.—The policed burghs in this county might be usefully connected by telephone, and so increase the effectiveness and usefulness of the police at a comparatively small annual cost.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable in uniform, and 2 constables, are mounted on special occasions.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable, 2 inspectors, 1 office clerk, 3 sergeants, 17 constables, total 24, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—81 granted, being a decrease of 3.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act, and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act, are enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have not been framed.

State of Crime.—A decrease of 5 in serious crime, but a considerable increase in ordinary offences, apprehensions, and convictions.

Remarks.—The chief constable has also charge of the adjoining county of Berwick, which appears to be a satisfactory arrangement. There should be only one force in this county, which would increase the efficiency and more general usefulness of the police at a less cost.

Report.—The force is efficient.

Burgh Police Assessment.—3d. in the £.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A constable dismissed for misconduct, and a sergeant superannuated.

Promotions.—A constable to sergeant, 31st August 1893.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—As burgh procurator-fiscal and inspector under the Explosives, Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, of common lodging-houses, of lighting and cleaning, and as billet and firemaster the chief constable receives no extra allowances; but as sanitary inspector and inspector of dairies and cowsheds he has £20, and as inspector of weights and measures £10 per annum. And a constable has £5 per annum as assistant sanitary inspector. The chief constable has far too many municipal offices to attend to, which must seriously interfere with his due attention to his primary police duties, which is a matter the police commissioners should seriously consider.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There are suitable offices and 10 cells in the municipal buildings. The cells are legalised for the detention of prisoners before, during, or after trial, for any period not exceeding 14 days, and are in charge of a resident married constable, who lives rent free, and his wife, as matron, receives an allowance of 15s. a week. All others provide their own houses. A male prisoner died of apoplexy in the legalised police cells on the 13th February 1894, the case was duly reported, and after full enquiry no blame attached to the police.

The Telephone.—The office is connected with the chief constable's house, the Hawick Exchange, public works, Galashiels, Selkirk, and Melrose, at a cost of £8 per annum.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable in uniform on special occasions.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, inspector, a sergeant, and a constable only have been instructed. It would be useful if all were instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—135 granted, being an increase of 20.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 30, females 1, total 31, being a increase of 2.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1280 of the population, is numerically weak. It would increase the efficiency, and add very much to the more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, if it was consolidated with the county, which has a station and 2 officers in the burgh.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—2d. in the £.

Burghs.—The burgh of Galashiels maintains a separate police establishment. The county town of Selkirk is policed and assessed at the above rate, the county providing the police station, offices, cells, &c.

Alterations in the Force and Pay.—Nil.

Variations.—A constable resigned to join an English police force.

Promotions.—Nil.

Police Reserve.—One constable at head-quarters.

Mounted.—The chief constable in uniform, and 2 constables on special occasions, and 3 constables on bicycles, and allowed 15s. each per annum for up-keep.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable is inspector of weights and measures, and under the Food and Drugs Act. The inspector is assistant inspector of Weights and Measures, and under the Food and Drugs Acts, and the Explosives Acts.

Police Stations.—There are 6 county stations, with quarters for married constables, and 2 to 3 cells at each, in all 13 cells. The head-quarter offices, &c. in the county buildings at Selkirk are very suitable. The new police station with cells at Thirlestane has been completed and occupied. With the exception of the chief constable, all live rent free. Single men are allowed 2s. each per week lodging money. The sergeant's wife, at the head-quarter office, is allowed £10 for looking after offices and cells.

County of Selkirk.

COUNTY OF SELKIRK—continued.

The Telephone.—The head-quarter station is in communication with Galashiels, Hawick, Melrose, Kelso, and Peebles, at an annual cost of £2, 18s. 4d.; messages to other places charged at the usual trunk rates.

Ambulance Instruction.—The inspector, sergeant, and 8 constables, total 10, have been instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—38 granted, being an increase of 7.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, are still under consideration.

State of Crime.—A general increase.

Remarks.—Nil.

Burgh Police Assessment.—2d. in the £.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 20th January 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the sergeants and constables being raised to the 5th model scale of pay.

Augmentation.—Nil.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £20 as burgh procurator-fiscal, £10 as sanitary inspector, £2 as explosive inspector, £4 as inspector of weights and measures, £4 as inspector under the Food and Drugs Act, total £40; he is also inspector of cattle-sheds, dairies, and milk-shops, under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, common lodging-houses, and billet-master.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—The offices and 5 cells are suitable, and the latter are legalised for a period of imprisonment after conviction, not exceeding 3 days. One cell is set aside for females, with a separate key, and there is a female searcher and matron who receives an allowance of 3s. per diem when employed. The chief constable has a residence at the station, for which he pays £8, 10s. per annum.

The Telephone.—The station is in telephonic communication with the county constabulary head-quarters at Selkirk, and with Hawick, Peebles, Clovenfords, and Melrose, at an annual cost of £6, 10s., and with Edinburgh and other places at the usual trunk rates.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable in uniform is mounted on any particular occasion.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 sergeants, 6 constables, total 9, have been instructed, and the remainder are being instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—50 granted, being a decrease of 15.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—Males 25, females 4, total 29, being a decrease of 8.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The force is numerically weak, giving only 1 constable to 1500 of the inhabitants, which cannot be considered a sufficient force for the burgh, and there used to be an additional constable whose services were always usefully available. It would increase the efficiency, and add very much to the more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, if the force was consolidated with the county.

Report.—Subject to these remarks, the force is efficient.

Remarks.

The chief constable has also £50 per annum for extra duties.

On the 8th May 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the resolution to discontinue the supply of boots to the force, and, as an equivalent, to increase the pay of the several ranks as follows:—constables and sergeants, 7d. per week; superior officers, 8d. per week. That is, the constables and sergeants will be paid on the 6th Model Scale in future, boot money included in the pay. And on the 6th February, as from 4th January 1894, approved of the Inspectors being paid on the 2nd Model Scale.

* The superintendent, as deputy chief constable, receives no additional salary as such.

Inspectors, sergeants, and constables only are paid on the Government Model Scales.

All ranks receive 2s. per day, and 3s. per night, personal allowance, when absent on duty, in addition to actual travelling expenses.

† One office sergeant.

One constable is in reserve at headquarters.

Officers in charge of stations live rent free, others pay 1s. each per week. Single men find their own lodgings.

No deduction made from pay when on the sick list.

County Police Assessment.—2¼d. in the £.

Burghs.—With the exception of the county town of Stirling, which maintains a separate force, all the other burghs and populous places are policed by the county, in which there should be only one police force.

Police Reserve.—One constable in reserve at head-quarters.

Augmentations and Changes in the Force.—Nil.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 8th May 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the resolution to discontinue the supply of boots, and as an equivalent to increase the pay of the several ranks as follows:—constables and sergeants, 7d., superior officers, 8d. per week. That is, the constables and sergeants will be paid on the 6th model scale in future, and boot money included in the pay; and on the 6th February, as from 4th January 1894, approved of the inspectors being paid on the 2nd model scale.

Variations.—The late deputy chief constable was superannuated, and a constable retired on a gratuity, 2 constables resigned, a constable was dismissed for misconduct, and 2 constables transferred to Scotch forces,—total, 7 changes.

Promotions.—A superintendent to deputy chief constable, and an inspector to superintendent, 1st January 1894. A sergeant to inspector, and a constable to sergeant, 2nd March and 4th January 1894.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable receives £30 as procurator-fiscal for the burghs of Kilsyth and Lennoxtown, and £20 as chief inspector of weights and measures; an inspector has £15 as inspector of weights and measures. The chief constable, 2 superintendents, 2 inspectors, and 6 sergeants are inspectors under the Explosives Act.

Police Stations.—There are 10 stations, all county property, with 2 to 10 cells at each, in all 40 cells, and 36 rented houses provided. At the County Buildings, Stirling, there are suitable offices for the chief constable and the head-quarter staff, 3 police cells, 3 sheriff court cells, and 10 additional cells are legalised for 14 days' detention and imprisonment of county and burgh prisoners, before, during, and after trial; and are in charge of a married sergeant, who has a free house, &c., and £20 allowance to his wife as matron. At Falkirk, in connection with the police offices and court-house, there are 9 police cells, 2 of which are legalised for 14 days' imprisonment, in charge of a resident married superintendent, who receives a free house, coal, gas, &c., and £20 per annum allowance to his wife as matron. A police station, with cells, has been completed at the Bridge of Allan, and a new station with cells is in course of erection at Torrance of Campsie. A station with cells appears to be required at Stenhousemuir. Officers in charge of stations with cells live rent free, others pay 1s. each a week for houses supplied, and single men find their own lodgings.

The Telephone.—The head-quarters at Stirling, with Falkirk and Grangemouth at a cost of £25, 10s. per annum, and other places at the usual rates, which greatly increases the effectiveness and more general usefulness of the force, and the more important stations should in due course of time be connected.

Ambulance Instruction.—The deputy chief constable, 2 inspectors, an office inspector, 9 sergeants, 54 constables, total 67, have been instructed.

Mounted on Bicycles.—The deputy chief constable, 2 inspectors, an office inspector, 4 sergeants, 24 constables—total, 32, but only 3 bicycles are provided by the county.

Pedlars' Certificates.—88 granted, being a decrease of 13.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act and the 15th Section of the Crimes Act are enforced. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been adopted. A Mendicity Society has also been established and worked by the constabulary.

State of Crime.—A slight increase in serious crime, but a general decrease in ordinary offences, apprehensions, and convictions.

Remarks.—Notwithstanding recent augmentations, the force is still numerically weak as to population (1 officer to 1,575), the amount of duty, and as compared with similar county constabulary forces. The efficiency and more general usefulness of the police would be increased, at a less cost, if there was only one force in the county.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

BURGH OF STIRLING—continued.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The superintendent receives £15 as sanitary inspector, and £10 as inspector under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act, but no extra allowance as burgh procurator-fiscal, inspector of explosives, of common lodging-houses, and billet-master.

Police Offices, Cells, &c.—There is a chief constable's office, general office, muster-room, and 7 cells. The chief constable is provided with a house at this station, for which he pays a rent of £10 per annum. At St Ninians there is a sub-station, office, and 2 cells, with free quarters for the married constable in charge. The subject of providing a sub-station with cells at the lower part of the town and improving the heating of the cells at St Ninians is still under consideration. All others provide their own houses.

The Telephone.—The principal office has been connected with the Exchange and town-clerk's office at an annual cost of £11, 7s. 6d. The sub-station at St Ninians is not yet in communication, but a call office, with signal, has been provided at the lower part of the town. The amount paid for telephone communications during the year was £13, 10s.

Mounted Police.—The chief constable in uniform on special occasions.

Ambulance Instruction.—The chief constable, 2 sergeants, and 8 constables, total, 11, have been instructed. All should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—27 granted, being a decrease of 5.

Vagrants, &c. convicted of Begging.—7 males, 0 females, total 7, being a decrease of 4.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1140, is numerically weak. It would increase the efficiency, and add very much to the more general usefulness of the police, at a less cost, if the force was consolidated with the county constabulary, which has its head-quarter office and staff in the burgh.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—3d. in the £.

Burghs.—The county town of Dornoch, and all the populous places, are policed by the county, and are assessed at the above rate.

Augmentation to the Force.—Nil.

County of Sutherland.

Police Reserve.—One constable at Dornoch for escort and general duty.

Alterations in the Force.—On the 16th May and the 24th October 1889, the Secretary for Scotland sanctioned the reduction of the strength of the force, as requested by the local authority on the former date, from 25 to 20, and on the latter from 20 to 16, on the understanding that the Commissioners will be prepared at any time, on the recommendation of the police committee, with the advice of the sheriff, to bring up the force to such strength (not exceeding the authorised maximum of 25), as may be required to cope with disturbance or crime, should the improved state of matters in the county not be maintained. The present actual strength is 17.

Alterations in the Pay.—On the 18th April 1893, the Secretary for Scotland approved of the adoption, as from the 25th October 1892, of the 1st Model Scale of pay for the sergeants and constables; boot money to be included in the pay as before.

Variations.—Nil.

Promotions.—Nil.

Extra Duties and Allowances.—The chief constable prosecutes under the Public Houses and the Roads and Bridges Acts, and is inspector under the Explosives, and the Weights and Measures, and the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts, for which he receives actual travelling and personal expenses when so engaged. The inspector, a sergeant, and a constable are assistant inspectors under the Explosives Acts, and the whole force are officers under the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Acts.

Police Stations.—There are 8 stations, with 2 cells at each, in all 16 cells; 2 stations are county property, and 6 are rented, and there are also 3 rented houses provided. A new rented station with cells has been provided at Tongue; the plans for this station were not submitted for the approval of the Secretary for Scotland, in accordance with Section 55, Police (Scotland) Act, 1857, and the Secretary for Scotland Rules, and it has not been inspected. Officers in charge of stations live rent free, the remainder receive 2s. each per week.

The Telephone.—Has not been introduced.

Ambulance Instruction.—Has not been given, it would be desirable to have as many instructed as possible.

Pedlars' Certificates.—27 granted, being a decrease of 6.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under Section 57 of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been approved, and are in force.

State of Crime.—A general increase in general offences, apprehensions, convictions, and 3 cases of serious crime.

Remarks.—It would be a public benefit, and increase the efficiency of the police, if the head-quarters were removed to Golspie, where the sheriff-substitute now resides, which is also on the line of railway, and in every respect more convenient; and if there were police cells there, legalised for remand, and short periods of detention, it would save the time and expense unnecessarily spent in escorting prisoners to and from the distant prison at Inverness. During the year ended 15th March 1894, 33 prisoners were escorted from Dornoch to or from Inverness prison, which necessitated an absence from duty of the escort for 12 hours on each occasion; and Dornoch being 7 miles from the nearest railway station, the cost of escort was £43, 3s. 8d.

There are at present no constables stationed at Embo and at Bettyhill, the one previously at the former place being now at Dornoch, and the one previously at the latter place being now at Helmsdale.

Report.—The force is efficient.

County Police Assessment.—1·340d. in the £.

Burghs.—All the burghs are policed by the county, and stations, &c. provided at the above assessment.

Augmentation.—On the 30th January, as from the 15th March 1894, the Secretary for Scotland approved of one 3rd class constable being added to the strength of the force.

Alterations in the Pay.—Nil.

Police Reserve.—One constable at head-quarters for general and escort duty.

Variations.—A constable died, a constable resigned, 2 sergeants superannuated, and 2 constables dismissed for misconduct. Total, 6 changes.

Promotions.—Two constables to sergeant, 28th May and 3rd December 1893.

Extra Duties.—The chief constable is inspector under the Weights and Measures and the Explosives Acts, but receives no extra allowances. A sergeant receives £5 as a sanitary inspector.

Police Stations.—There are 13 county stations, with from 2 to 4 cells, in all 30 cells. There are 7 rented houses provided. A new police station with cells on approved plans has been provided at Garliestown. The disused prison at Wigtown is now the head-quarter police station, where there are 4 cells legalised for 14 days' imprisonment, before, during, and after trial, in charge of a resident inspector, whose wife, as matron, receives £11 per annum. There is no office room for the chief constable, and there are not a sufficient number of cells at Wigtown for short terms of imprisonment and also police cases, and to relieve them cells should be provided and legalised at Stranraer for detention and short periods of imprisonment, which would be a great saving in time; and the expenses now incurred unnecessarily in escorting prisoners before and after trial to Wigtown or to the distant prison at Maxwelltown would be avoided. During the year 73 males, 17 females, total, 90 prisoners, were escorted by 88 officers, necessitating an absence of from $3\frac{1}{2}$ to $7\frac{1}{2}$ hours each time, at a cost to the country of £73, 10s. The police station at Stranraer is in the county and burgh buildings and sheriff court-house, affording a general office or charge-room, and 3 cells, and quarters provided for the resident married officer in charge. Newton-Stewart now appears to be the most central and convenient place for the head-quarters of this force.

Telephonic Communication.—None.

Ambulance Instruction.—The superintendent, 2 sergeants and 3 constables, total 6, only have been instructed. More should be instructed.

Pedlars' Certificates.—74 granted, being an increase of 14.

Vagrants.—The Trespass Act is enforced, but the 15th Section of the Crimes Act is not. Bye-laws for the prevention of vagrancy, under the 57th Section of the Local Government Act, 1889, have been adopted, but are not enforced owing to the decision of the High Court of Justiciary in an appealed case from Mid-Lothian.

State of Crime.—A general decrease.

Remarks.—The force, giving only 1 officer to 1,502 of the population, is numerically weak.

Report.—Subject to this remark, the force is efficient.
